Robert-

Well it's been a long time since I've signed a year BOOK, but I'll do anything for you! I can't even begin to tell you how proud I am of you! Oh and I can not believe that my Bob is graduating now that's strange! Your growing up that scares me! Just joking! Well I must say it has been the best 2½ yrs of my life and I wouldn't trade a minute! Your prom was great, and I was honored to be there with you! We've had it rough this yr but of course our love pulled us through, which tells me one thing how strong together we are! I've watched you grow so much and it's weird your graduating but as we know it's "Only Just Begun" I know you can be anything you want to be- you have had it rough, alot of problems and you still always came out on top, don't ever think down of yourself because you are the best! (at least to me) I am so very glad to know your going to ODU! I know your going up your summer but I promise I will stick by you and do what I can to help you because I know —

SUDDENLY
It Dawned On Us!

When students started school in September, it seemed as though it was going to be another year like all the others. Soon they realized that if they set their minds to it, they could accomplish anything. Whether it was decorating the halls during special events, helping to resolve the parking dilemma, or raising money for the United Way, Falcons excelled in all aspects of student life. From their academic achievements, athletic victories, and organizational projects, from the beginning to the very end, the students and faculty worked together to make this year unique in every way. If someone were to look for a school with outstanding spirit, enthusiasm, creativity, and personal strength, they would find Cox High School. As the end of the year loomed before us, it suddenly dawned on us. It could never be "just another year" when it involves people as special as those that have helped to make our school rise to the top.

SCA officers Charlie Cho, Melinda Foley, Scott Eun, and Marc Mayette celebrate after realizing how much money they made at the Homecoming dance.

Football players Chris Stevens, Richard Jarrett, and Eric DePaul rise to be recognized for their outstanding game performances.

Twins Celeste and Courtney Walton compete against one another during spirit week.

INTRODUCTIONS
To Innovations

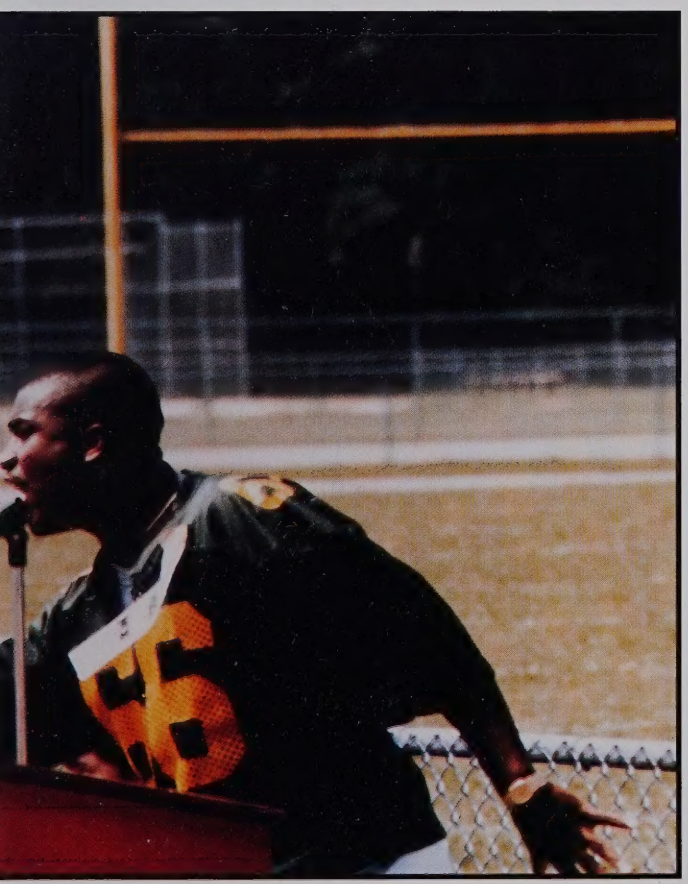
Seniors doubted it. Teachers were astonished by it. Underclassmen just didn't realize it. At first, no one fully understood what this school year was all about. Then, suddenly, it dawned on us. The realization: in practically every subject there was something a little different about this year. Social Studies celebrated the 200th birthday of the constitution by holding a bicentennial symposium in late October. The foreign language department implemented a program called The State of Virginia Governor's Academy which selected talented students to participate in a summer program for German, Spanish, or Asian Studies. The news in biology this past year was that advanced placement biology students studied the drosophila (fruit flies) in an effort to learn more about genetics. The physics room acquired a new laser gun (for demonstrational purposes only, of course). Chemists made progress in finding a room temperature superconductor.

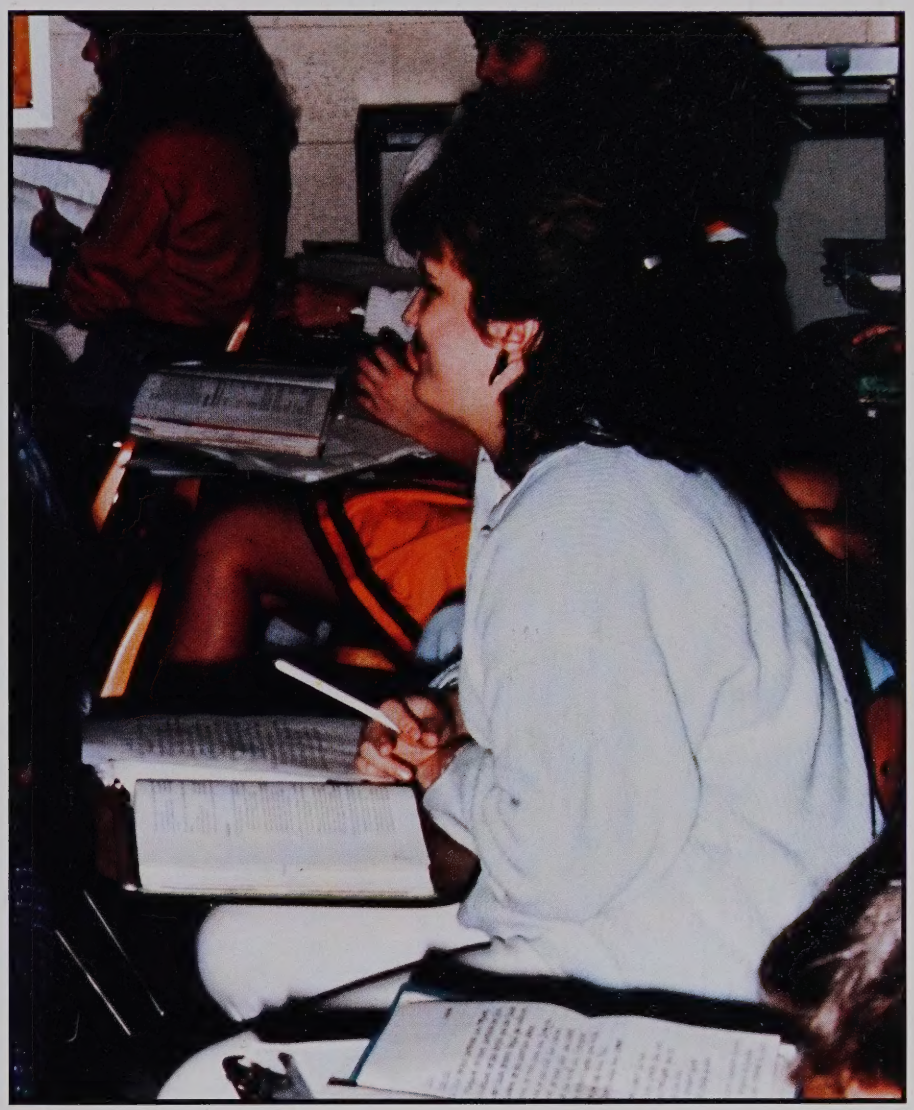
All in all, the breakthroughs this year have been enormous. Students continue to benefit by exposure to the latest innovations.

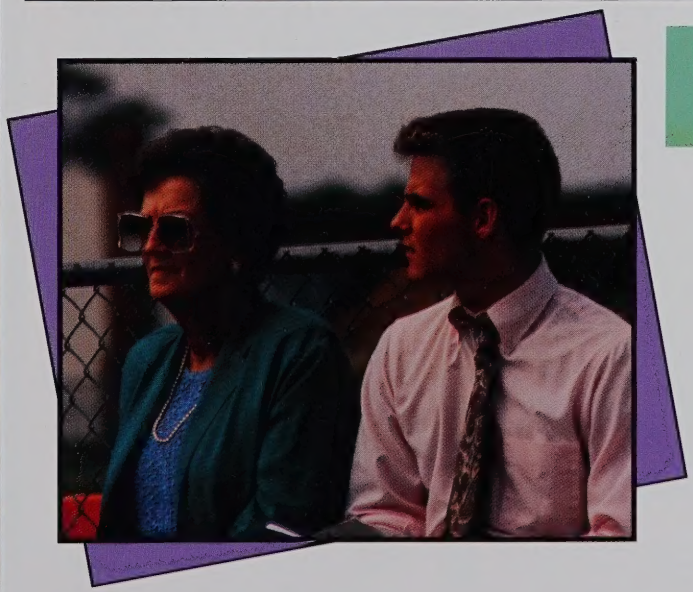
Football player Clayton Smith shouts a victory rap to the student body during the pep rally before the Maury game.

Warnie Conley, an enthusiastic student, rises to the occasion.

Junior Dee Dee Jeroy finds humor in her class.





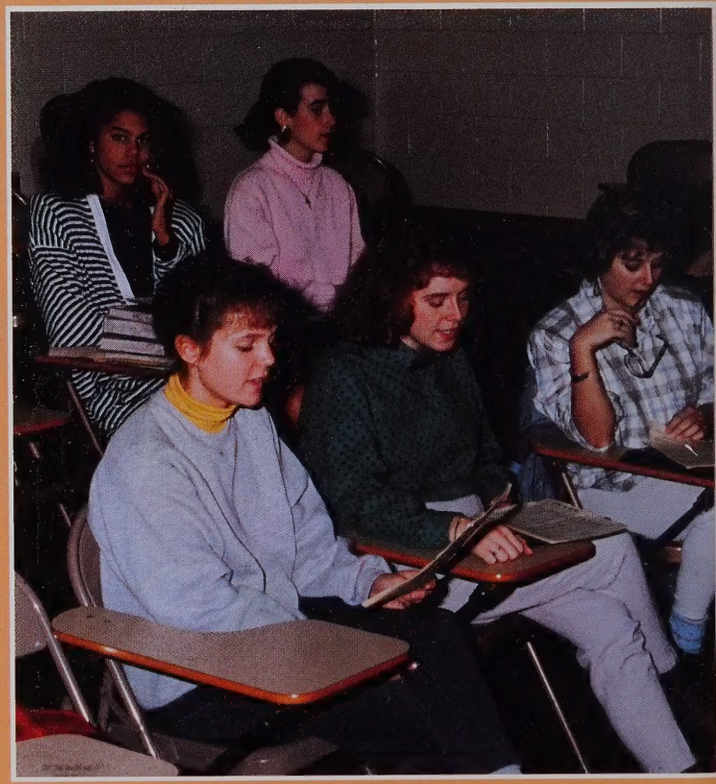


Attentively listening to the speaker at the podium are Mrs. Lottie Waters and Marc Mayette.

Seen kicking up his heels is Shane Symons, who skates regularly at Lynnhaven ramp.

"C" "O" "X" — Diana Vann leads the crowd in a victory cheer.

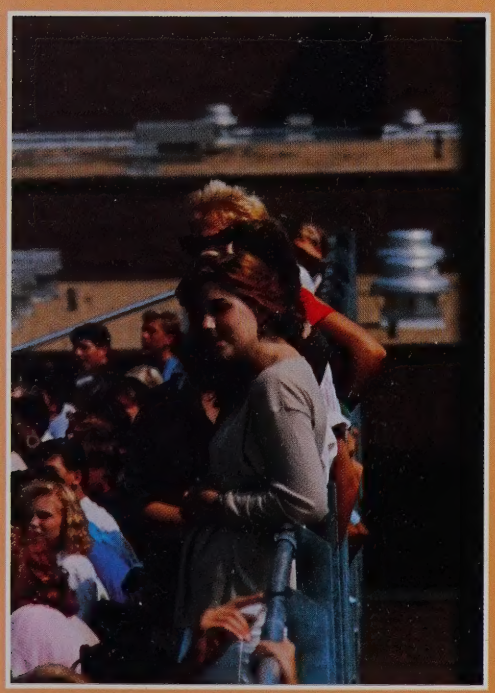
Sometimes Mark Moley and Christina Allen find their life as students a bit overwhelming.



Singing their hearts out are Diana Vann, LeaAnne Rickard, and Kristen Williams.

FULL Light Cycle

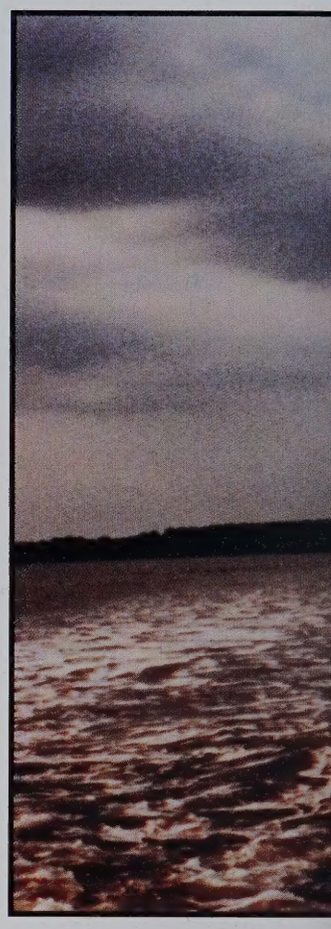
Every year the dream of becoming a high school student came closer and closer to being a reality. Suddenly you were there, ready to embark on the best years of your life. Once the school year began, you were overcome by a wave of excitement. As the days passed, you realized that high school was not just assemblies and dances, but also hard work; it may have been a part time job at a local shop or a volunteer position. However, the struggle to achieve the ultimate goal of graduation continued. The fashions of the time brought forth the best and the brightest, the most spirited and the wackiest. From the first football game to Graduation Day, and all that came between, students could be seen kicking up their heels while they proclaimed, "let the good times roll!"



Football manager Jeanne Everett leans back and enjoys the outdoors during the Pep Rally.

During a hike in the mountains of Washington, Nicole Andrews stops for a drink of water.

At the Narrows, Kevin Brooks shoots off a sandbar on his jet ski.



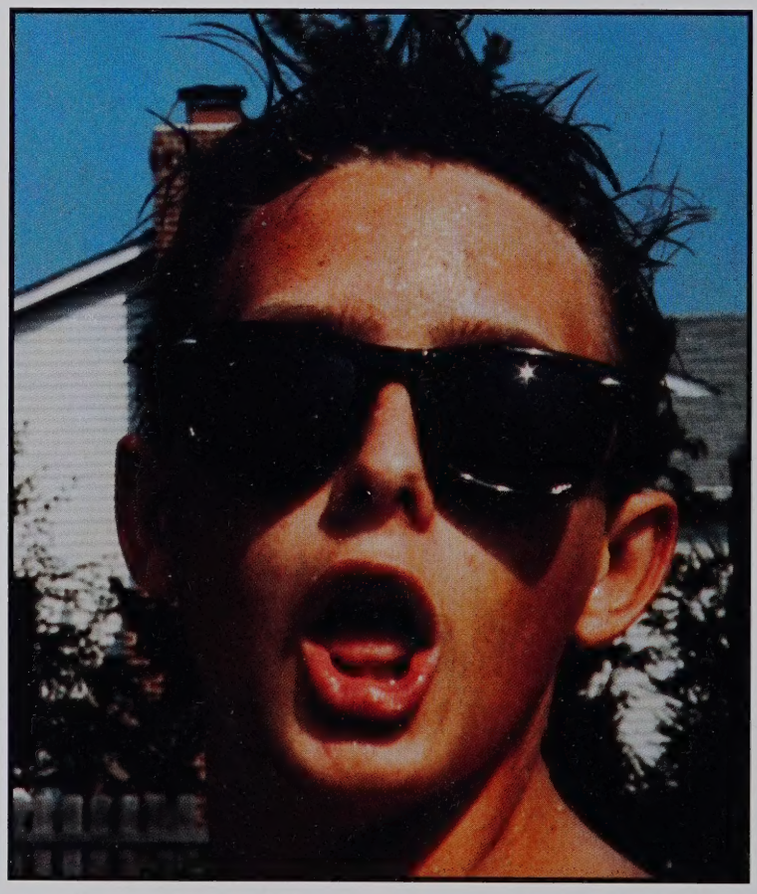
What Are Your Rules Of Summer?

Casey Morris — Junior
"Rule number one: Don't ever walk on the bike path."

Laura Rieves — Sophomore
"Rule number two: When lying on your stomach, never untie your bikini top!"

Jay Cooper — Junior
"Rule number three: When asking parents for money, make sure you mention the words poor, please, and homeless (And never let them see you sweat!)

Lee Hark — Junior
"Rule number four: If you can't make fun of yourself, make fun of other people!"



Backyard pools are a fun alternative to the beach, and here, John Brooks demonstrates his annoyance with any interruption of that fun.

During the summer of 1987, Cheryl Adams stretches out for a picture at Nags Head, another popular escape from Virginia beaches.

DREAMING OF A LAZY SUMMER

For Some The Wish Came True

As the bell resounded through the halls on the last day of school, the excitement of summer was felt as students left school grounds. Some went straight to the beach, others journeyed to far off exotic lands such as France and Peru. In many opinions, summer was the most exciting time of the year.

As the sights and sounds of summer came into range, students dreamed of carefree lounging and "killer-wave" surfing. For some students, however, there was no time for such relaxation. There were jobs to go to and money to be earned. Food Lion and TCBY seemed to be the major work spots this year.

For some, Virginia Beach was not the place to be during the summer. Vacations to the western part of the country, in such states as Michigan and Washington; and trips to Europe, Nags Head, and Washington, D.C. were popular events in travelling students' lives.

As it always does, summer ended too soon for everyone. The shadows of summer lengthened as students started another year of school . . . the fun was just beginning!

Tearing up the surf, Steve McNaughton cuts into a wave at Croatan.

MOMENTUM BUILDS!

The Green and Gold Glistens

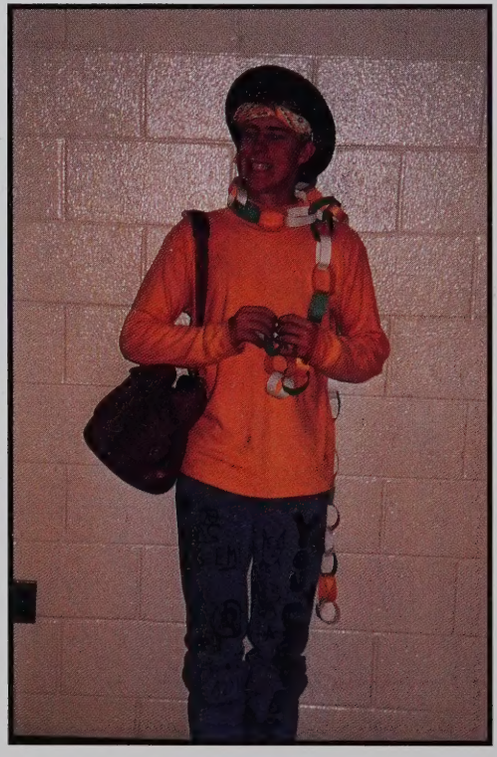
SPIRIT WEEK — that time of the year when outrageous clothing displayed intense school spirit and excitement. Ending in a bang with the Homecoming festivities, spirit week highlighted the month of October as well as the fall sports season.

The week was off to an invigorating start when students displayed the college of their choice through means of sweatshirts, T-shirts, hats, and accessories. On that same day, foundations of club and class floats began to surface behind the football stadium stands.

As the week progressed, school spirit gained momentum during the following days: Hero Day, Little Kid's Day, and Tourist Day. On Green and Gold Day, the participation was overwhelming. It was not surprising to find students spraying each other's hair with green and gold colored hairspray or even writing C-O-X on each other's faces. After students returned from the traditional parade of decorated cars at First Colonial, the excitement steadily increased.

Coinciding with costume competitions, there were the ever-famous spirit banner and spirit link competitions. The senior class dominated these contests. At the pep rally, the excitement mounted as the football team and Homecoming Court were introduced. No one could wait to get back to school for the game of the year!

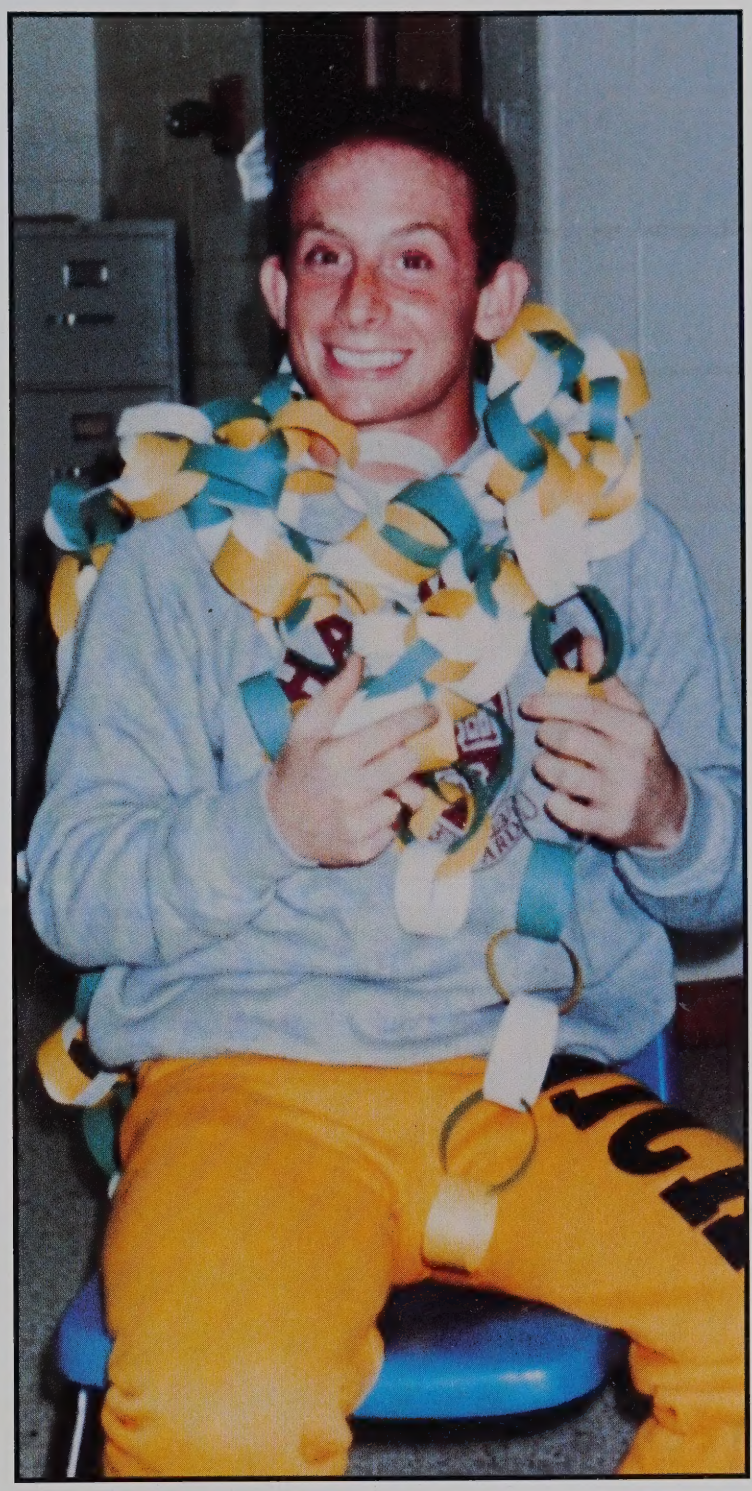
Kevin Curry's impressive school spirit seems to include carrying a purse!

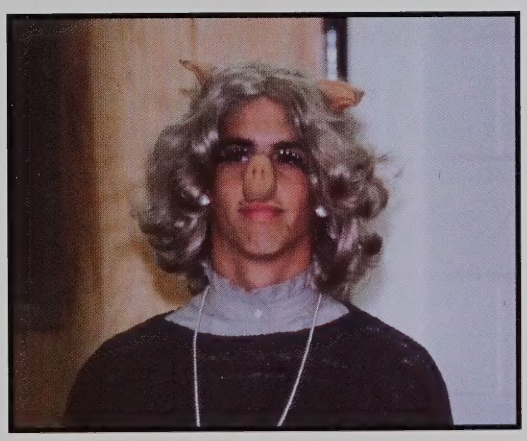


Decorating cars allows seniors Karen Pellerin and Karen Johnson to let go.

SCA President, Marc Mayette, is still a little kid inside during spirit week.

Even though spirit links seem to be attacking him, Craig Goldberg manages a smile.





On Hero Day, Chris Kane let it be known that Ms. Piggy was indeed his hero.

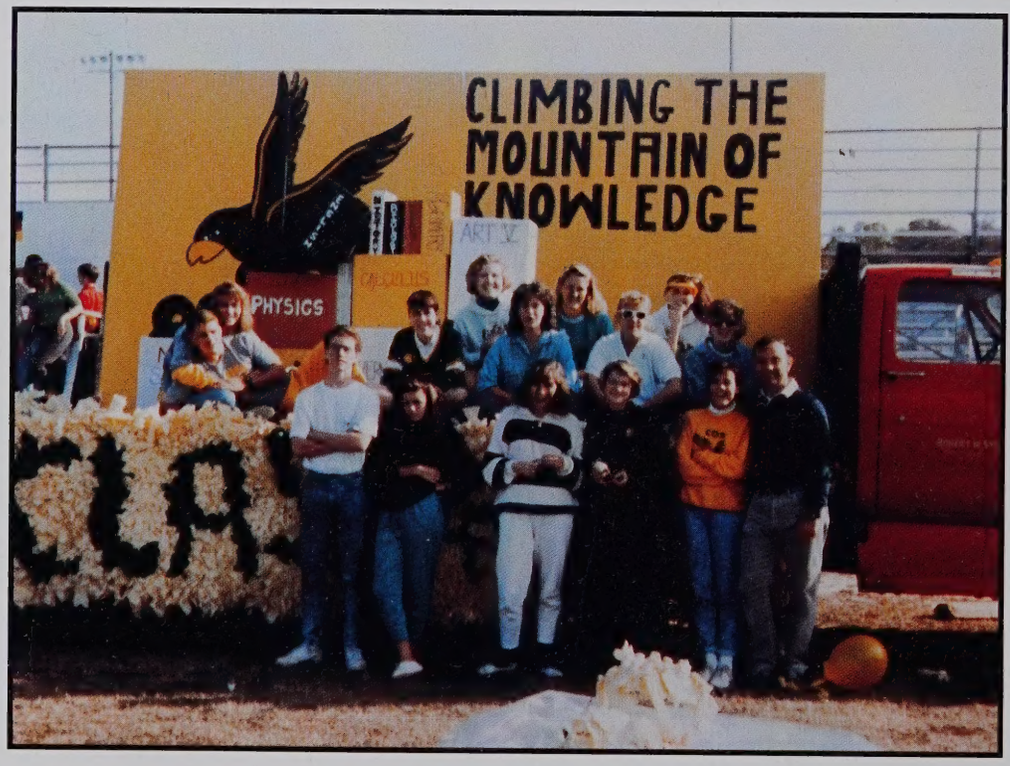
How Did You Feel About Homecoming?

John Hall — Senior
"Homecoming was a lot of fun and brought out the Falcon spirit in all the classes, especially 1988's, the best!

Chamie Wargo — Junior
"Homecoming? Well, what can I say? It was great! But next year it'll be the best!"

Ann Caldwell — Sophomore
"Highlight that first touchdown and the spirit that the Falcons generated."

Diana Bauks — Freshman
"Well for my first Homecoming, it was a lot of fun and exciting!"



The junior class members and their sponsor, Mr. Ingram, stand in front of their inspiring float!

As part of the traditional Homecoming parade, this little red Volkswagen displays enormous school pride.

CROWNING A MEMORY

A Homecoming Not To Be Soon Forgotten

Homecoming 1987 — a giant party given in honor of the alumni, students participated in the event-of-the-year's festivities: spirit mania, parade of floats, post-game dance, and, of course, the inevitable football clash.

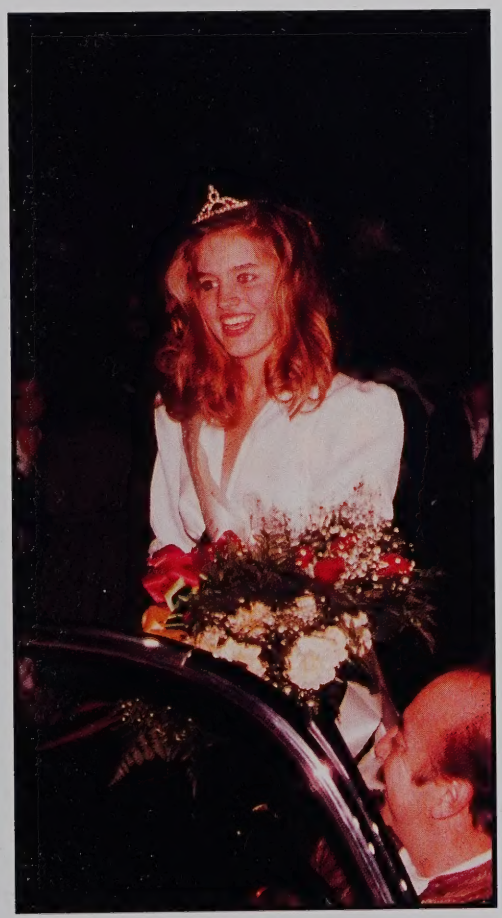
As the football stands filled with loyal Falcon fans flailing green and yellow pompoms to the jazzed-up beat of the Virginia Stars, the marching band, the true stars of the evening huddled together in the locker room to plot effective strategies against their opponents. Cox Falcons met the Kellam Knights in the annual clash of brain and brawn.

Halftime — what the spectators waited for! The dance squad, the Coquettes, colored the field with the dance routines to Bryan Adam's song, "She's Only Happy When She's Dancing." As the show went on, the marching band silently lined up behind the scoreboard and waited to show off its refined musical talent through the performance of "In the Stone" by Earth, Wind, and Fire.

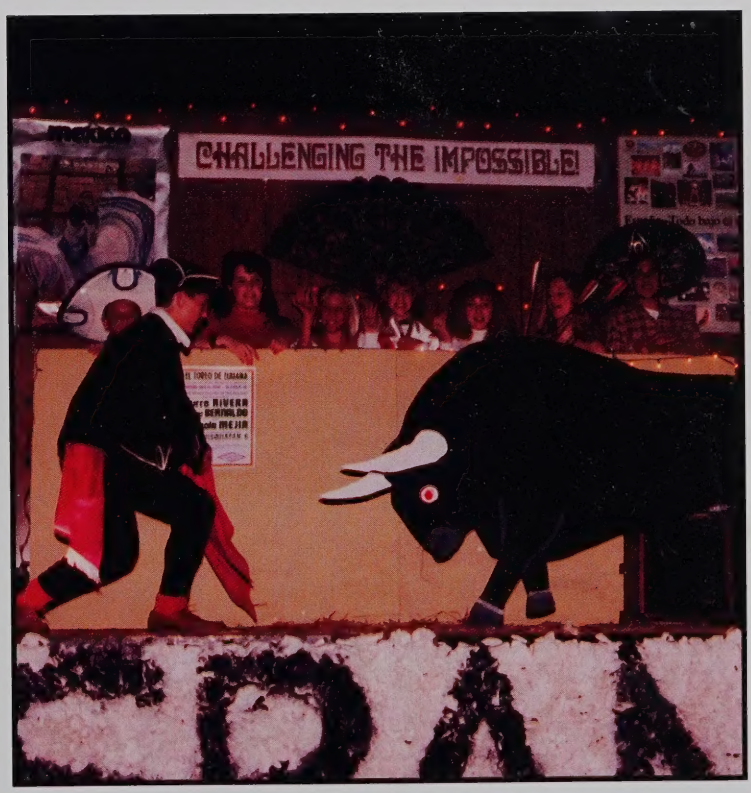
The main event of Homecoming, the crowning of a queen, took place when eleven class representatives were escorted onto the field by their fathers. Senior rep, Nicole Andrews, was crowned Homecoming Queen of 1987-88.

Homecoming kindled fond memories for the returning alumni and framed images in the minds of present Cox students.

A great time at the beach is had by Mike Stallings and Carrie Monger on the senior float.



The beautiful Nicole Andrews graciously accepts the title of Cox's 1987 Homecoming Queen.



The Spanish club float depicts a bullfighter challenging the impossible.

Meg Dobson and the chorus from Little Mary Sunshine captivate the audience.

In a most romantic scene Chris Kane puts the moves on Amber Agee.

Sleek Amy Riddick struts her stuff across the stage to the sounds of Mata Hari.

TALENT UNSURPASSED

Cox Actors Astound Audiences

Anxious to see what Jeff Ames has in the box, the young maidens huddle around him.

Lo and Behold! The thespians carried on the Cox tradition of excellence once again in their biannual performances.

The spring production of Little Mary Sunshine was presented with a talented cast starring seniors Meg Dobson, Larry Williams, and Amy Riddick. The homemade country atmosphere carried the audience back to a simplistic time when American society was carefree.

The fall brought ghosts and romance as the drama department presented Lo and Behold! Juniors Amber Agee and Philip Grant led the show to success with their extraordinary acting ability and down to earth humor.

However, the talent of our thespians was not the only thing which made the productions such hits. The enthusiasm and support of the directors, teachers, and student body played a large part.

Audiences waited in anticipation for the next play to see if it would live up to the Fine Arts department's reputation for excellence and productions of high caliber.

In a scene from Lo and Behold!, actors K.B. Carr, Darby Staggs, Chris Kane, and Amber Agee display their talent.

Practicing an Indian ritual, Chris Kane and Larry Williams mystify the crowd.

Wary of the meal set before him, Philip Grant eyes his food cautiously.

Cave people Corey Vann and Annette Terlizzi pretend to live in the Stone Age.

What Was Your Most Original Halloween Costume?

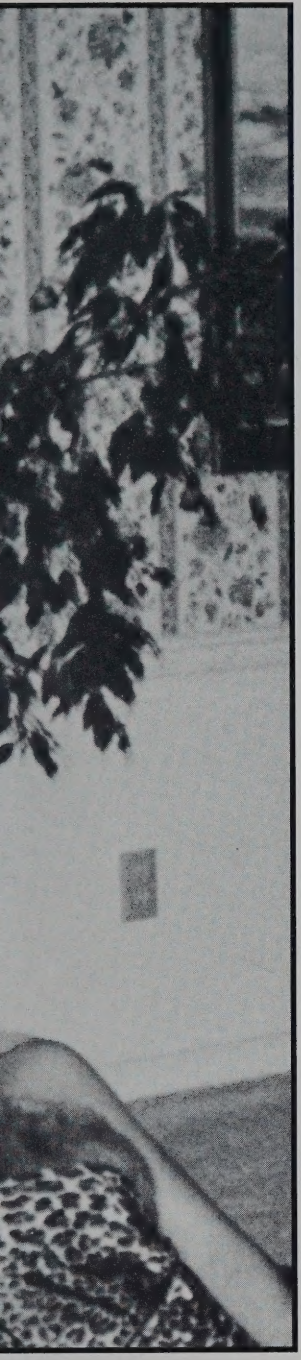
Julie McCready — Senior
"My most original costume was when I dressed up like a little hobo with charcoal on my cheeks and everything!"

Heather Olson — Junior
"At the age of ten, I was drawn to dress up like Miss Pac-Man to do the Pac-Man Craze."

Alison Hanwit — Sophomore
"The most original costume I ever had was when I dressed up as a Hershey's Kiss."

Marissa Vrooman — Freshman
"My favorite Halloween costume was when I dressed up like a flapper in a long, black dress."

Ready for a good time, Nancy Gutermuth and Beth Epperly wear masks for Halloween.



THE GREAT PUMPKIN ARRIVES . . .

Time To Transform!

Green and black makeup, assorted candy bags and spooky decorations were virtually everywhere when October 31 arrived. The fun and excitement of Halloween was not limited to just children this year. Many teenagers as well as adults got into the spirit of transforming themselves into someone or something other than themselves, including The Noid, California Raisins, and Flintstone characters.

At Halloween parties, prizes were awarded for the most original costume. Candy was eaten by the pound, and at one time or another, someone got scared stiff!

To kids from one to ninety-two, the magic of Halloween was an event not only to look forward to, but an event to participate in as well. Halloween, once again, endured the test of time and provided special memories for everyone.

Dressed as an Oreo, Talley Sale is a tasty Halloween treat.

Vampire Chris Wombolt and hippie Philip Damuth reveal their personalities.

Although Rick Hurst has not been put in the corner, he still looks like a dunce.

A MATCH MADE IN HEAVEN

Students Find Romance

The Wednesday night before Thanksgiving holiday, many students gathered in the auditorium to see the junior class sponsored version of the classic game show "The Dating Game." Gone were the garish blobs of color that were a part of the T.V. show set. Instead, a yellow director's chair and a potted plant decorated the stage. Juniors Becky Banks and Agnes Parker served as mistresses of ceremonies, replacing the old T.V. host Jim Lange.

The show began. There were two bachelorettes and three bachelors. Each was allowed ten minutes to question those of the opposite sex who were hidden behind stage curtains. Their answers were sultry, tantalizing, and often humorous.

The bachelors were Tom Stables, Jeff Stanfield, and Ryan McGuinness. The bachelorettes who participated were Ami Woodard, Carrie Monger, and Jenny Moran.

Between each "match — up," door prizes were distributed. The Dating Game provided a fun night full of surprises, and was so successful that it could become an annual event.

Agnes Parker allows each couple to pick what their respective dates will consist of.

As the crowd laughs, Carrie Monger considers rephrasing one of her questions.

The first bachelor, Ryan McGuiness shows his surprise at one of the answers he receives.

SUDDENLY THE NIGHT BEGAN . . .

A Grand Affair Enjoyed by All

'Twas the night before prom and all through the house, not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse.

The prom dress was hung on the door with care, in hopes that "prom night'' would soon be there.

While the dates were dreaming about the big night, the escorts were hoping their tuxes fit right.

And then to their wandering eyes should appear, a black stretch — limo which filled them with cheer.

Every spring, there is a lot of hustle and bustle in the formal shops and in the homes of seniors. The senior prom is a milestone in one's senior year.

In the beginning, there was a lot of time — consuming thought and preparation for this grand event.

It could have been a waste of time, but when the date finally arrived, seniors stepped into the beautifully decorated Pavilion and it all seemed worth it.

After a night of dining and dancing, some couples found it ideal to take a romantic, relaxing walk on the beach. Prom night 1987 was definitely an evening that will be remembered fondly by every senior that attended.

Showing his enthusiasm, Pat Baldwin sweeps Kim Tolbert off her feet during one of the many dances at Prom.

Why are you looking forward to Prom?

Blake Thompson — Freshman
"Ask me in another three years."

Kelly Johnson — Sophomore
"I don't know exactly why, it's just a senior tradition that everyone looks forward to."

Kristin Kohl — Junior
"I'm looking forward to prom because it's a night of dressing up, friends, and excitement."

LeAnn Neubert — Senior
''It is a night of ephemeral transcendental bliss."

Stewart Parker gladly accepts Jon Best's request for her company on the dance floor.

Taking a moment from this festive event, a jovial group of seniors stops for an keepsake picture.

As Denise Hobbs stands her ground, Jodi Elswick begs her to dance with him.

Without any delay, Mike Summerlan accepts Jon Best's dance proposal.

Cindy Billups affectionately grabs the hand of her date, as he bashfully smiles.

Upon her request, Lori Finger turns Lisa McKenzie's new ring.

WITH THE TWIST OF A RING

A High School Tradition Makes Memories

As they woke up on the morning of Ring Dance, many juniors were filled with anxiety and excitement about the night to come. The day wore on, and many junior girls began putting on make-up and fixing their hair. The guys were trying to decide just how much aftershave to wear. Students rushed to pick up corsages and boutonniers at local florist shops and Farm Fresh. Later, dresses and tuxedoes were donned, and limousines began arriving at houses all over Virginia Beach. Mom and Dad took more pictures than anyone wanted, but that part was over "in a flash!" Most couples went out to dinner at restaurants such as Tandom's or All Seasons. Then it was off to the Pavilion Towers Hotel to dance the night away. The hotel was lavishly decorated, and hors d'oeuvres were served. A D.J. was on hand to play everyone's favorite music. As the evening progressed, it was time for each couple to go over the bridge and receive their rings. Before anyone knew it, the Ring Dance of 1987 was over; for the juniors, however, their rings remained as a reminder of that night.

As she leans back into her date's arms, Robin Hudson smiles with delight and surprise.

On the dance floor, Gil Compo, Andrea Akers, Nell Garwood McEachern, and Matt Jackson boogie the night away.

As he tries to explain his philosophy of life, Casey Lewis gets blank stares from Matt Lucas and Anne O'Brien.

HATS OFF!

To a Memorable Four Years

The feelings of butterflies in the stomach, the constricting throats of those who will say good-bye to their friends for months, the fear of what lies ahead. These are among the varied emotions that overcome one on the day of his or her graduation. But most of all, on that final day, there is a feeling of overwhelming pride. There is a sense of accomplishment and maturity that comes with the ending of one's high school years. It is a day for seniors to look back on their growth through the past four years.

Looking back, they cannot remember a time when they have not gone to school. As the class of 1987 throws their caps skyward, each recalls all the memories, both good and bad. The class relationships, the great parties, the time someone got an "A+" in chemistry, and all the others didn't do well, the pep rallies, wrestling matches,nights spent at home, and countless others. But each year another class graduates from these hollowed halls, and they become the ones to hold these cherished memories. And they become the next generation of Cox seniors to whom the torch will be passed.

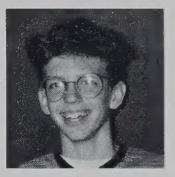
The class of 1987 throws their caps skyward in salute to their high school years.

After receiving their diplomas, the class of 1987 thinks about what is in store for them.

For valedictorian, Caddy Wood, and senior class president, Alex Sadler, graduation practice is not nearly as serious as the real thing.

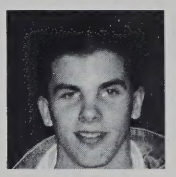
What does graduation mean to you?

Freshman — Emily Roberts
"Graduation to me means the opening of the door to new opportunities and adventures, and the end of one of the bests times of my life."



Sophomore — Ryan McGinness
"It's like when you close your eyes, stick out your arms, and turn around and around for twenty minutes, or so I'm told."

Junior — Lisa Crutchfield
"Graduation means nothing to me until my senior year."



Senior — Ronnie Shank
"A diploma just can't represent what I've learned these past four years ... I'll call you when I make my first million."

Kim Haynie and her fellow graduates march onto the field with high hopes for the future.

Valedictorian of the class of 1987, Caddy Wood, bids her classmates goodbye and good luck.

Some students create a style of their own, like the unique fashion of Lynn Marshall.

The casual and sophisticated aspects of the ever-popular jeans are modeled by Ami Woodard and Danielle Mayette.

A NEW DIMENSION

Students With A Style All Their Own

They say that America is the melting pot of the world. Cox is definitely the melting pot of Virginia Beach. From the chic Paris fashions to the varied tastes of individual statements, students created their own "belle mode" this year.

Many of the styles that were prevalent in the sixties were revived, but with a new twist. The ever popular mini-skirt evolved into a diversity of fashions ranging from bubble skirts and ruffled denims to tapering half-skirts and knit minis. Plaid made its way back into the weave of today's styles. Animal prints and reptile accessories were all the rage.

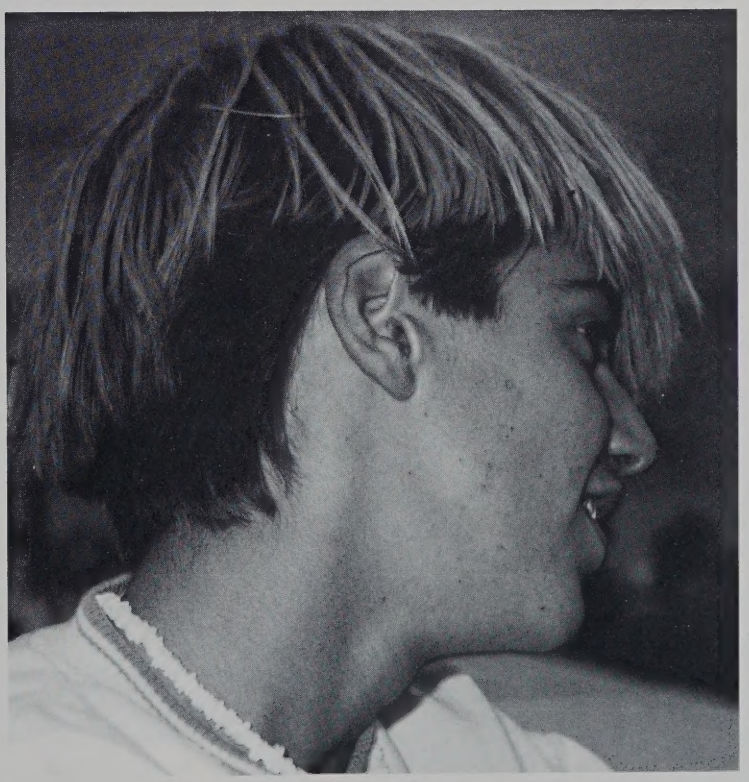
Still, there were those who chose the garb of a non-conformist. Clad in scruffy jeans, hobo vests, and R.E.M. t-shirts, eccentrics displayed their incongruity in a Saks Fifth Avenue world. Others dressed in everything from black leather and metal accessories common in East England to the Metallica t-shirt sported by metal fans.

Everyone knew that style went deeper than what one wears. As a school, Cox had style. It was truly in a class by itself.

An amused Jennifer Hoffman watches as Shelly Clark gets ready for physics.

Flaunting their ski-wear and shades, Lynn Marshall and Danna Johnson sit on top of the world.

Sporting the latest beach styles, Kevin Kratzer goes on a shopping spree.



A new wave in Hairstyles is displayed by Brent Digeronimo.

HO!HO!HO!

Cox Celebrates Christmas '87

Most people would say that it was a traditional Christmas at the beach this year. The malls were decorated and cramped with shoppers; candles burned in almost every house, and smoke spurted from chimneys even though not a single snowflake fell from the sky. But the outside world knew little of what excitement flourished within the confines of Cox High School.

While owners and managers of stores and malls were putting up their traditional ornaments and decorations, homeroom students and teachers were putting their creativity to work in decorating the classroom doors.

The week was highlighted with green and red day. Students showed their school spirit by dressing in the seasonal colors. Students brought cookies, and they bought candy grams to send to friends and "that someone special," as well as to provide funds for student activities. Santa Claus was also another important factor in the Christmas celebration. Students even got their pictures taken with Santa, alias Senior John Fox.

Overall, the Christmas season proved to be the highlight of the school year so far. We could only hope that the enthusiasm of the students during this time would last until the summer.

At one of the many holiday parties thrown by clubs, Christina Lucas indulged.

Adrienne Londeree' puts the finishing touches on her Christmas stockings.

Cindy Bano prefers a candy cane to the cafeteria meals any day of the year.

C. Billups, C. Monger, N. Andrews, D. Tucker, K. Johnson, and K. Pellerin greet Santa.

Full of Holiday cheer are Jenny Duffy, Maren Trout, Bridget, and Nelson Ala.

If You Could Go Anywhere at Christmas Time, Where Would You Go And Why?

Philip Grant — Junior
"I'd spend my Christmas sipping chocolate milkshakes by a warm, cozy fire."

Nicole Spotswood — Senior
"I'd like to spend Christmas in New York City because there is a Santa Claus on every corner."

Amber Agee — Junior
"I'd spend Christmas under the Christmas tree."

Chrissy Liter — Freshman
"I love to ski, my favorite Christmas would be to ski in Aspen."

GIRLS' GRIDIRON

Seniors Huffed and Puffed and Blew the Juniors Down

The day of the game dawned with a cloud-covered sky that threatened heavy thunderstorms. However, the weather was a welcome relief to those seniors and juniors who would be playing. Many had commented that a bright sun could affect the player's vision. The spirits of both teams were high. The juniors were ready to stop the class of 1988's winning streak, and the seniors were out to make it two victories in a row. Practices had been secretive and productive. Confidence was soaring on both sides of the field.

Senior quarterback Cassie Dehm made the first exciting play of the game by recovering a fumble in mid air. She went on from there to win a first down. Seniors also scored the first touchdown. They added two more points by rushing the ball for a two point conversion. By luring the juniors to one side of the field, and successfully maneuvering through the open spaces, the seniors proved that they were better at running than passing, and gained eight points over their rivals.

The juniors later tried this same play unsuccessfully after their stunning sixty yard run to a touchdown. The senior defense resisted, leaving the juniors two points short of a tie. The seniors were assisted throughout the game by a strong kicker, Shannon Collinson, and strategic interceptions by Dinah Catlett.

In the fourth quarter, the juniors drew senior offense too fast off of the line of scrimmage, but senior defense made up for the loss of yardage with their excellent blocking and infinite determination. They held off the juniors to give the seniors victory, making the class of 1988 the first class ever to win in both their junior and senior years. It was a day for records, and a day to remember.

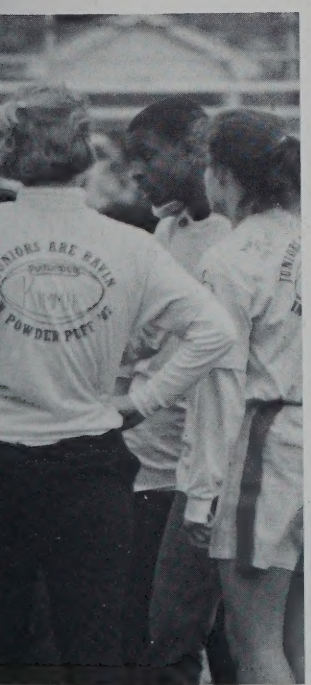
Quarterback Cassie Dehm for the seniors goes back for a pass in the midst of a bedlam.

The juniors huddle for some words to the wise from their coaches.

Senior defensives Shauna Snyder and Shannon Collinson stop junior Cindy Bano in her run for yardage.

Junior Kim Johnson attempts to sack the quarterback as Cassie Dehm runs for an opening.

Senior players Jennifer Usrey and Jen Acosta wait anxiously on the sidelines for the call to battle.



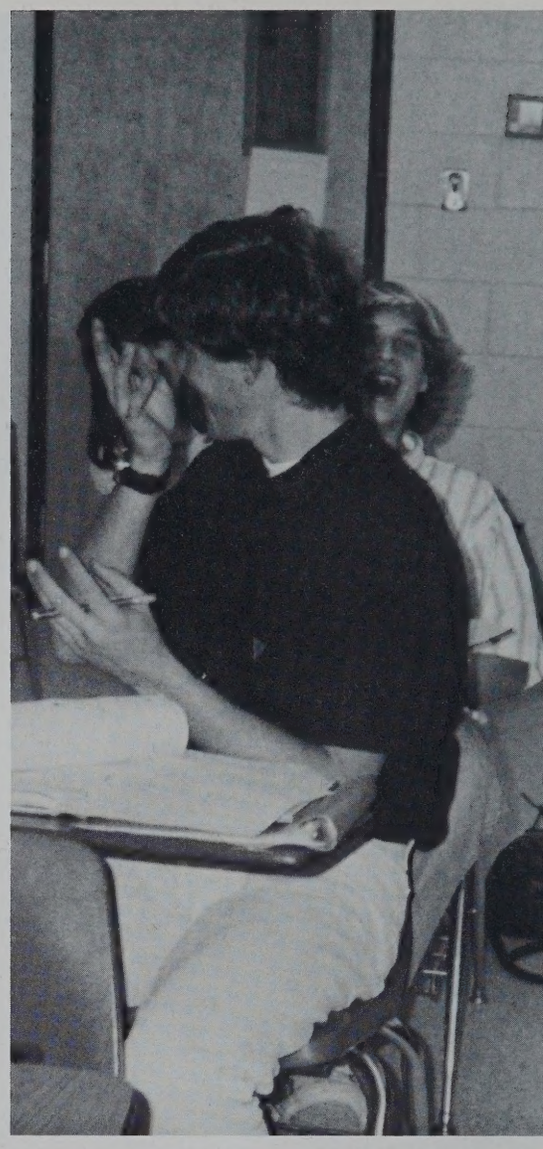
CLASSTIME PASTTIMES

Preventing Insanity!

Within the span of a mere 180 days, every student spends approximately 1200 hours confined inside the walls of a school. Enough to drive one crazy? Well, maybe. But there are interesting ways to avoid those numerous periods of sheer boredom, and prevent what might result in temporary educational insanity.

Of course, there are certain renowned favorites, such as reading magazines (while carefully hidden behind the student in front), doodling, and the most famous of all class-time pasttimes, writing notes. Those who cannot pass the time constructively, however, usually find themselves sinking into a state of oblivion as their minds go wandering into memories of last weekend, or the fabulous date they have Friday night. Still others spend the time putting on makeup or brushing their hair (A word of caution: these particular activities are teachers' hatreds!)

Daily sidetracks are needed by every student, in order to avoid going crazy or fading forever into the monotony of the school day. There is yet to be a person who can keep his mind on school at all times — everyone needs a way to survive those tedious four years of high school.



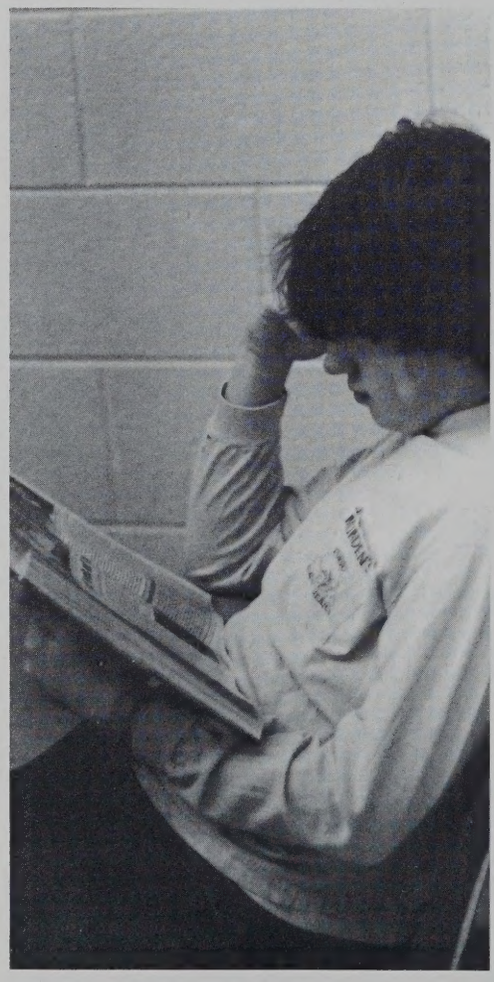
What Do You Daydream About In Class?

Anna-Liisa Bentti — Senior
"Getting a few more moments of precious sleep."

Karri Ellis — Junior
"Waterskiing in Pennsylvania."

Tim McCready — Sophomore
"I dream of starting a country where the preamble states: We the people do not like green eggs and ham. We do not like them Sam I am."

Jen Scofield — Freshman
I think of the sunny beaches and the snowy mountains, the guys, and the fun!"



Bored by the class events, Ross Anderton reads an enthralling book.

Trying to avoid the teacher's beady eyes, Chris Garner slips a note to Chris Wombolt.

Bubble gum bursting on his face, Sean Davenport amuses Bruzer Harris, Lee Stevens, and Debbie Perez.

Obviously unable to keep his eyes open, Chris Garner dozes off.

OH YOU BEAUTIFUL BABY!

The Big Peach Disappears . . .

These days, a high school student's life is filled with stress from homework, deadlines, and school in general. Sometimes, every student thinks back to the days when life was one big peach, when the days were full of playing and having fun. The days of being a baby!

As the years went on, responsibility grew, and the days of sleeping in a crib and wearing diapers seemed like a million years ago. But every once in awhile, everyone likes to get out his old baby pictures and reminisce.

"Awwwwww, wasn't I cute?" is the most common of all feelings one gets when the pictures are brought down from the attic. It's hard to believe that we were ever that little and helpless, but it's even harder to believe that soon, it will be off to college, and on to a life of our own! Somehow, it is comforting to know that there was once a time when life wasn't so hard. Even though the times when life was a big peach have long gone, the memory of them will live on forever in our favorite baby pictures.

REFLECTIONS

. . . On A Glamorous Night

As everyone anxiously waited, the lights began to dim, and the pulsating beat of the music could be heard. Shortly before, Jim Lawrence of WGH Radio had announced that the first scene would be "City Dressing." The clothes were from Elle and the Casual Male. In between each scene, door prizes were given away by, among others, Maxine's, Ragged Robin, and Pizzazz.

The 34 models were in top form for the second scene, "Funky Fashions." These flirty, fun styles went over well with the audience. The clothes came from Jeepers Creepers, which is a unique and popular store at the beach, and the Casual Male.

The formal scene, always a favorite among the students, was next. It was called "Sparkling Nights," and the gowns and tuxedoes were modeled to the sound of Janet Jackson's song "Diamonds." Door prizes were given away again by Mr. Hoots and Mr. Jenkins.

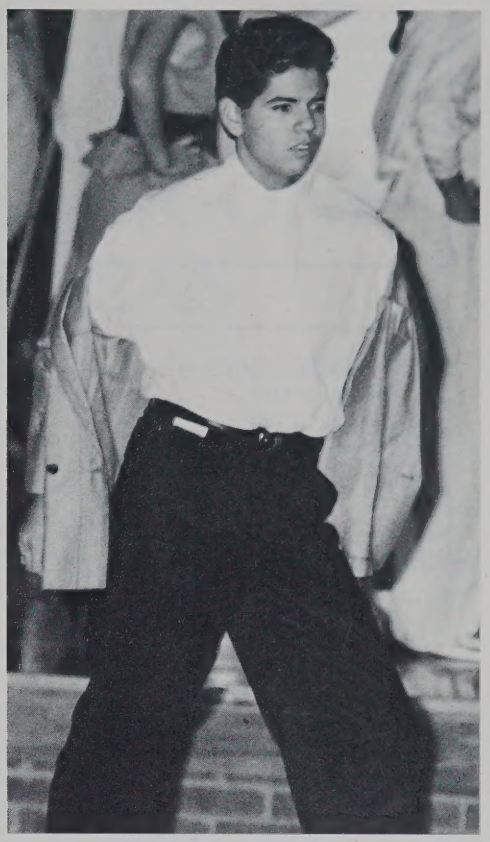
In the final scene there were many screens onstage, with the models standing behind them. All that could be seen were their silhouettes, and thus the name of the scene was "Silhouettes." As each group of models appeared, the screens were pulled away. The clothes were provided by Elle, Lee Kartis Designs, Drennen, and Casual Male. The night was one that provided glamour and entertainment for all who went, and the show indeed was one to "reflect" on.

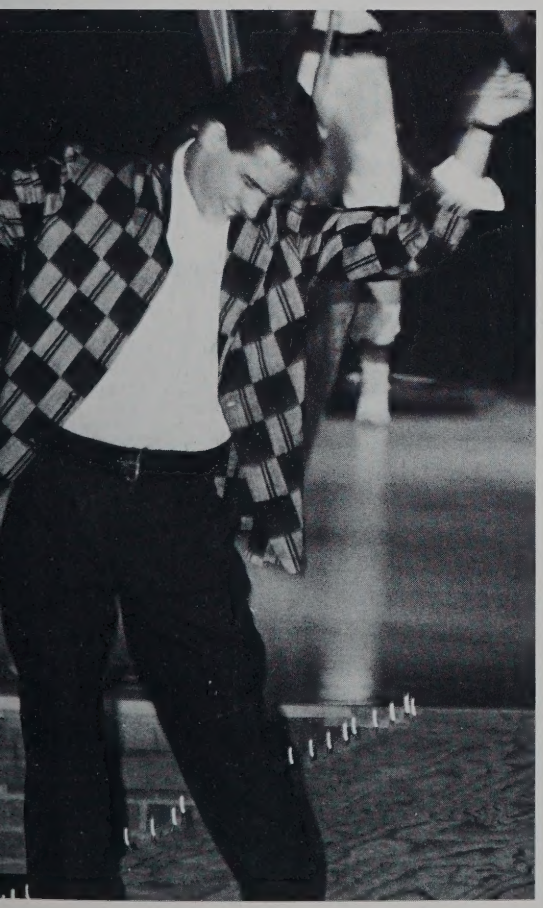
Twirling to the music is Jennifer Hoffman in striped leggings and a flared skirt.

Striking a sultry pose in the "Silhouettes" scene is Carrie Monger.

Snapping to the beat are Susan MacDonald, Stephen Brethauer, and Kieran Sherlock.

Taking off his jacket, Robert Flores dances down the runway.





Front and center is Jennifer Hoffman clad in a sparkling formal.

Obviously enthusiastic about his checkered suit, Chris Kane snaps his fingers and taps his feet.

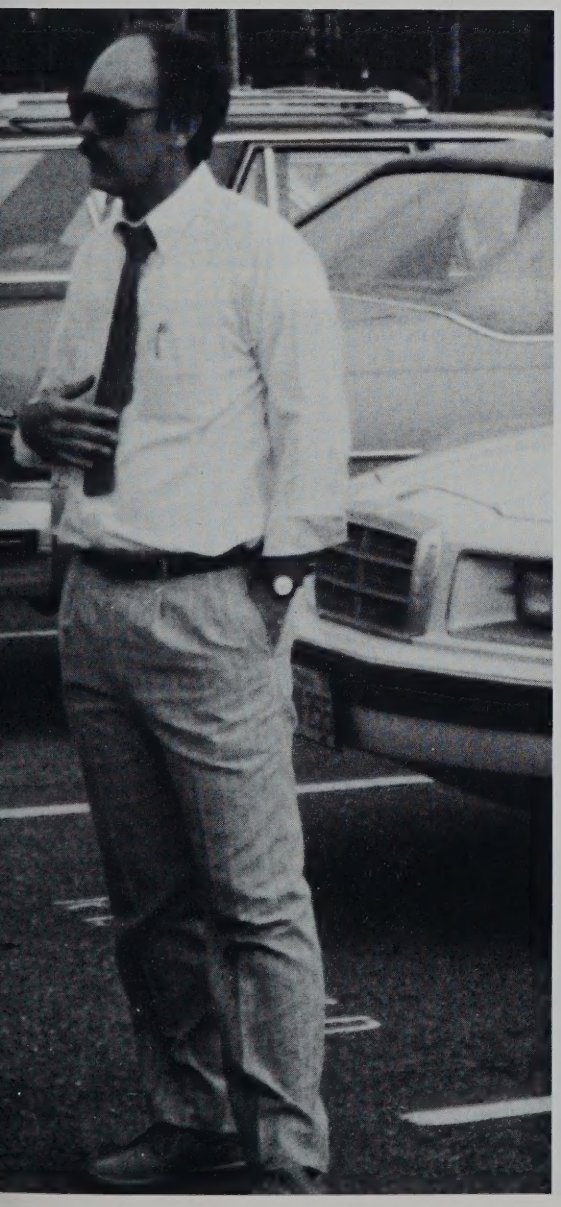
NUMBER ONE IDEAS

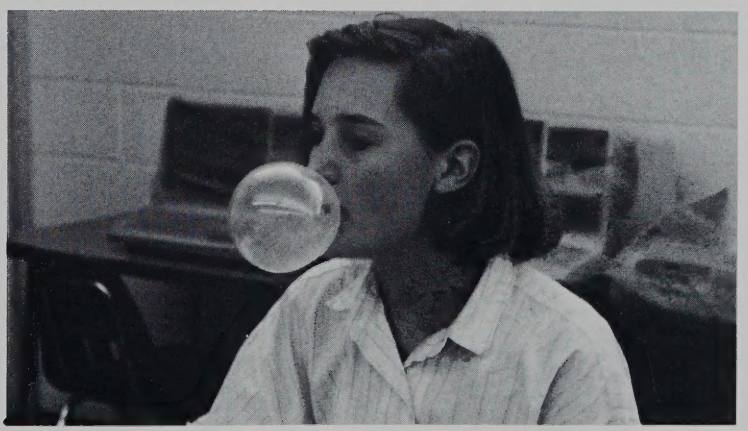
A Survey of Favorites

In a school as large as ours, it is no surprise that there are so many differing opinions about just about everything. On the preceding page are the results of a student survey conducted in January. Included are the top three answers received, as well as the most interesting response. We hope your responses are among the winners.



Favorite teacher — Mr. Hoots.

Attracted to the beach by the waves, Steve McNaughton shows off his talent.



Chewing her favorite flavor gum, Big Red, Heather Christiansen blows a bubble.

TEENAGE CELEBRITIES

Representing the School With Pride.

Every year, near the end of winter, several contests are held to pick the best and brightest at Cox. One such event is the Ms. Cox Pageant, which was held on March 3rd. Nine young girls came together to compete before judges in the areas of talent, evening gowns, and questions & answers. Senior Cindy Billups, who performed a graceful Karate routine, was chosen by the girls as Ms. Congeniality. Tap dancer Leigh Mazach was chosen second runner up, and magician Kathryn Murray first runner up. But Susan MacDonald finally relinquished her crown to a highly talented pianist, senior Cullen Johnson.

About this same time of year, the competition for Neptune Princess is held. One princess is chosen to represent their school in various functions throughout the year, such as the Pungo Strawberry Festival and others, and finally culminating in the Neptune Festival. In 1987, Angie Hughes was chosen over all other juniors to be our princess. Amy Smithwick was also honored by being chosen as part of the royal court. We are proud to have such beautiful and talented girls as ambassadors of our school.

Accompanied by her military escort Mark Wheless, Angie Hughes graciously fulfills her royal duties.

IF YOU COULD BE ANY CELEBRITY, WHO WOULD YOU BE AND WHY?

Heather Miller — Senior "Lauren Becall, because of the time period she lived in is fascinating to me and she never let Bogie dominate."

Sara M. Morrison — Junior "Liz Taylor, because I wish I had lavender eyes."

Ken Coll — Sophomore "Michael Jackson, because I'm bad and he's bad!"

Reena Talreja — Freshman "Probably Sissy Spacek, because I think she's a really good actress!!"

We present to you the 1988 Miss Cox — Cullen Johnson!

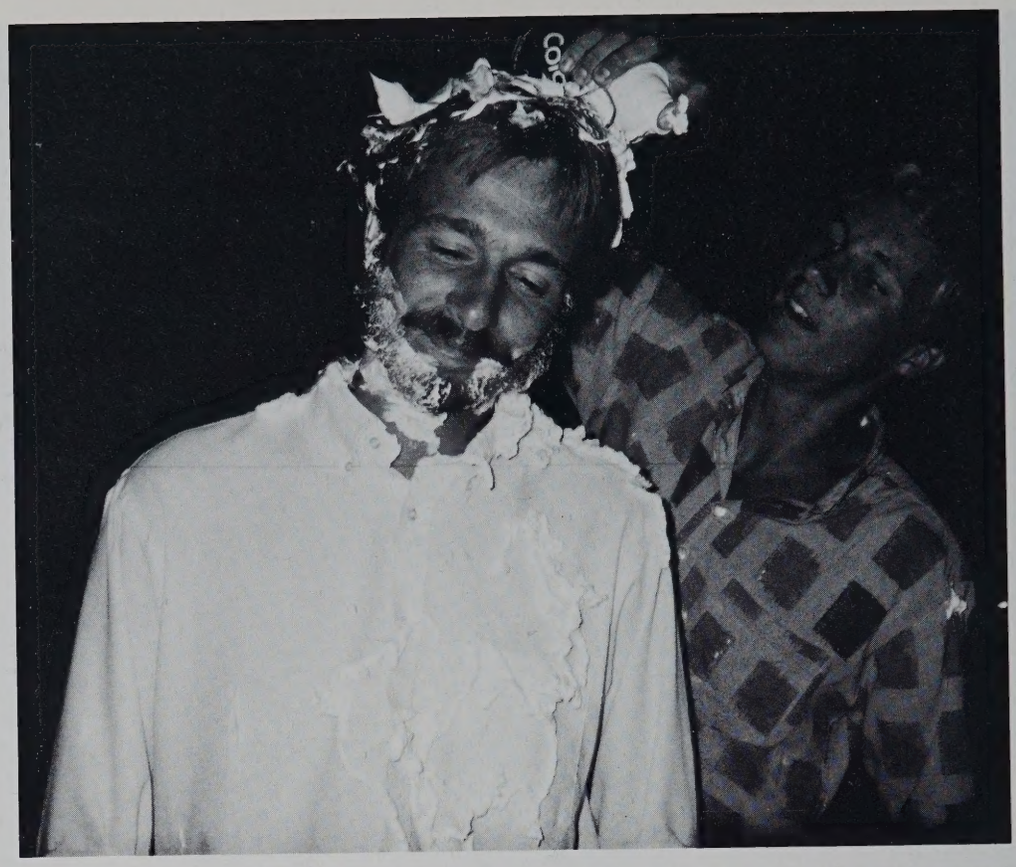
Culminating the evening's events, Miss Cox 1987 Susan MacDonald relinquishes her title.

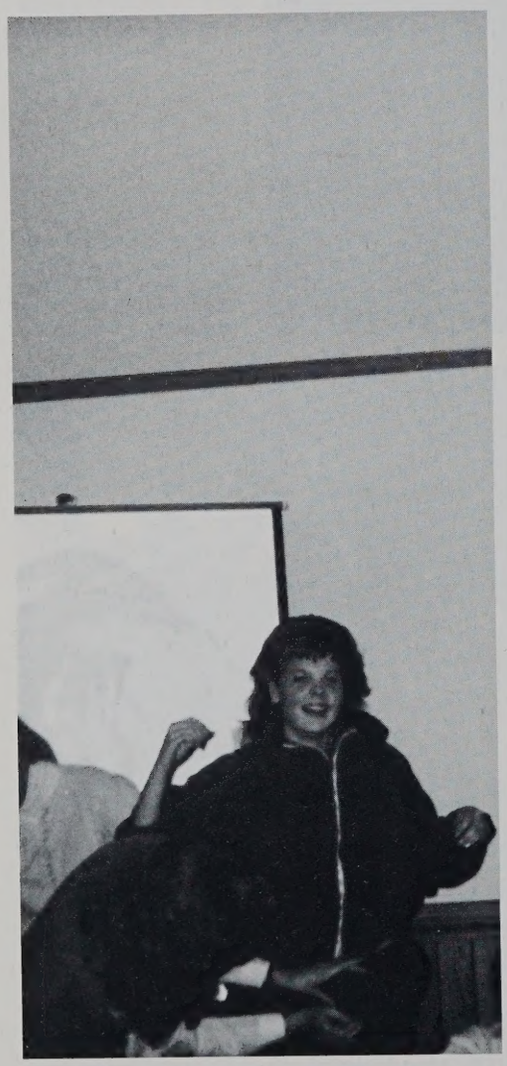
Miss Congeniality Cindy Billups parades across the stage during the evening wear event.

Obviously enjoying her duties, Amy Smithwick participates in the Pungo Strawberry Festival.

While Doug Giesen plays the role of a barber, Kevin Kattwinkel models the new hairstyle.

Using all his hot air, Bobby Bell blows up the balloons while Tami Thompson ties them and awards them to Lisa McKenzie.





During class competition, Lisa McKenzie represents the senior class.

SUDDENLY THE FUN BEGAN

It Dawned On Us, We Were At Young Life

What did this Wednesday night mean to you? "A chance to get together with friends," "minutes", "singing some favorite songs", "class competition", "A way to meet new people, especially those of the opposite sex!", "A great time", "A break from studying" , "McDonald's!"

These are just a few reflections. They can only mean one thing: Young Life. When the clock struck 7:30 on a Wednesday night, exciting things happened. About 100 Cox students gathered at a different home each week. They sang songs, took part in the famous Young Life minutes, and learned about the Christian way of life. When you thought it was all over, everyone headed toward McDonald's.

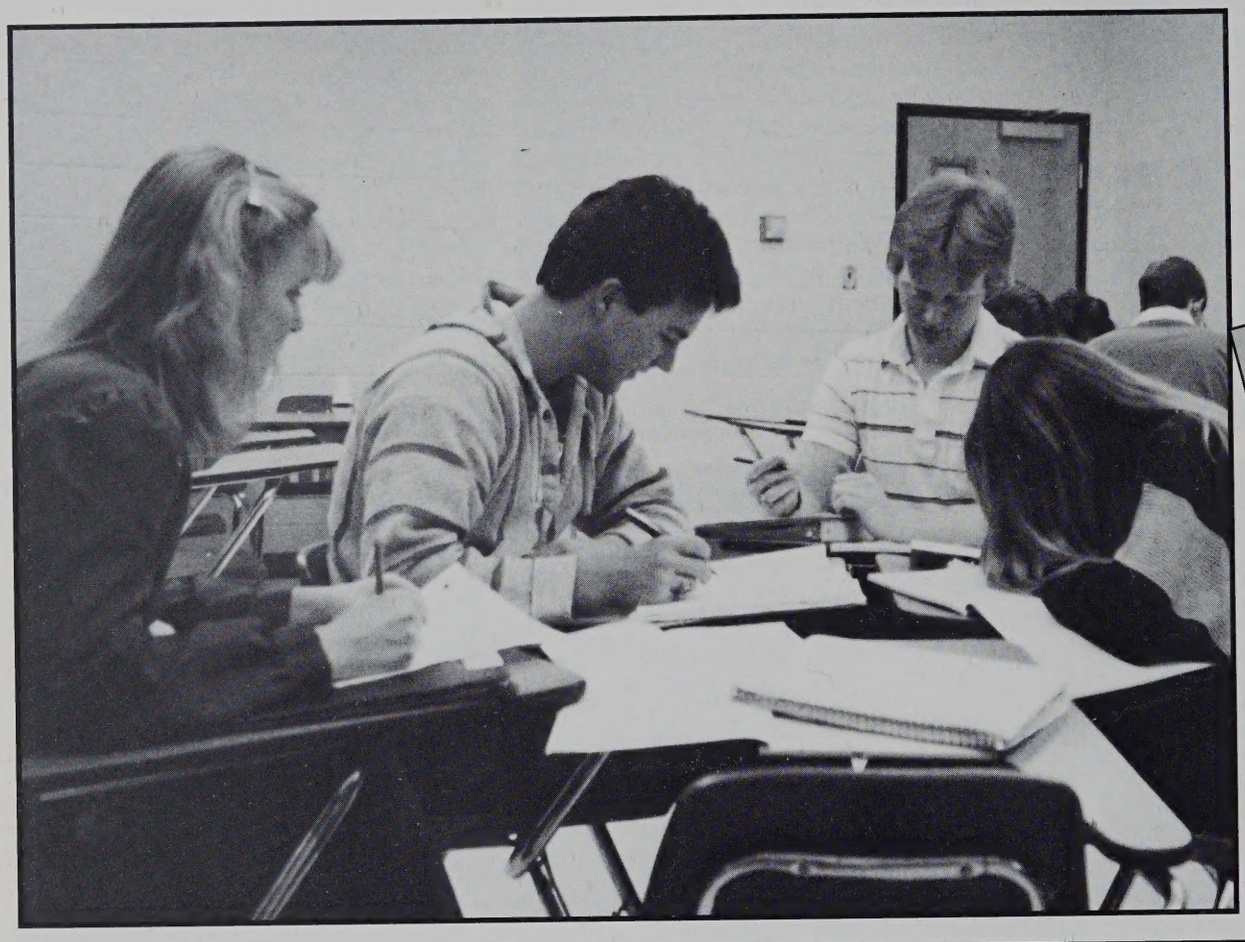
Last summer, Young Life took a week's vacation to Windy Gap, a resort in North Carolina. There were no rules, just "strong Suggestions." The food was great, and there were people from many other states. Everyone had a great time.

In the fall, numerous Young Life clubs spent a weekend in Nags Head. There again, students met friends from other schools, and everyone had a fantastic time. Young Life welcomed everyone!

Stuffed with balloons, Heather Olson giggles while the balloons are being popped.

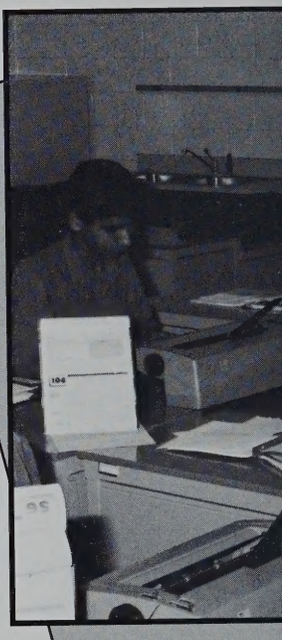
As they have a patch sewn to the seat of their pants, Kevin Will, Ray Sokolowski, and Blake Thompson are afraid they might get poked with the needle.

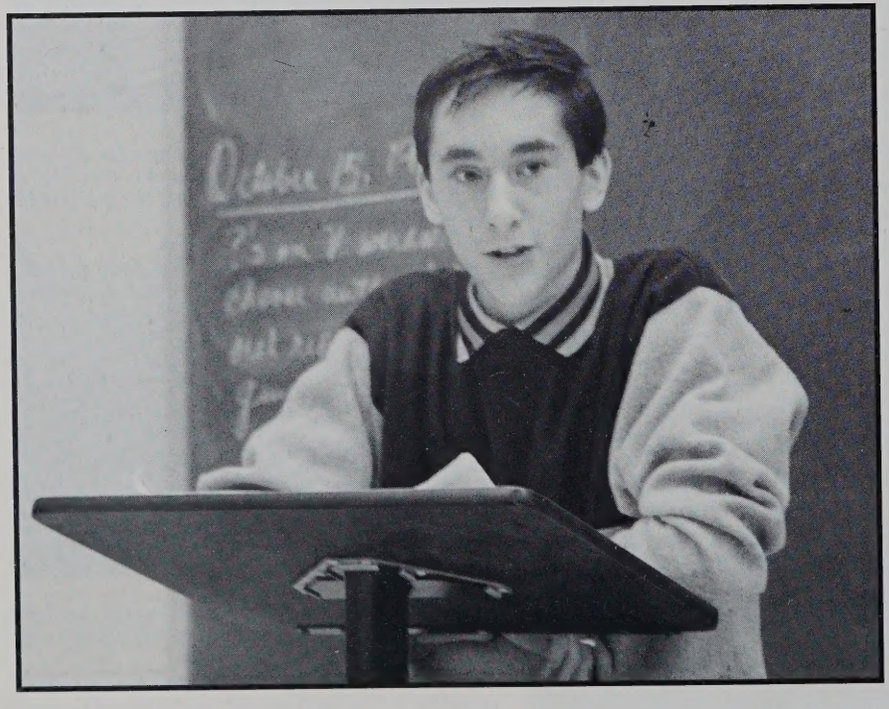
After winning a door for the "door prize," Kristin Coll decides to join Sheryl Kolwaski and Pat Finn to "make it Mac tonight."



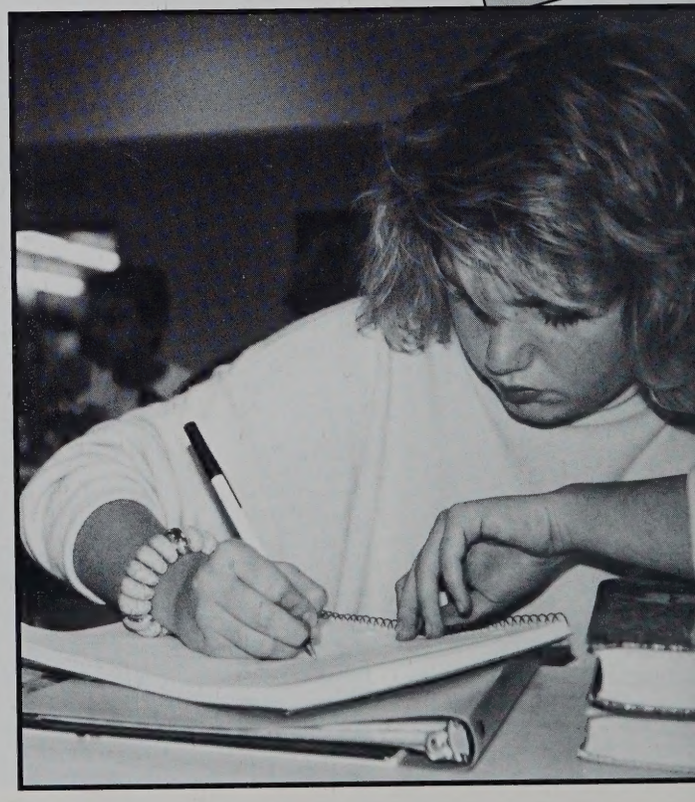
Group effort gets the work done for Shelley Hunter, Tim Wilson, Brian Clark and Christina Short.

Tapping away at his typewriter, Jeremy Burt gets his job complete.





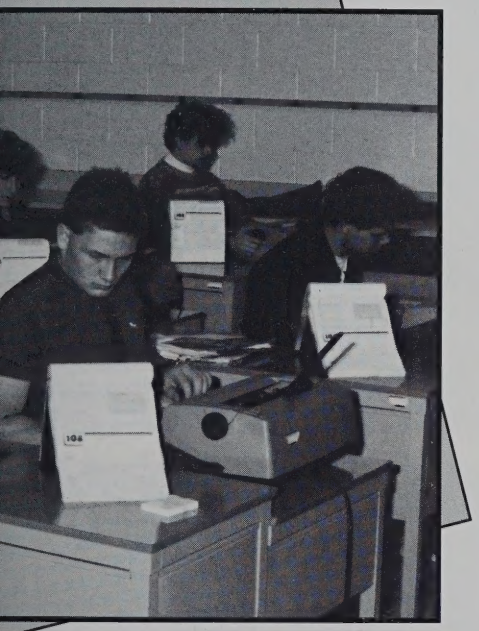
The dreaded oral report is almost over for John Pierce.

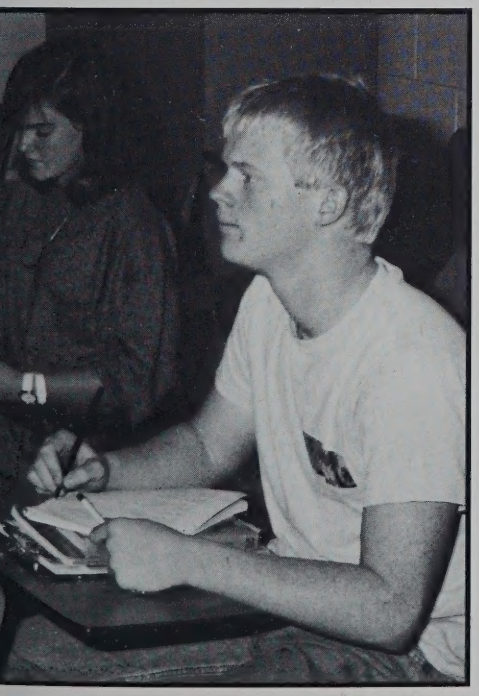


Lunch or no lunch the work must be done.

SUDDENLY

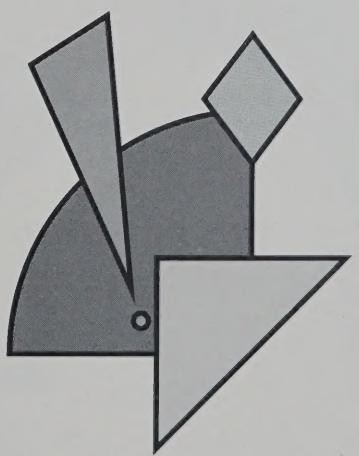
We Realized





Notes, notes, and more notes — Mark Alphin can't escape them.

It is said that you learn a new thing every day. Some people even learn two. It doesn't need to be a trigonometry identity, or the 2nd through 4th Amendments, just anything that broadens your horizons. It could be that you found a shorter route to class after the lunch bell rings or discovered which clocks in the hallway display the correct time. Students might have learned how to serve a volleyball or the correct uses of "who" and "whom". Either way, students chose their curriculum and did their best most of the time — but that didn't mean they didn't have fun. Occasionally, even the most diligent students took a break. Students' achievements were recognized by the significant number who went on to higher education. Success was the result of hard work, determination, and a positive attitude.



Another budding scientist, Duane Gabor, fails to realize that all the stirring in the world will not boil the water unless it is heated.

Under the instruction of Lee Hark, AP Chemistry student Heather Miller learns that making your own sculpting mousse is cheaper than buying it.

Charles Clarke and his lab partner run a test on black boot leather.

TO BOLDLY GO . . .

Where No Student Has Gone Before

Space: the final frontier. This is the attitude of many students when they approach those last credits needed for graduation. They often ask, "How many science credits do I need to graduate? One? Two? Does science fiction count?" There are some students, however, who approach the science curriculum with a little less pessimism and a little more steadfastness than most. With a smile on their faces and a gleam in their eyes, they boldly go where no man has gone before: the science classroom. All the beauty is contained in a mole conversion equation. Perhaps their loveliness in the dissection of a frog. Regardless of what's their pleasure, there is no love lost between these two separate groups. Nevertheless, everyone will agree that the science curriculum is one of the most demanding and strenuous.

COUNTING ON YOUR FINGERS

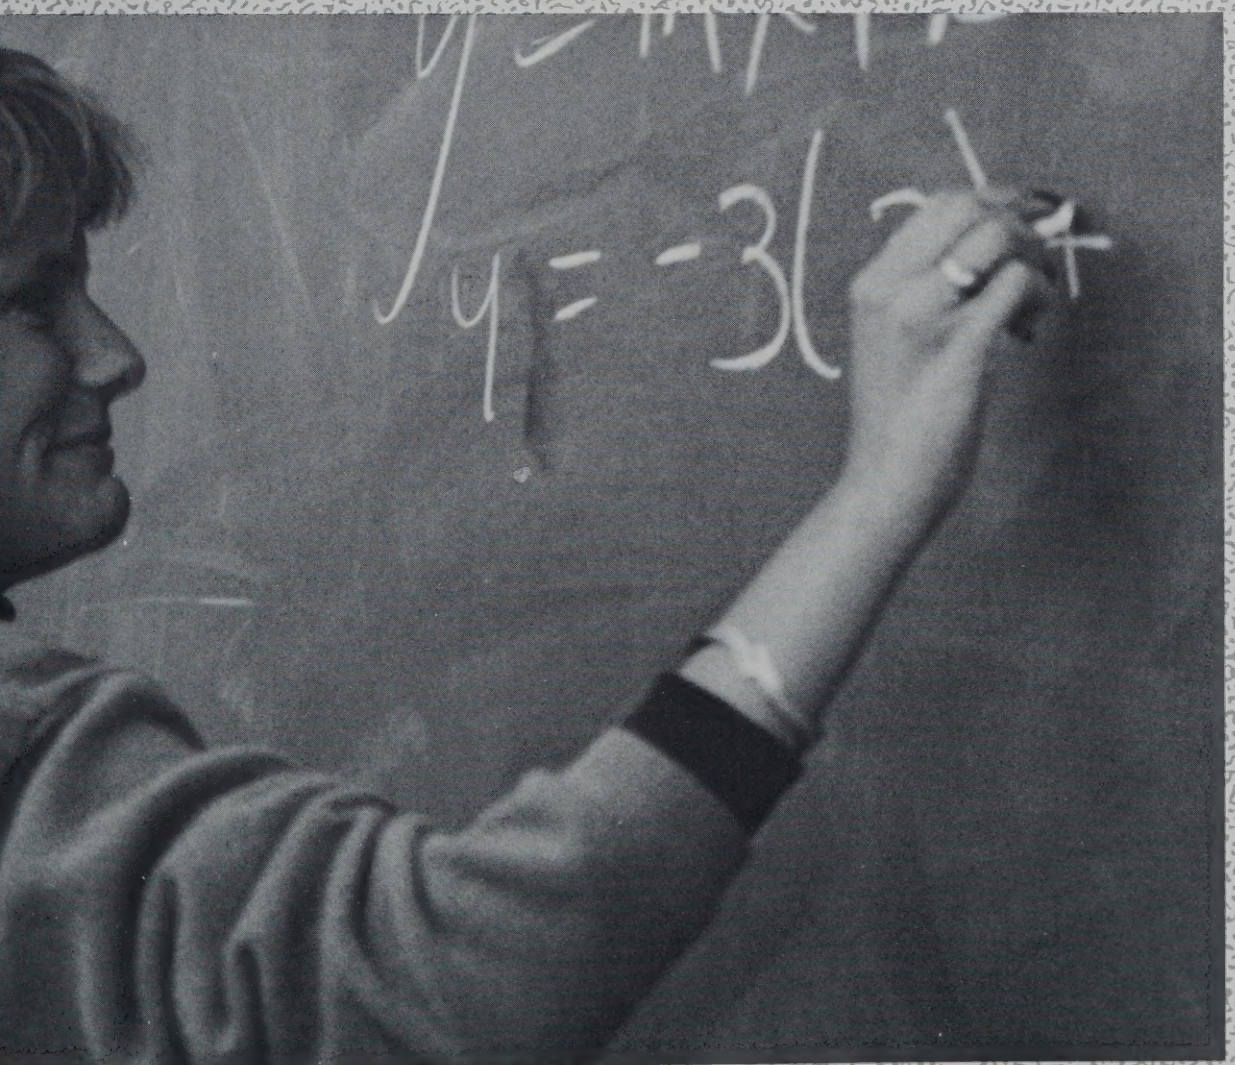
Math Can Be Enjoyable

For some, mathematics was the perennial obstacle to earning straight A's. For others, it proved to be the pinnacle of their high school career.

With the infinite patience of teachers and the superb intellect of students, math was a breeze. To get to the zenith in high school math, AP Calculus students slaved over the books for hours and wore their erasers to the metal. All through the sequence Algebra I and II, Geometry, Trigonometry, and Math Analysis, mathematicians survived.

> "Mathematics is the queen of sciences."
> — Carl Gauss

However, the best results are sometimes elusive. "Math is like a good looking date. Once you think you are going out, she calls you up and says she can't go because her uncle just came into town, or something like that," commented Lee Hark.



Most people can find no humor in a slope-intercept equation, but if Tally Sales does, well then more power to her!

ALL THE WORLD IS A STAGE, AND THE ARTS MAKE IT FINE

Students Channel Creativity Into A World Seen Through Their Eyes

Articulation, creativity . . . perfection were the key words dominant in any aspiring performer or artist's mind.

Under the supervision of Mr. James Garrett, drama students quickly learned that acting was not necessarily "ad libbing." A skill that students practiced ardently was learning to lose their inhibitions by being made to imitate an animal or mimicking other people. Once someone lost those inner fears he was ready for the next level of drama.

Enunciation and rhythm were the goals in choir class. Broadway hopefuls listened attentively to keynote instructions directed by Mr. William Boyll. Auditions were mandatory for Madrigals, premiere choral ensemble.

> "On stage he was natural, simple, affecting; 'Twas only that when he was off he was acting."
> — Oliver Goldsmith

Art classes allowed for the students' creativity and talents. From onion paper and canvas to scratch boards and clay, originality took shape. The four levels of art and AP Art 5 covered all the corners of the artistic world ranging from simple line drawings to the complex fabrications of impressionistic painting.

Fine Arts played a significant role in the school curriculum. Although previously thought of as "gimmie" classes, the arts proved to be a needed outlet for artistic talent and a challenge for students who enrolled in the program.

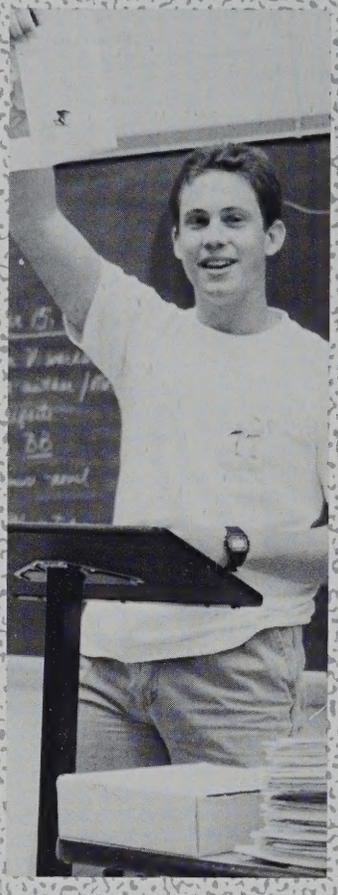
SO YOU WANT A LITTLE CULTURE?

Speaking in Tongues

Parlez-vous Francais? Ablos Espagnol? SpriKenzie doitche? To appreciate cultural differences, the Virginia Beach Schools wanted foreign languages to be an important part of the curriculum.

> "Life is a foreign language; all men mispronounce it."
> — Christopher Morely

Foreign languages showed students different perspectives of the world. Classes were a looking glass onto diverse people and their cultures. The Russian language was added to the agenda of French, German, Latin, and Spanish. Not only did students acquire knowledge about the Russian language, but they learned of the Soviet people — particularly meaningful in light of the Washington Summit. In the English classes, instructors tried to convey that the same mystery and intrigue identified with a foreign culture is present in the English language. They wanted students to develop the same love of language and to value English literature.



Brandishing his book on Herman Melville high above his head, Duane Gabor informs his English class that he will now discuss, in depth, the 3,422 pages of material to his left.

Some students, like Yvonne Jones, Kyllie Spencer, and Kieron Sherlock, listen attentively to Madame Cruser's humorous exploits, while some, like Bree Tolleton, are content to stare into space.

HISTORY NEVER REPEATS ITSELF

The Past And Present Combine To Teach Students About Life

Throughout the years, it has never ceased to amaze students that they must learn so much about the past and yet more history is occurring daily.

The familiar phrase, "learning from mistakes," was a dominant cliche in most government classes. Seniors found that government was a repeat of U.S. History, only this time, they had to apply their knowledge of the philosophy of the Founding Fathers of 1787 to nuclear testing treaties of 1987 and 1988.

The caves of the Cro-Magnon man were explored by World History students. As their travel through time progressed with each passing regime, they realized that world history would never end. The students of tomorrow will have more pages in their history books to read.

> "Those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it."
> George Santayana

World Cultures was a slight change from world history, with more emphasis on the current world scene. Students learned of ancient as well as modern cultures and how they affected the expanse of time.

"Give me history and give me rest!" After intensive study, many U.S. History students request some respite. In class, they learned the basics that would construct a good foundation for senior government.

OPPORTUNITIES KNOCKING AT EVERY DOOR

Students Mean Business

The Business Department has made many jobs possibilities open for students wanting to go into this field of study. Options for this line of work are endless. Teachers start with business management to familiarize the student with a somewhat extensive vocabulary; trying to understand the language of a stock broker or business manager is like deciphering ancient Hebrew to most anyone else. Fashion Merchandising II allows students to work outside the school, giving them the valuable experience of working in the real job market. The best thing about the business courses here at Cox is that is that it is for everyone. No one will ever know who will be successful and who will not because of business' wide range of opportunities. Who knows? The person sitting next to you in your typing class could be the next Merril Lynch or the president of AT&T. With proper training the business world guarantees success.

Jalene Watts gives up the task of typing and once again resorts to writing.

Word processor Kristi Anderson is pleased to find that her latest paper is flawless; however, her classmate, Janet Fike, is horrified to learn that she has accidentally erased her assignment.

A.P. . . . ADVANCED PLACEMENT . . . ADVANCED PAIN

Suggestions For The College-Bound Student

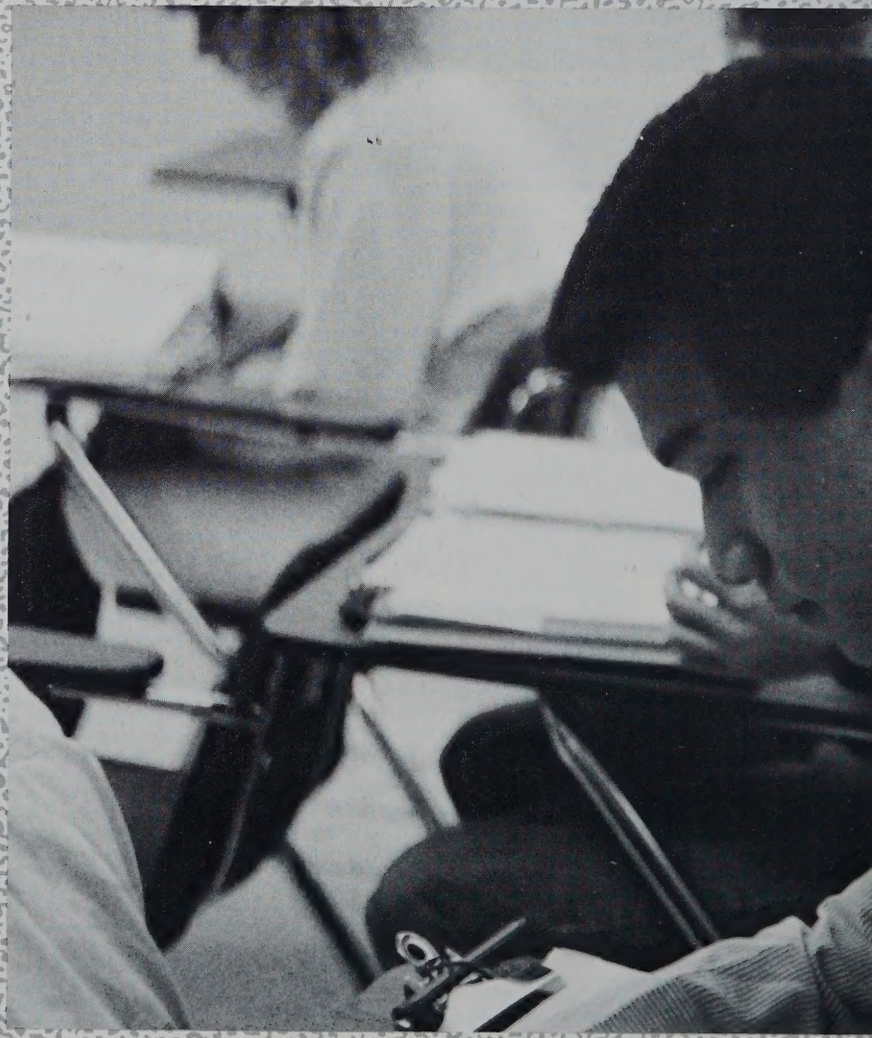
The A.P. classes gave "motivated" students the opportunity to spend a good bit of their time frying their brains for a grand pipe dream — COLLEGE CREDIT. What exactly is college credit? Well, research has not yet uncovered all of the ramifications it presents to modern science. The people on the College Board feel they have the answer to the question, "Why does anyone want college credit?" They will offer it to anyone willing to donate $54 (make checks payable to the College Board) and three hours of his time. The only additional criterion is to achieve an acceptable score on the exam.

> "I endorse the concept of offering A.P. courses and admire students who take them."
> — Virginia James

Advanced Placement classes were a valuable asset to the college-bound scholar. Even if a student opts not to pay up for the exams in mid-May, the A.P. experience can be very beneficial. Typically, many students said, "It looks good on a transcript." No . . .? All right, maybe it has no value. The students who earn 4's or 5's would refute that claim and argue that the enterprise was quite worthwhile.

AP Chemistry student Tracy Miller dons her lucky leprechaun hat in order to insure her experiment's success.

Joyfully displaying her near-empty backpack, accelerated student Leigh Mazak is pleased with herself because of a rare night of no homework.



Calculus student Jen Acosta pouts when her integrated function comes out, um, unintegrated.

Staring blankly at the board, Jeff Stanfield looks distraught.

AP History student Scott Eun balances a tough schedule with many extracurricular activities.

AP History student Danielle Mayette is overjoyed with another five on her AP essay.

RUNNING THE GAUNTLET

Students Prepare For College

What makes an outstanding student? Hours of frustration, anger, and fear. It is pushing the mind to its outer limits and beyond. It is worrying whether or not it is possible to make it to lunch without getting burned by one teacher or another.

Sleep seems to be one of the things forgotten when trying to manage AP or superior classes, clubs, sports, a part-time job, and a social life. It is not uncommon to see such a student pulling out his hair on a Monday afternoon, screaming that if Friday does not come soon, drastic measures would have to be taken!

"You gotta want it!"
— Glen LaFerriere

Many students stumble through the halls after a long night of studying for tests and other assignments muttering, " . . . College Transcript, it will look good on my College Transcript." Why else would students subject themselves to four years of this masochistic form of torture?

No matter what, the general consensus is that those who excel work hard to do so. The only reward is at the end of those four long years when that letter of acceptance from the college of your choice!

DUELING
At Sunset

Throughout the years we have shouted and cheered for our teams as they scored the winning point and defeated the threatening rival. We have cried and been disappointed when that winning point was scored by the opposing team. We have also scaled the heights of state championships and seen the dawn of athletic careers. And we have seen the dusk of stardom; we have felt the pain of injury.

Throughout all the games, meets and matches, we have never lost our spirit. Always striving, ever practicing, we strengthened that spirit. As twilight dims on 1988, we have earned the respect of friends as well as foes — we have already won.

WHO'S CATCHING

Girls' Softball Teams Hit The District Hard

"Who's Catching?" Cathy Fosina and the rest of the softball team seemed to catch every ball that came at them. Coach Arthur Koeppen had nothing but praise for his girls.

Senior Cathy Fosina brought talent and experience to the team as catcher for her fourth year. Senior Caddy Wood struck out batter after batter as a pitcher and was equally effective as an outfielder. Senior Geraldine Maraia kept the runners from stealing at first base and Heather Mcfillin made the All-Beach District Team as an Outfielder. The team was lucky to have such fine seniors to lend their experience to the team.

Not to be outdone, the underclassmen brought their own talented players to the team. Hayley Baer as a shortstop and pitcher played with skill all her own. Junior Cassie Dehm fielded her way to a spot on the Second-Team Beach District as an outfielder.

This fine group united to form a team that tied for second in the district with Bayside and Kempsville. "The girls played hard and looked out for each other on and off the field" said Coach Koeppen. The girls' softball team used their combined skill to make the best of their season.

A SWINGING TIME

Boys' Baseball Team Hit It Off

Baseball grounded out a great season, walking away with five players ranking at the district level. Mark Barker, first in runs batted in and steals and voted the team's most valuable player, was placed on the first All-Beach Team. Keith Hinson, Jason Mckenzie, Kevin Sheay, and Lars Pierson all received honorable mention.

In hopes of improving their batting averages, the team purchased a new batting machine. Although this didn't result in any grand slams, the team finished 9-9 overall.

One memorable game was with First Colonial where a game-saving play prevented First Colonial from scoring. The game ended 3-2.

Coach Vince Marshall said that his two top players were seniors Paul O'Neill and Mark Barker. Other seniors included Rob Bagby, Frank Palermo, Kevin Sheay, John Jansen and Lars Pierson. Junior Keith Hinson led the team in Earned Run Average, pitching nearly every game.

After losing third baseman Lars Pierson to a shoulder injury, Sean Davenport came in and added an excellent glove at third base. The pitcher-catcher combination of Keith Hinson and Ryan Turner will be one of the best next year, with all the experience, the baseball team has something to look forward to.

STRIKING FORWARD

Girls' Soccer Team Kicks Off New Tradition

"First Annual Kick-Off Classic" was quite an event according to Coach Terri Sawyer and the girls' soccer team. "It was a good tournament and a lot of fun to host. We hope it will become a tradition at Cox," said Coach Sawyer.

All the girls enjoyed the season and several outstanding team members were really "on the ball." Captain Lori Grubbs, one of three seniors on the team, dedicated her time to afterschool practices everyday throughout the season. Captain Becky Hasselman distinguished herself by garnering the Most Valuable Player Award. Completing the Senior line up was Liz Prodan, who received the Coach's Award.

Adding a great deal as the team beat Kempsville were Tracy Johnson, Cathy Kawecki, Carol Vest, Kelly Kasperbauer and Simone Augsburger. "The best game of the season," summarized the sweeper Shannon Collinson, "was the defeat of rival First Colonial at the end of the season."

Soccer has become an extremely popular sport in the area with a great parity among competitive teams. The addition of the Annual Kick-Off Classic only enhanced the opportunity for more of the sport, a development which was enthusiastically received.

Girl's Tennis Team Fought With Decorum

During one match, senior captain Mandy Davis held up the honor of the Lady Falcons in a superb manner. When attacked by her opponent who said "You spoiled, rich brat," Davis remained silent and calmly continued the match; Davis defeated her fiery opponent soundly.

This year, the tennis team was younger than in recent years. With only two returning starters, the team was not expected to do well. With a 6-6 record, however, the girls rose far above expectations.

The practices began early in the season. Most of the team members took lessons and/or practiced all summer. Coach Glen LaFerriere even started new training practices in the summer months.

BACKHAND WIN

Boys' Tennis Team Wins District Title

For the last three years the boys' tennis team has been first in the district. This season proved to be no exception when the team, coached by Leon Hoots, took second in the Regional Tournament.

Senior Peter Brinkman, backed by four years of experience, took the Beach District Title for the second year in a row. Brinkman and Senior Jimmy Burritt placed fourth in the State as a doubles team.

Scott Branum brought younger talent to the team as a Freshman and the fourth ranked member this year. Junior Kevin Segerbloom helped lead the team to victory as the sixth ranked tennis player. Seniors Cal Trafton and Wayne Barrineau rounded out the team, ranking third and fifth respectively. Says Hoots, "The team accomplished what they were capable of. They set their goals high and give 100% each match and came out winners."

With the skill and experience the boys' tennis team possess, they proved they have the talent to be a winning team!

SPRINTING AHEAD

Outdoor Track Teams Help Individuals Stand Out

Down for the mile relay. Set to win. Bang! and they're off. The crowd screams wildly with spirited cheers. The pavement pounded harder with every quickening step.

Tense moments were the norm for the outdoor track team. For instance, there was a moment during the last race in the second meet of the season: losing for tying depended on that race. The last sprinter came across the line and the Falcons tied the meet with Princess Anne.

Outstanding individuals represented the girls team at Regional and State Tournaments. Co-Captains Natalie Taylor and Jaqui Kelley, Juniors Lori Cuffie and Eden Zamerin, and Freshman Kristy Jordan ran well at Regionals, Jaqui went on to State to compete in the two-mile race.

The boys' team was led by Co-Captains Gary Matthews and Mark Bowen. Junior Mike Hopper and Sophomore Jeff Scoffield participated in the Regional Tournament and Jeff ran on to State.

Both teams were coached by Greg Killough who was assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Hartranft. Coach Killough measured the success of the season by significant individual improvement. In that sense both the girls' and boys' track teams had an outstanding season. Says Killough, "They were a young team with a lot of potential. In three years we'll be the team to reckon with." However, with so many young competitors, it's hard to say just how well they'll do in a few years. The team definitely has the talent; now, it's all up to them what they choose to do with it.

RUNNING THROUGH THE WIND

Indoor Track Teams Fly Around the Outdoor Track

INDOOR track you say? FAH! For any distance over 55 meters, the runners didn't know what an indoor track was. Forced to run through some of the coldest and windiest weather in years, the Falcons' indoor track teams made do and turned out some fast times.

Led by Captain Mike Hopper, the boys' team did well. Forced to teach many young newcomers what a track was or what field events were, the team was able to send two of its runners to the Regional Tournament. Mike Hopper represented the team in the five hundred meter sprint and Jeff Scoffield ran in the 3200 meter run.

The girls' team hit their stride and walloped Kellam and Bayside High Schools. Led by Captain Margaret Hurt, the girls' indoor track team sent several girls to Regionals and State. These include Karen Christians, Dana Reid, Jennifer Scoffield, Iris Kammholz, Heather Laurence, and Wendy Rohlfs. Freshman sensation Jennifer Scoffield went on to represent the team at State in the 1600 and 3200 meter runs.

Both of these indoor track teams faced the bad weather and cold temperatures and conquered the track. Newcomers added strength and vitality to a team plagued by the loss of talented graduates. The few returning runners lent their many talents to the grinding mill that is called Indoor Track.

RUNNING BEFORE DAWN

Cross Country Team Rose To The Challenge

Being a runner on the cross country team meant getting up at the crack of dawn for early morning practices. It meant time trials in the pouring rain. It meant setting a personal record, then breaking it. Most of all, however, it meant winning.

Suddenly, for both the girls' and boys' teams, the hard work started to pay off. Captain Heather Miller had this to say about the season's runners: "This was the most dedicated and hard-working team Cox has ever had. We made a permanent place in the beach district." Practice was seven days a week. Weekdays there were two practices a day, one in the morning and one immediately after school. On the average, a grand total of more than fifty miles were run each week!

The reward was both teams placing an impressive sixth in the region, the best the teams have done in four years. At the regional meet, senior co-captain Erik Townsend ran his best time ever, finishing first on the boys' team. Another senior, Ricky White, was second. Margaret Hurt and Heather Miller also ran well in the regional meet; both ran their personal best.

Other outstanding performances were made by star runner Jeff Scofield. During the season, Jeff set a Mt. Trashmore course record. Also, freshman Jennifer Scofield qualified to compete in the state meet.

It comes as no surprise that Coach Killough expected the best. "He was the real motivating force behind our team", explains Erik Townsend, "and because of this our team performed well." With captains Erik Townsend, Jeff May and Heather Miller to lead the way, the team had no problem rising to the challenge of cross country racing.

HARD HITTING ACTION

Football Team Has A Bone Crushing Season

As the football season began, Cox country echoed with the sounds of screaming crowds, shuttering grandstands, cheers, and clashing of helmets.

Combining talent and teamwork during the first match-up against Princess Anne, junior John McKinney led the Falcons to a 45-22 victory. However, Falcon spirit turned to dismay in the second game when McKinney was hit hard. The severe blow to his knee kept him out of the game and on crutches for the remainder of the season.

Nonetheless, senior co-captain and quarterback, Keith Hinson, pulled the team together. Passing a total of 702 yards for the season, Hinson did an outstanding job.

Senior co-captains Jeff Stanfield and Jamie Moore's teamwork and leadership capabilities produced an amazing group of offensive lineman. In addition, Chris Piersen was chosen as a defensive back for the All-district team.

The season was marred by the loss of a young, promising running back, John McKinney. However, his rushing performance served as an inspiration to propel the football program forward.

A YEAR OF FIRSTS

Cheerleaders Have The Winning Spirit

For the cheerleaders, the dawn of some new ideas were put into practice for the first time ever. Cheerleaders received new uniforms, a different sponsor, as well as a new system of merits and demerits. They could also be seen doing a commercial for Farm Fresh/Giant stores and performing at a Cox Cable banquet. Both have never been done in our history of cheerleading.

"These cheerleaders are better this year than they've ever been." said co-captain Lisa McKenzie. Practice, which began in the mornings over the summer, has continued with 'practice perfect' after school. Both captains, Candie Marshall and Lisa McKenzie, worked especially hard this year. Organizing pep rallies, figuring out line-ups, and making schedules took up a lot of their time. Other seniors on the squad included Kim Byerly, Kelly Buck, Angie Hughes, and Missy Bell.

"These cheerleaders have more spirit and genuine enthusiasm than I've ever seen," comments Candie Marshall. "We're like a family, if someone has a problem, we sit down and help her out." Coming to practice and games together has resulted in a close friendship among everyone on the squad. Add that to their ability to maintain grades in school and their talent to cheer and it's easy to see who has kept the winning spirit.

FIRST LINE GO!!

Field Hockey's Summer Practice Pays Off

The field Hockey team members ended their summer vacation 3 weeks early to condition their minds and bodies in order to realize their potential as players ... and become champions!

They became physically fit and mentally tough through spirals, multiple endlines, file runs, relays, tags, and Saturday morning practices. They changed from individuals with differences into a team with one unified idea.

The team completed the first round of district play with a 5-1 record. They went on to finish the season second in the best District in the State.

The captains, Kristen Horton and Sherri Miles, offered leadership, a sense of tradition, and their fine stickwork skills to the relatively inexperienced team. Seniors Jenny Connor and Amy Craig gave the team confidence in the midfield while Simone Augsburger served as the "work-horse" right wing on the forward line. Trisport athlete Heather Davis shared her enthusiasm for competition. Kristen, Sherri, and Amy were recognized by the District coaches as top players.

The team experienced hard work, winning and losing, thrill and disappointment. The team shared their talents and personalities for one goal ... to be the best they could be ... and at that they were champions.

Golf Team Puts In A Good Stroke

Led by seniors Brandon Boyd and Matt Beech, the golf team combined talent and experience to put the ball into the winning hole.

Opening the season with three preseason victories against tough teams, hopes were high. "We had the best season in all the years that I have been coaching," remembered head coach Tom Smith. His enthusiasm was boundless and appropriate; the team performed to a tee with a 6-3 record.

Although the golf team rolled by and missed qualifying for the district match by a single point, the enthusiasm did not diminish. As individuals, Matt Beech and Warnie Conley competed in the regional tournament. Conley went on to further distinguish himself in the state finals.

Mr. Tom Smith's coaching expertise brought an unknown sport into the limelight. However, it was the young men who played that truly brought the golf team up to par.

MIGHTY GRAPPLERS

Wrestling Team Continues a Winning Tradition

Unbeatable for years, the Falcons Wrestling Team continued their domination of the Beach District. With experience and talent the team smashed all Beach competition and only lost by two points to regional rivals, Great Bridge.

Led by Captains Craig Goldberg, Jeff Stanfield and Joren Frey, the team had a season record of 10-1. Seniors Greg Yellis, Ryan Dobbins, Mike Shephard, Jim McMannes and Mark Medlin helped the team towards District Championship and a second place finish at the regional tournament. Jeff Stanfield and Tom Lewis placing 6th, Chris Todd placing 3rd and Jason McKenzie placing 2nd led to the team's 3rd place finish at the State Tournament. Coach Gary Hartranft commended the team's performance.

With determination and pride, the Falcons Wrestling Team conquered the weight barrier and grappled their way to the hearts of the student body as champions once again.

THE FITNESS REPORT

Gymnasts Get a Work Out

With only two seniors to speak of on the gymnastic team, it would be quite an understatement to say, "We had a young team." As Co-Captain Kim Byerly said, "We had a new team this year, but I think we've come a long way!" And a long way they came. Workouts started to pay off at the Menchville Invitational when they placed three gymnasts in the top 10 in four events. Kim Byerly placed first on beam; Amy Schwartz placed eighth all around and seventh on floor, and Laura Oates placed sixth on floor. Other gymnasts who had a good season were Stephanie Hanna, Anita Whitney, Hunter Tynes and Co-Captain Michele Farrou.

Toward the end of the season the fitness report was in: the ladies had placed fourth in the district and had some excellent routines. Congratulations are due to these Lady Gymnasts, coached by Melody Hartranft, a former Cox gymnast herself.

With experience leading the way, the Lady Falcons swept the Beach District undefeated. The Falcons gave Coach Holland his 150th win as they demolished Kempsville. With nine returners and seven seniors, the Lady Falcons had a constant attack for their opponents. Tri-Captains Allison Moore, Heather Davis, and Tammy Hedspeth, along with seniors Kristen Horton and Melinda Hodges; and juniors Sarah Captain and Hayley Baer, led the balanced scoring attack for the Lady Falcons. SHOOTING HIGH

Boys' Basketball Team Improves Throughout the Season

As far as predictions went, the Boys' Basketball team was not supposed to do as well as they did. With Co-Captains Jon Loschi and Will Levinson to lead the relatively young team of 4 seniors, 4 juniors, 5 sophomores, they ended the season tied for fifth in the district. Kempsville, Kellam, Bayside, and Princess Anne were all upset by the team, with a win over Norfolk Catholic also.

Co-Captain Jon Loschi was the lead scorer on the team and ranked third in the district. He played center, standing at 6' 8". Commenting on this year's team, he says, "I think the team improved as the year went on." The other captain, Will Levinson, had this to say, "I thought this year was fun." Another team member said, "(Coach) Marshall is more than a coach. He's like the team's grandfather." Coach Marshall teaches accounting during school and is hard at work preparing his team for the games after school.

The Boys' Basketball team has played well despite inexperience and injuries. They deserve the respect of a team shooting high for their goals.

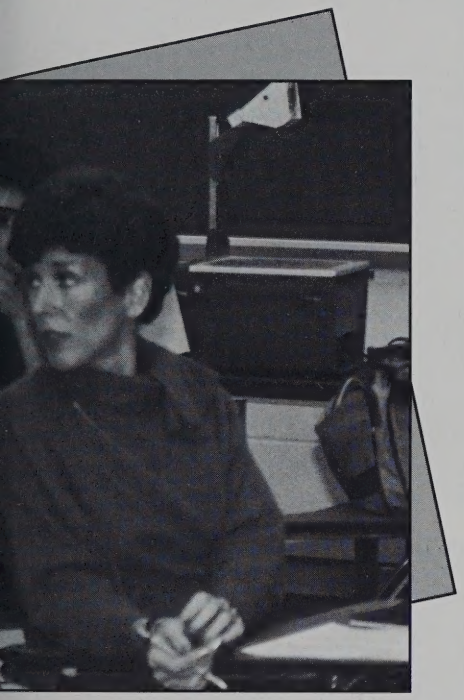
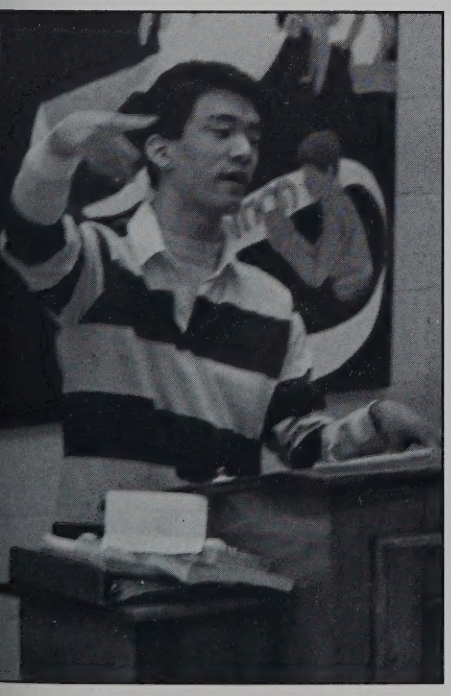
MEETINGS
At Twilight



From sunrise to sunset, each of the clubs met, wrote agenda, informed students of upcoming activities, raised money, planned service projects, and held parties. The various objectives included career preparation, serving the student body, and developing leadership. In every conceivable way, students, faculty, and parents collaborated for the success of efforts such as the SADD bracelets sale, inumerable donut and flower sales, and the landscape design.

Undoubtedly, these future business executives, doctors, and lawyers will become some of the nation's best. The leadership experience in clubs has afforded students the opportunity to develop those organizational skills which will carry over in their lives. They have learned the value of planning, delegating committee work, fostering good morale, and the satisfaction of seeing the completed goal. Students have devoted the twilight hours of many days to very worthwhile ends.



Scott Eun emphasizes a point at an I.C.C. meeting.

LEADERS OF THE PACK

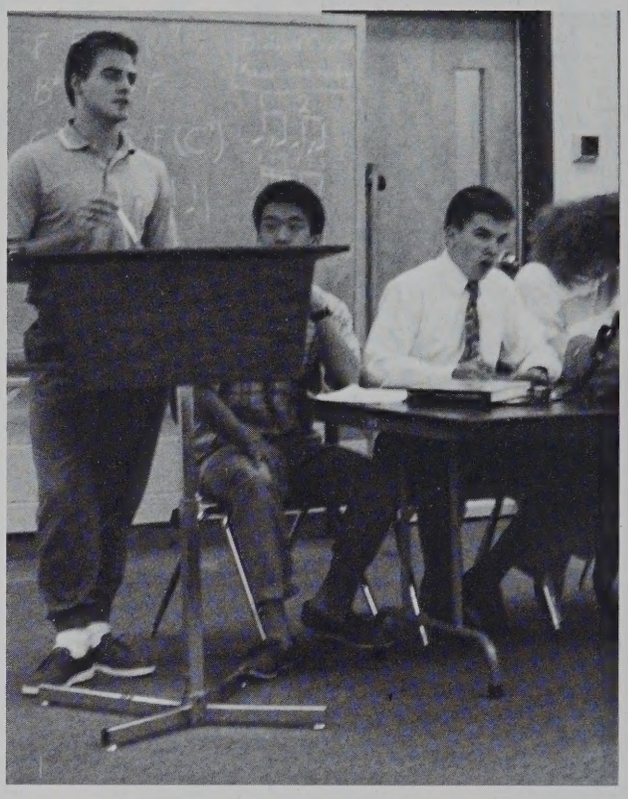
The ICC, Executive Council, and the SCA, our leaders

If you were asked to pick a person who would most likely be a future leader, the person you chose would probably be a member of the ICC, Executive Council, or SCA. The members of these clubs had excellent leadership potential and directed many of the school's activities.

The ICC, headed by Scott Eun and Danielle Mayette, is composed of the various school club Vice Presidents. Club officers came to the meetings with proposals for activities or projects and the ICC decided whether or not the proposal should be approved.

The Executive Council assumed responsibility for special activities, all organized and executed by student committee chairmen, operating even before Orientation. The Executive Council organized the Freshmen Elections, under the direction of Jen Koss and Mike Speckhart and Homecoming, one of the biggest events of the year, organized by Courtney Conover and Ami Woodard. Thanks to the help of John Fox, the Executive Council also managed to have a record year with the United Way Fund Drive.

The SCA's endeavors got even the shyest people to show their Falcon Pride! The work of our homeroom representatives, carrying ideas to and from the SCA meetings, gave the SCA a truly democratic base. Everyone got involved. Under the careful eye of Debbie Holland and Nancy Fowlkes, the year was a genuine success.



SCA officers, Marc Mayette, Scott Eun, and Ronnie Shank discussed possible upcoming events.

LEADERSHIP CLUBS

National Honor Society, Forensics, and Senior Senate Lead the Way

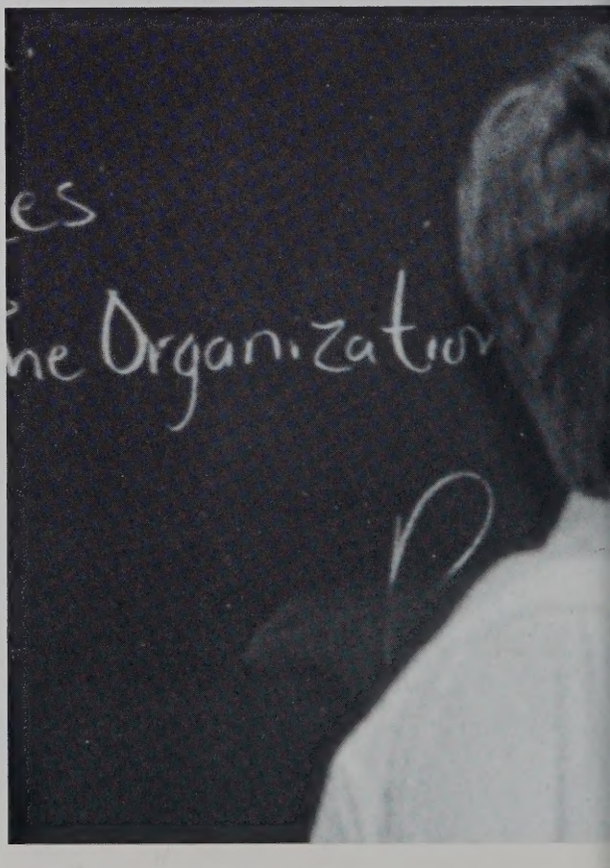
When you think of people who have it all under control, most often you will think of the members of the National Honor Society, Forensics, and Senior Senate.

It really isn't hard to recognize the members of NHS because their leadership, scholastic achievements, and character are outstanding. The sponsors, Miss Katherine Samford and Miss Ann Wild, and the officers directed many activities, the most well-known being the tutoring services, the Honor Roll receptions, and the "Student of the Month." Such endeavors definitely validated an excellent reputation.

The Forensic Team went into another great year. Students showed their expertise in prose, poetry, and oratory competition. Miss Mary Hyman served as sponsor.

Created by last year's seniors, The Senior Senate met to discuss important events including graduation and prom. Senators sold such items as mugs and teddy bears. These Seniors worked diligently to make their last year the best ever.

These students excelled and served beyond the call of duty; indeed, they made significant contributions in several areas, demonstrating leadership qualities.



Senior Senate member Kevin Curry, discussed senior issues with his class.

DISCUSSING TOMORROW'S POLITICIANS

TARS, Model UN, Debat

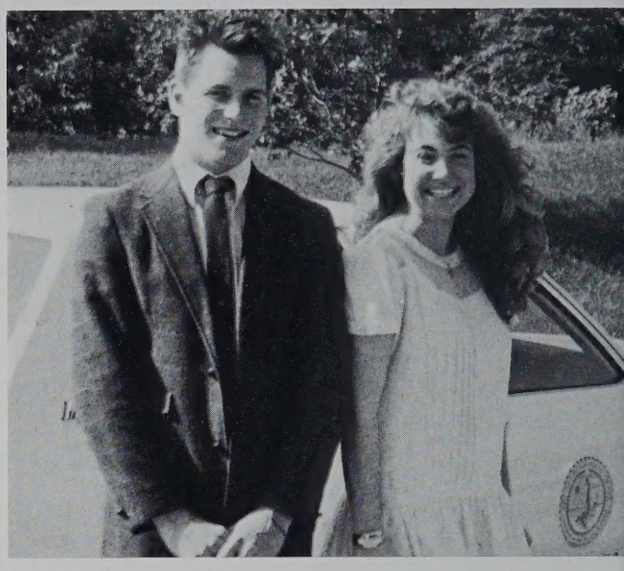
Did someone have to be a brute to get into a fight? Or are fights all political? Teenage Republicans, Debate, and Model United Nations team members met the opposition but didn't budge when accosted by adversaries.

In the fall, the Teenage Republicans hosted Delegate Bob Purkey of the Virginia General Assembly. The club also conducted literature drops and worked the polls in November.

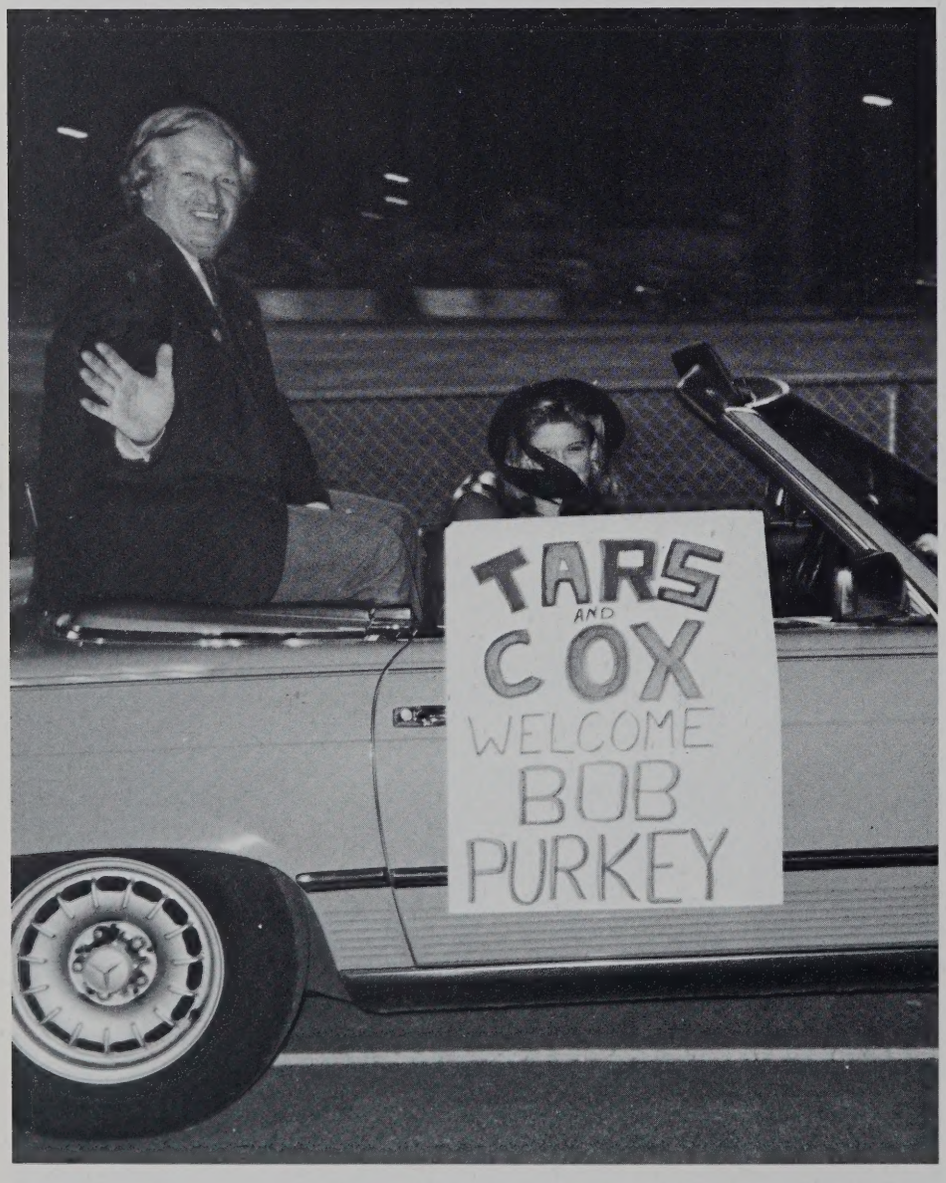
"Debate is one of the most draining experiences you can have emotionally, but winning is an incredible emotion rush," commented debate team captain, junior Lee Hark. In their Tidewater Debate League meets, held on Saturdays, the team captured many victories.

The Model United Nations conference at the University of Virginia in November was successful as Federal Republic of Germany delegates Kevin "Sven" Curry and Tim "Axel" Wilson garnered the distinction "Best NATO Delegation."

These political clubs taught public speaking, even psychological intimidation, current events, and especially research skills.



Kevin Kratzer was supportive of our TARS president, Andrea Akers, in Richmond after her election as 1st vice-president of the State Federation of TARS.



Shelly Clark chauffeured Delegate Bob Purkey during halftime of the homecoming game.

SCIENCE CLUB, ECOLOGY CLUB GEOGRAPHY CLUB

Reaching the Realms of Scienc

For those students who loved the outdoors and wished to become involved in the sciences, there were three fantastic clubs for them. The Science Club, Ecology Club, and Geography Club offered those students a chance to be involved.

The Science Club's goal was to integrate all different fields of Science. As sponsor, Mr. Wilcher arranged for many speakers and field trips in order to enlighten the members. Some of the members, known as the O.M. or Odyssey of the Mind, entered a science competition to test their creativity. The students were asked to invent and design airplanes, submarines, and many other extremely impressive projects.

The Ecology Club encouraged its students to preserve their surroundings. The members helped the Park Service by planting grass on the dunes. The club helped the community as they supported a nature walk for Great Neck Park.

The Frank W. Cox Geographic Society was a great success in its first year. This special interest club did not deal with boring maps and drab lectures. Instead these devoted students learned about geography outside of the classroom by venturing to nearby trails and applying their knowledge of geography. Passing information back and forth to their sister club in Normal, Illinois also provided these students with a better knowledge of a momentous Geography Awareness Week, coordinated with the National Geographic Society and Governor Gerald Baliles, proved that this club is definitely here to stay.

These three clubs gave students a chance to explore the realms of our physical environment. Each served to enrich students' classroom instruction.

During Geography Awareness Week, Mayor Robert Jones illustrated his remarks to Mr. Gary Miller's class.

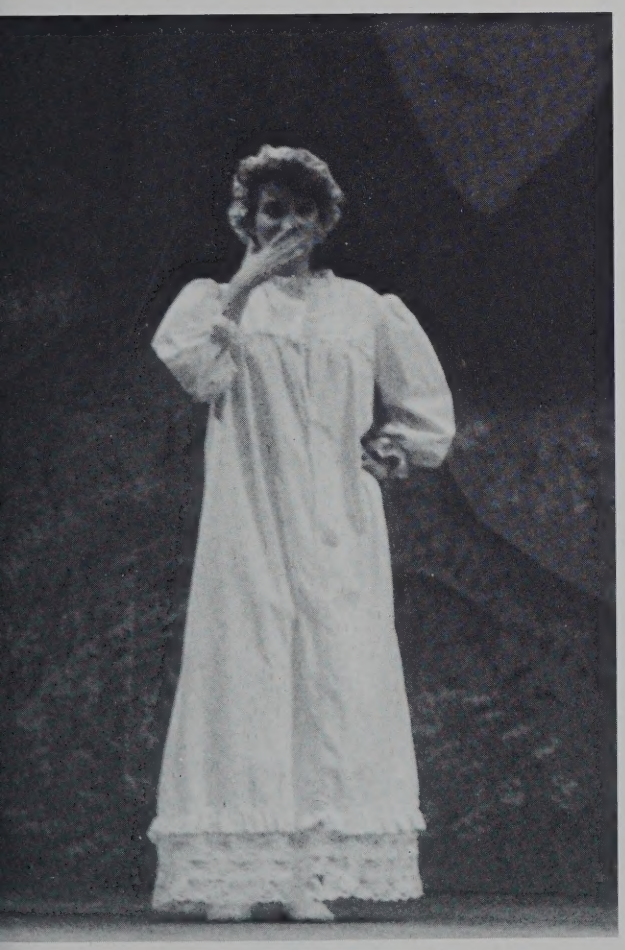
ENTERTAINERS OF '87-'88

Thespians, Madrigals and Chorus

Great entertainment was provided by the "Lo and Behold" fall production put on by our troupe of National Thespians. It was a wonderful success the weekend before Thanksgiving, and the response from the students was overwhelming.

Madrigals, a select chorus, showcased their talent in several excellent performances. One of the most memorable was a concert at the impressive National Cathedral in Washington D.C.

The considerable talents of the Thespians, Madrigals and Chorus continued to offer many aesthetic pleasures.



Madrigals rehearsed their joyous melodies for an upcoming event.

THE VIRGINIA STARS

Cox's Band Is Best

The band students and faculty were pleased by the arrival of the new band director Art Pittman. His enthusiasm and great knowledge of music led the band through an exciting and productive year.

The marching band and color guard's hard work throughout the summer paid off with their first place win at the Neptune Festival Parade. Next at Bayside Competition their superb performance left the audience in a great uproar. Steve Andrews and Jennifer Lipfert took first place honors as Drum Majors. Andy Paine and his percussionists earned first place Drum line. Jennifer Kuhlman of the color guard marched away with second place, as did the band as a whole.

The band and color guard also competed in Roanoke Rapids where they merited an excellent rating.

The marching band's fruit sale was a success as was the massive car wash. Together with the assistance of the band boosters, enterprising students assured themselves of a prosperous year. Such endeavors, coupled with the excellent performance in competition garnered praise from all corners.

Color Guard members Vanessa Perez and Jennifer Kuhlman marched for half time enjoyment.

SPORTS CLUBS

Coquettes and Volleyball Clu

For students that wanted to get involved, but didn't want to sit around in boring meetings, coquettes and volleyball club were just for them. Coquettes this year were known to have practiced four and often five days a week during the summer and throughout the year for many performances: pep rallies, football games, basketball games, parades and "all that jazz."

Where did they learn the new dances and routines? Most began by attending a Universal Dance Camp at James Madison University in early July. There were only seven returning Coquettes, which made it especially difficult for newcomers to catch "dance fever" and learn all the new moves. But, never fear, because Captain Melanie Cross and co-captains Chamie Wargo and Shauna Nelson were there to raise the spirits of the and keep everyone on thei Karrie Ellis served ably retary and represente squad at ICC meetings under the firm direction new sponsor, Mrs. A Fermil, the squad brought many blue ribbons and tr and continued to excel t hout the year.

COMMUNITY SERVICE CLUBS

Key Club, SADD, and REACH

The Key Club, SADD and REACH are organizations that are all helpful to the students as well as the community. Helping the Special Olympics, working to benefit charities, and controlling drunk driving and drug problems were projects.

The Key Club is a service organization which also offers outstanding leadership training. To put emphasis on the importance of interpersonal relationships, they chose " . . . For Friendship's sake" as this year's theme.

Under the guidance of Mrs. Pam Cummings and Mrs. Judy Bandy, they staged the Miss Cox Pageant to benefit local charities.

SADD is a club for students who want to help prevent the needless deaths of teenagers due to drunk driving. Students heard startling announcements in their homerooms during Drug Awareness Week attended a PTA meeting to inform parents about SADD, and enjoyed Christmas carolling at Virginia Beach General Hospital.

Responsible Educated Adolescents Can Help is a youth project of the National Federation of Parents for Drug-Free Youth. Students went to elementary schools and taught them about the danger of drugs and alcohol use through skits and games. REACH also participated in city-wide activities. The sponsor, Mrs. Leah Phillips, was very proud of the club's recognition by Tidewater Psychiatric Institute.

CREATING THE FUTURE

FBLA, DECA, FHA

Despite the 500 point crash on Wall Street, students were busy calculating the value of their time at business meetings.

Future Business Leaders of America was a club created for students interested in pursuing a business career. FBLA contributed to the community by participating in service projects during the year.

For those interested in the marketing field, Distributive Education Clubs of America was the place to be. Through this club, students were able to get on-the-job training with local firms.

Future Homemakers of America focused on projects to create good family life. Hosting several guest speakers, FHA learned about the basics of homemaking.

WATCH, MAKE, AND HELP

Fine Arts Club, Industrial Arts Club, and Helpers Do Al

The Fine Arts Club, Industrial Arts Club, and Helpers were all very busy. They watched, made and helped many different people and things.

The Fine Arts Club was designed for students who enjoy the arts or would like to learn more about them; this includes live theater, dance (both modern and ballet), music, and the visual arts.

Mr. Art Koeppen, the club sponsor, wished to stimulate interest in the arts and broaden knowledge and understanding of each art form. The club participated in many exciting and enriching experiences, such as attending a production of "The Nutcracker".

The Industrial Arts Club in its second year aspired to teach industry while also teaching members leadership, responsibility, and technology. As a community project, the club participated in the Toys for Tots program.

Helpers, where would we be with out them? They not only helped the administration but also the students. They ran errands, assisted ill and injured students in the clinic, and filed in the office.

KEEPING THE LANGUAGE ALIVE

German and Latin Clubs Use the Languages

German and Latin were two of the most difficult languages to learn. Yet, the German and Latin Clubs made it fun! Not only did members learn about the languages but they participated in many exciting activities as well.

The German Club was devoted to trying to offer students an experience with German culture. The officers were Courtney Conover as president, Karen Barton as secretary, Jennifer Starling as treasurer, and Allison Dozier as historian. They tried to make the German Club interesting and fun for all of its members. They took trips to the World Cafe in Newport News and participated in Foreign Language Week and the Silly Olympics. The German Club also took a trip to Kings Dominion and had various fund raisers. Last year, they won the ICC award and won the Foreign Language Bowl.

The Latin Club was very active as well. The members strived to learn this difficult language while having a good time. The officers were Megan Mitchell as president, Eric Jackson as vice president, Shelley Sheridan as second vice president as well as a state officer, Mandy Davis as treasurer, Jenny Arnold as secretary, Ken Coll as reporter, and Stacy James as historian. They worked to keep the members busy with the Latin Float, the Sweets 'n Treats Sale, the Candy Cane Sale, and the Christmas party. They also gave food to the needy at Thanksgiving. 36 members went to the Latin Convention in Richmond returning with 38 awards. They also sent 3 members to the National Convention in Florida.

This year has proven to be one of learning new cultures, meeting new friends, and having fun.

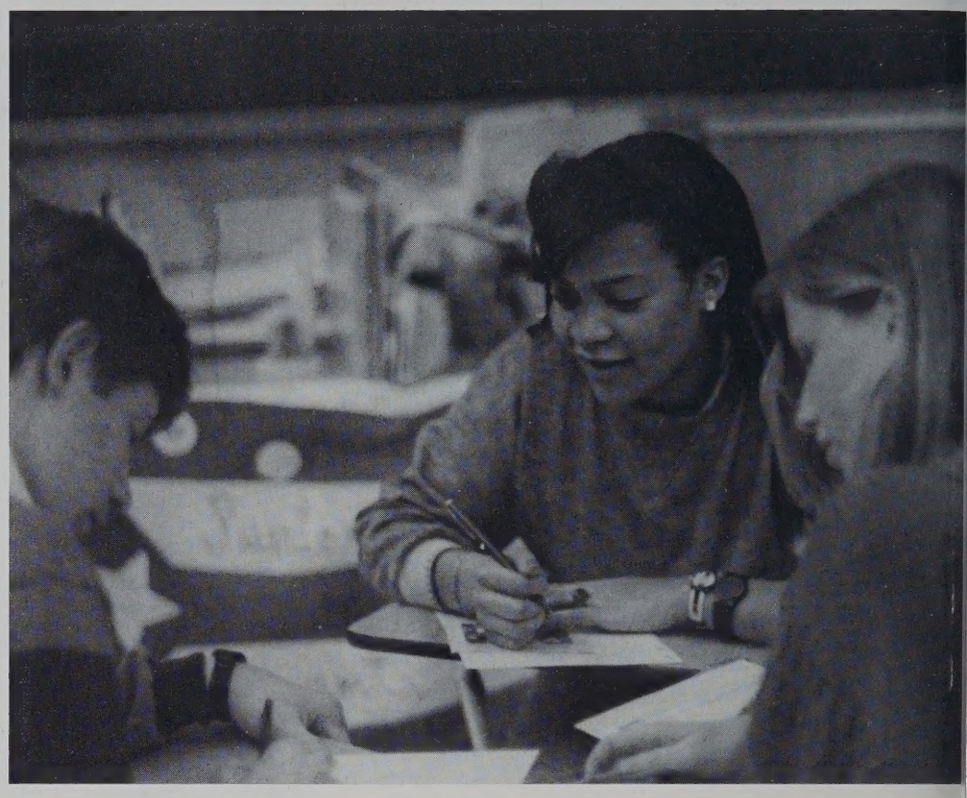
FRANCAIS AND ESPANOL
Languages Beyond the Classroom Studies

The French and Spanish Clubs were two of the most popular clubs. Their enthusiastic members supported the clubs during many meetings and projects, while also having fun and perfecting language skills.

The French Club accomplished the goal of successful integration into the community through two service projects. For Halloween some costumed members went to Virginia Beach General Hospital and distributed balloons and toys to the children. By the Christmas season they had collected 1990 toys for the Toys-for-Tots program. To reinforce French culture, the club had a Renaissance Party and then saw "Jean de Florette" at the Naro. Students also tutored after school and during lunch, referring any especially stubborn problems to their sponsor, Mrs. Vesta Cruser.

The Spanish Club was equally active and community-oriented. The members, led by sponsor Mrs. Hilda Wilson, distributed Thanksgiving and Christmas baskets, supplied support for a child in Mexico, and had several meetings at restaurants. They also enjoyed parties at Christmas and Valentine's and the opportunity for competition afforded by Foreign Language Week's activities. There was great fun, too, at Busch Gardens in the spring.



Spanish Club officers Eric Plumlee, Emma Wilson, and Tracey Miller prepare for the upcoming meeting.

With the added effort of the club's many members, the Spanish float was a huge success.

LIBRARY CLUB AND VIDEO CLUB

Clubs With a Service

Have a book and a smile! The Video and Library Clubs are clubs with an objective to serve.

Providing the school and community with an opportunity to learn about video equipment, the Video Club involved the student body in its productions. Members were responsible for the in depth look at Homecoming, the Fashion Show, pep rallies, interviews, and many other school events. Sponsors Mrs. Darden and Mrs. Manuel helped in the Video Club production "Falcon Focus."

Ms. Long sponsored the efficient Library Club. This club touched the school and its surroundings by helping to promote reading and the librarian profession. They also contributed to the Joy Fund and Salvation Army. The club was a great success as students participated in library contests, such as guessing how many books there were in the library.

Every classroom was covered. Between books and video cameras, students were informed of the advantages of reading and watching.

THE OLDEST TO YOUNGEST CLUBS

CMA and Junior Statesman

The Cox Medical Association sought to provide insights concerning the medical field. The school's nurse, Mrs. Elizabeth McBride, was proud that the club had achieved the ICC's top honor, denoting superior projects and performances.

The members have coordinated a very successful blood drive, hosted several guest speakers, and contributed to the Ronald McDonald House. The annual sale of jonquils, reminded all of the value of good health.

The most recently formed club was a chapter of The Junior Statesmen of America. Revonda Jones led a group of about thirty-five who attended a mock presidential nominating convention in Washington D.C. Delegates, from the East Coast campaigned for their favorite candidates and enjoyed outstanding guest speakers. After a weekend of fast-paced politicking, nominees were selected. Delegates departed with an understanding of the art of compromise and a preview of the Democratic and Republican Conventions of 1988.

BRINGING THE FACTS TO LIGHT

Falcon Press and Wingspan

NEWS FLASH: Falcon Press and Wingspan informed students of earth-shattering news and provided them with a philosophical outlet.

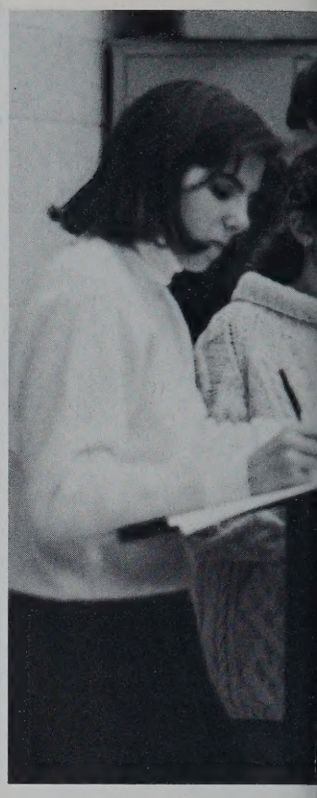
The Falcon Press, sponsored by Dr. Angle, kept students posted on what was happening throughout the year. The newspaper released six issues featuring articles written by Journalism I, II, and III students. Doing it their own way, the Falcon Press staff wrote stories, took pictures, pasted up articles, applied border tape, and corrected mistakes. In other words, the staff did everything except push the button on the printing press.

The Falcon Press won first place honors in the Virginia High School League and the Columbia Press Association in New York City. Co-editor Amy Becker wrote stories for the Beacon as a correspondent. Editors Amy Becker and Carolyn Anne Coleman and Assistant Editor Brian O'Neill, along with the rest of the Falcon Press staff, helped to make the newspaper successful.

Wingspan, by poetic license, was everything but calm. In that small room on the second floor, the magazine was created. Reading poems and prose till their minds ached, Wingspan members compiled a selection of pieces submitted by students.

Through the guidance of sponsor, Mrs. Downie, and many bake sales and fundraisers, the publication was made possible. Wingspan, which came out in May, was entered in a statewide competition. In the past, Wingspan has won many first place awards.

Through fact and fiction, Cox was able to get the best student literature anywhere.



Wingspan's members Shelly Sheraton, Emily Becker, John Aguiar, John Pierce, Rewonda Jones and Chris Workman listen attentively to Mrs. Downie's critique.

WHERE DO YEARBOOKS COME FROM?

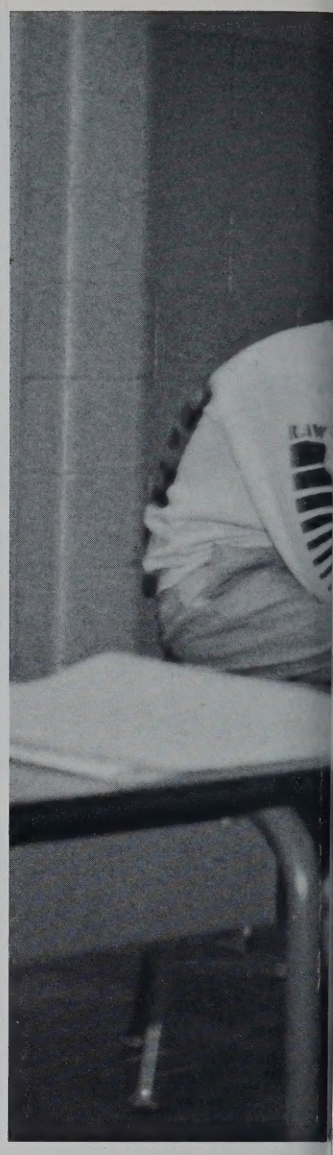
It Takes TALONt!

Where do yearbooks come from? Three knocks on the secret door and a loud scream from Nancy Moore is the password to enter the door to room 160. A door that locks when you get in, and no one gets out until Mrs. James says so, or, on deadline, the power may go off first.

In the background freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and seniors panic as they're told, "squigglies — go to Carolyn, copy — go see Mrs. James, and for ads — go see Nancy."

But after all the pasting and cutting, taking photos and making deadlines, there are still Nancy Moore and Carolyn Clark who sit in their rooms at 12:30 pm trying to make it all work out.

So if you want to know where yearbooks come from, ask one of any number of wounded victims that crawl from the depths of room 160; they will tell you it's all Mrs. James' fault!



Freshmen staff members type all night to reach a deadline.

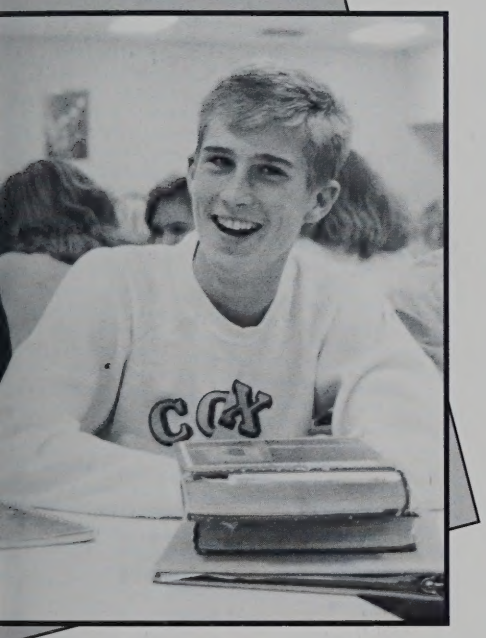
DAWNING

Of the Ages!



It was the dawning of the ages. From the newly transferred freshman to the four-year veteran senior, suddenly everyone was in place. The pieces of the puzzle are the people who make the school function. The sizes and shapes vary with age and experience. When they all come together, they form a perfect picture. Even one missing piece can disturb the entire overview. This year the students and faculty strove to make things run like clockwork. Sometimes one would miss a beat but make it up later. Everyone makes mistakes, but only the best can overcome them. This year, the Falcons proved that they are the best.

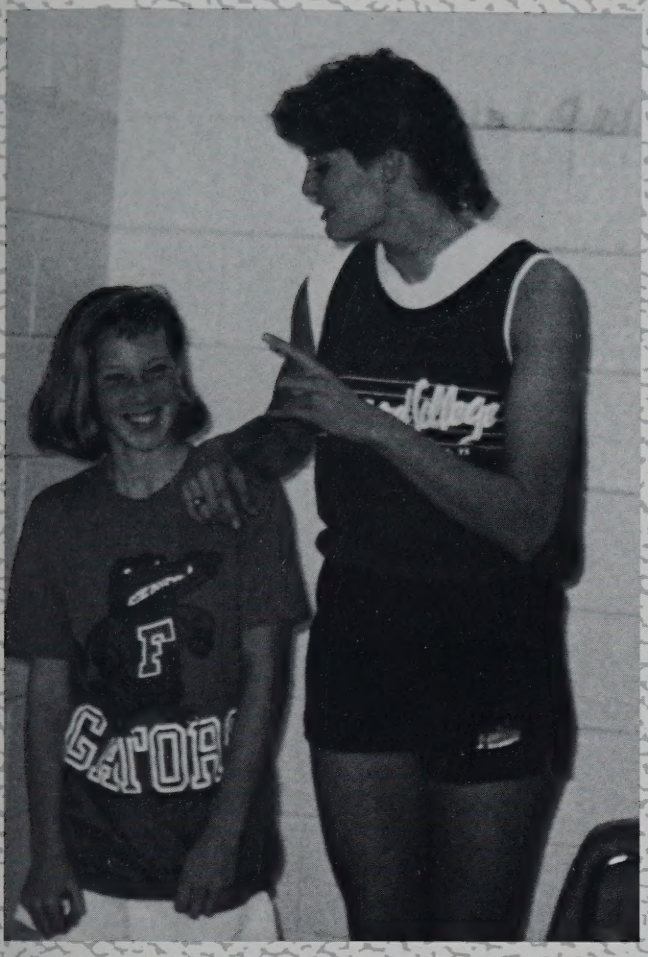
ON SENIOR STATUS . . .

The Seniors Say



Senior Allison Moore encourages freshman Christina Harrel that one day she might grow.

After years of high school, most students relish the opportunity to be superior, to take advantage of the senior status.

PRO'S

On being the oldest in school:

— "Freshmen look younger every year!'

On winning Spirit Week:

— "It's about time!"

On living it up at Prom:

— "I've got the rockin' pneumonia and the boggie-woogie flue!"

On favorite timing:

— 1988, the year of the Olympic Games, leap year, and the Presidential election.

CON'S

On taking SAT's and Achievement tests:

— "Does this mean I have to stay home Friday night?"

On facing Grade Point Averages, class ranks, and SAT scores:

— "I thought I did better than that!"

On passing government:

— "Where can I get an application to the electoral college?"

On entering college:

— "Does this mean I'll be a freshman . . . AGAIN?!"

Reflections confirm that the senior experience was outstanding; seniors attest that the merits of "being at the top" are well worth the wait.

SENIOR SPIRIT RACES

Toward the finish line

The Senior class shows their spirit through their float, "Riding on Cox Traditions."

Spirit Week showed a spectacular victory for the seniors.

Seniors led the way with spirit links, won an undisputed victory at the pep rally, and distinguished themselves with community spirit, by winning the United Way competition. Cumulative points through the dress up events put the seniors over the top; they turned out in convincing numbers, regaled in creative costumes.

The seniors had out distanced all their rivals to carry forward the tradition of spirit. In the spring, seniors graduated with the satisfaction of maintaining superior senior spirit.

Our Seniors Debbie Perez, Mark Wargo, and Melissa Perez, show their Cox Spirit during homecoming.

Adding a helping hand, Carrie Monger rakes the school grounds.

The 1988 class officers: Lori Cuffee, Secretary; Trish Tiedeman, Reporter; Carrie Monger, Vice-President, Benjamin Hearst, President; Carol Vest, Treasurer; and Amy Smithwick, Second Vice-President, are really enthused about their jobs.

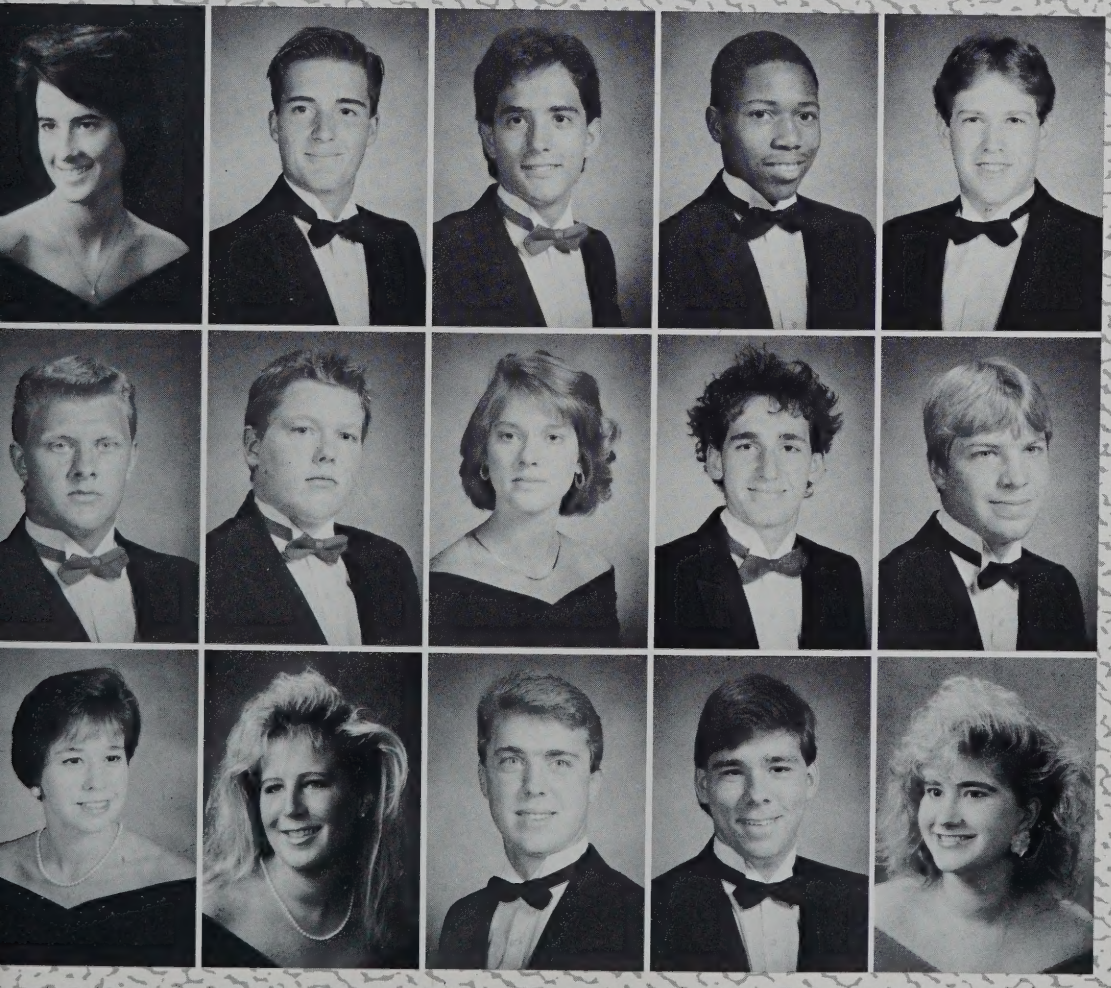
We Heard It through The Grapevine

Seniors Have a Great Bunch of Officers

With momentous events such as Prom and Graduation ripening on the vine, seniors could not leave the fate of their class in the hands of a few sour grapes. Instead, six delectable officers were elected to benefit the bunch: President, Ben Hearst; Vice-President, Carrie Monger; Second Vice-President, Amy Smithwick; Secretary, Lori Cuffee; Treasurer, Carol Vest and Reporter, Trish Tiedeman.

The officers decided to work effectively to achieve their objectives. The major goal can be expressed most accurately through the class of '88 motto, "Individual Achievement/Unified Strength." Secondly, the class was determined to raise money to support both Prom and Graduation and to recognize each person for his contributions to the class, emphasize the importance of education, and look to the future with greater understanding.

Here's some more food for thought: Ben Hearst agrees that the goals were reached because "the Seniors of '88 have a unique and unified class." Obviously the seniors picked a handful of grape officers. As the year aged, they truly left a few wrinkles in time!



Leigh Ann Drye — "Love in any language, that's what friends are for."
Thomas L. Duke — "Live fast, die young." Circle Jerks

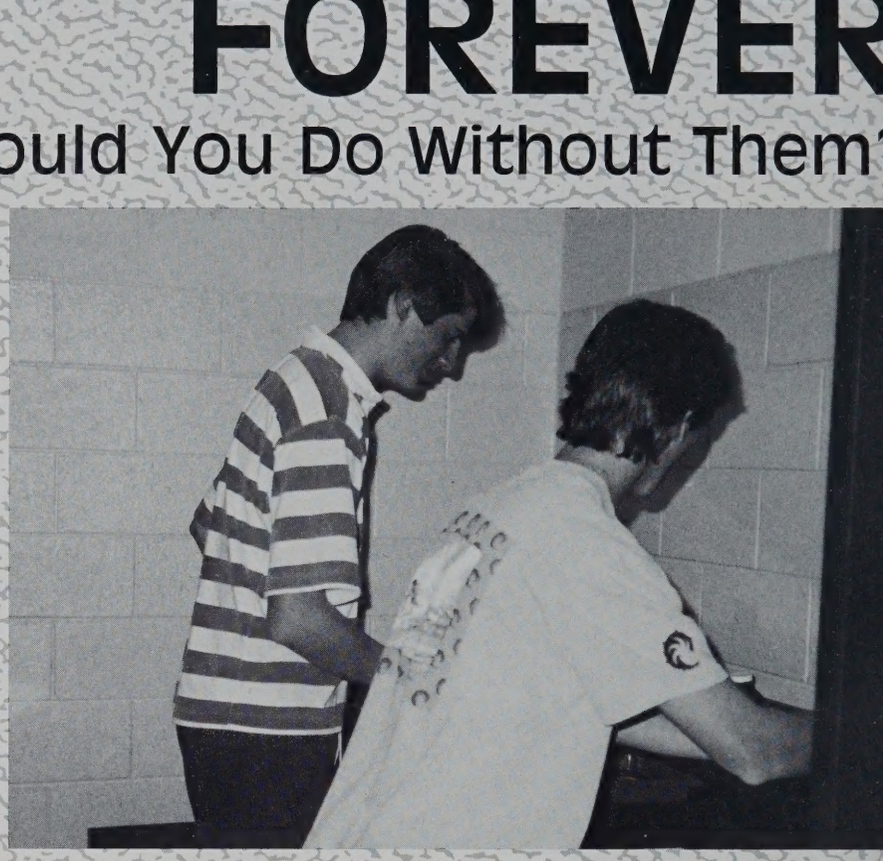
FRIENDS ARE FOREVER

What Would You Do Without Them?

Friendships: A natural result from years of shared experiences, resolved differences, and good times together.

As the years have gone by, many acquaintances have passed through peoples lives, but few mean as much as those friends who have always been there. These friendships have lasted through many hard and memorable years. The statement "Friends are forever," only begins to encompass the real concept of friendship, reflecting true dedication. Everlasting friends make the time to listen.

Even though these are the last years of school for many people, true friendships last far beyond the high school days. Many friendships have been challenged, and yet the best will endure through the class reunions.



Working side by side are friends and photographers Matt Jackson and Mike Finch.

THE COMING OF THE DAWN

Seniors Welcome Alumni Home

As sure as the sun rises, Homecoming turned out to be a tremendous success. Seniors, especially, rose to the occasion by getting up at the crack of dawn on Green and Gold Day to decorate their cars and parade past First Colonial blaring their horns.

During the week, senior spirit had definitely been on the rise. The class won the spirit link competition, games at the pep rally, and the title of "best all-around class." Also, the senior class float, featuring Carrie Monger, Mike Stallings, and a surfing falcon, looked great in spite of a midweek setback. Commenting on their dedication, senior sponsor Mrs. Mosher had this to say: "Seniors realize that working together and having a goal was worth the effort."

Highlights of the evening included the spectacular procession of the floats, the entertaining performance of the Green Brigade, and the crowning of the Homecoming Queen, Nicole Andrews. Other senior court representatives were Melinda Foley, Angie Hughes, Cathy Long, and Candie Marshall. Each illuminated the field with her beauty.

Long after sunset, the graduates enjoyed one last goodbye. The memories will sparkle like stars in the night.

WHERE DO WE GO FROM HERE?

College Bound Seniors

"Where do I go from here?" That was the predominant question on almost every senior's mind.

While some students chose to go straight into the work field and others chose to be beach bums, the largest percentage of seniors chose to go to college.

The endless tasks of taking S.A.T.'s, checking G.P.A. and class rank, and filling out applications never seemed to end. The guidance office was always filled with seniors waiting patiently to discuss recommendations, scholarships, and college choices with their counselors.

Some of the favored colleges of 1988 graduates were: William and Mary, UVA, Virginia Tech, and James Madison.

Though the choices were numerous and diverse, the class of '88 left feeling prepared for the future.

OVERTIME . . .

Life After 7th Bell

"Was that a large or small fry?" asks Kevin Hendershot who works at Burger King after school.

Some of you may wonder . . . what did seniors do after school? The answers were many and varied. Some worked at restaurants or stores at the beach. However, many seniors participated in club meetings, sports practices, and other school-related activities.

Seniors realized that the admissions committees of colleges and universities expected their applicants to have leadership roles in extra-curricular activities. Therefore, seniors realized that the most competitive transcript included a full activity sheet.

In addition, there was a sincere desire to serve which grew from pride in a great tradition. Seniors wished to ensure the transfer of leadership skills to their successors. To do so, many seniors provided continuing guidance to younger students.

YEARS PAST . . .

Suddenly We Remember

When September rolled in, the reality of the long-anticipated senior year had not yet dawned on the class of 1988. Everyone had adjusted to the normal school routines, but something was different. Suddenly, seniors remembered the underclassmen years: all those catnaps during World History films, the rainy day spent at the fossil pit on an Earth Science field trip, and the splatter movies seen in driver's education — it all seemed vivid, yet so far away.

The freshmen year brought overbearing anxieties: "Will I get lost?" "What will the seniors do to me?" First-aid education brought the soon familiar question, "Annie, Annie, are you okay?!"

"Behind the wheel", "Buckle Up!" and "Drive Defensively" were primary phrases of the sophomore year. The driver's education curriculum successfully communicated the fact that drinking and driving are a deadly mix.

Juniors labored over ring selections for days before finally ordering them. Then, the Ring Dance date arrived. The image of the suspended silver stars still dances in the memories of the seniors.

Then it happened . . . those silly underclassmen became seniors Graduation was here. "The proud, the great, . . . the class of '88!"

In fear of riding the school bus are seniors Carmen Akbari, Karen Broyles, and Karen Johnson.

GOVERNMENT CURRENT EVENT QUIZZES . . .

A Senior's Worst Nightmare

It was inevitable. Those frightful current events quizzes crept up on seniors faster than they expected. As schedules went through the post office, government students speculated who the political pundit would be: Mr. S. Smith, Mrs. James, Mrs. Jenkins or the dreaded Mr. Leagan.

"Knowing news was interesting, but being quizzed on it was depressing," regrets senior Cindy Billips.

Seniors recollect the many early morning hours spent poring over the morning newspaper, cramming for that grade — shattering quiz. Sometime diligent studyin turned into th "headline habit" or th first 18 minutes o "Around the World in 3 Minutes."

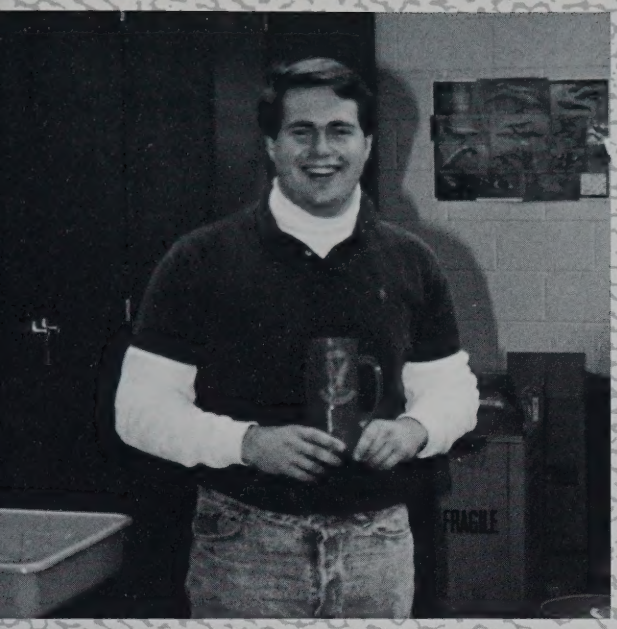
SENIORS GET MUGGED

Bringing in the Dough



Senior John Fox gives his interpretation of a mug shot.

During their final year, the senior class sponsored many fundraisers. A specific one was the senior class mug sale. The green and gold mugs were sold in the auditorium foyer — one for $3.00 and 2 for $5.00. This was one way the senior class raised money for the Prom at Grand Affairs. The mugs were sold by John "The Concession Stand Man" Fox; Carrie Monger, Sr. class vice president; and Amy Smithwick, 2nd vice president. "I thank the senior class for their hard work and dedication to their spirit in selling the mugs," commented John Fox.

DISTRACTIONS, DISTRACTIONS, DISTRACTIONS

Every Little Thing

In an attempt to distract Candie Marshall, Matt Concert, and Carol Vest, Betsy Neal blows a big bubble during class.

Is it safe to assume everyone wondered how many concave indentions there are on each concrete brick in the building? Or the number of panels in the ceiling? More intriguing is the fact that most seniors know the answers to these questions!

The reason seniors are so knowledgeable on such topics is simple. Four years of learning has not only taught them about chemistry, algebra, and typing but also the art of daydreaming, writing on desks, and meticulously doodling all over their homework. The distracted senior shows many symptoms; the nervous "toe tapping" was the most popular. The dreaded "blank stare," a result of being mesmerized by the teacher's monotonous voice, comes in a close second.

The female senior chipped her fingernail polish or twirled her hair. Further evidence of preoccupation was the stray bubble as it enveloped that pretty girl's face. Seniors were astute at both academic pursuits and their idle fantasies.

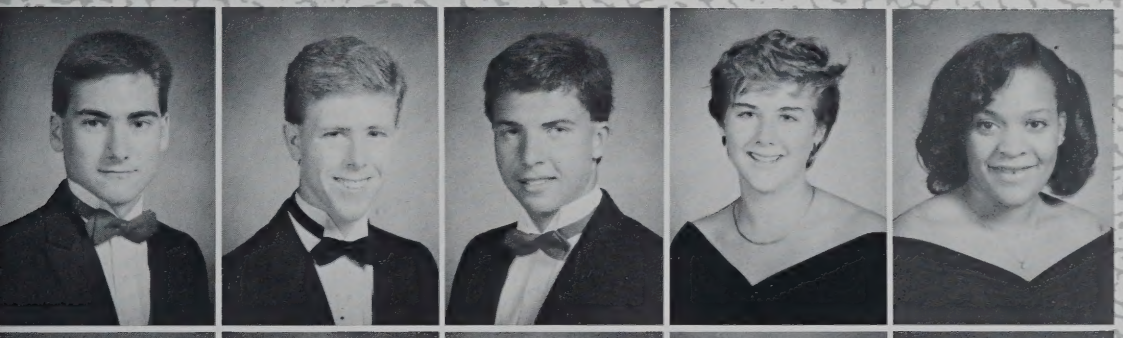
SUMMER SESSIONS

Senior Slump Starts Early

For some students, senior slump started early this year. As soon as the last exam of their junior year was over, they were free for the summer.

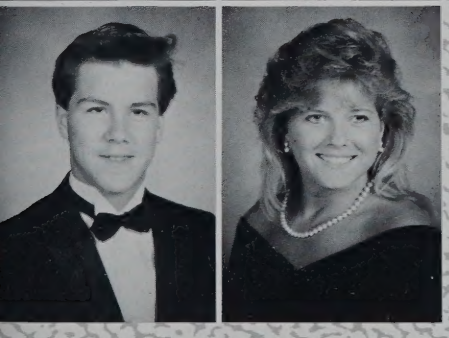
However, some unfortunate members of the work force had to hit the pavement and find jobs for the summer. Many took to the beach to find fun in the sun with jobs such as lifeguarding and bike renting. Still others were forced to work inside at Burger King, Farm Fresh, or some local spot.

Even though some seniors were forced to earn a living, it certainly wasn't "all work and no play." And, the prospect of money kept the workers working.



Ricky White — What do you mean, four more years?
Trevor A. White — Champagne and propane, the breakfast of balloonists!
Greg Whitley — Thank God It's Over! Yea, J.A.B.
Kristin Williams — Nunc animis tempus!
Emma Wilson — Gracias Mama, Love Emma. College here we go, P.B. and P.

Tim Wilson — I'm Like Magellan . . . I'm History!
Chris Wombolt — Give me ROSSIGNOL or give me HEAD.
Deanne Yeager — Don't confuse me with the facts, my mind is made up.
Krista Yeatts — For those who cannot retain wisdom, strive to continue receiving.
Greg Yellis — I laugh at all of you.



Thomas Young — No matter where you are you will always be there.
Eden Zamarin — If love is the answer, could you please repeat the question?

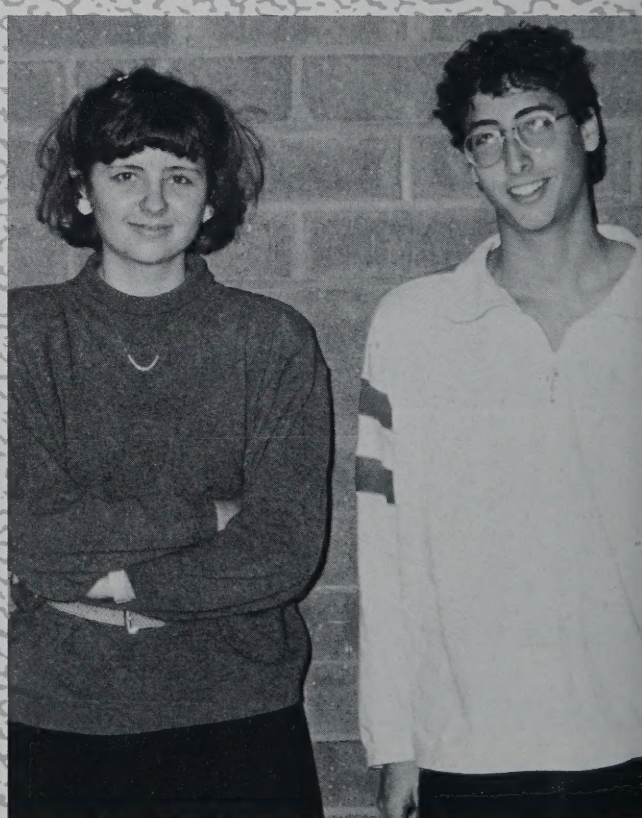
BEST OF THE BEST

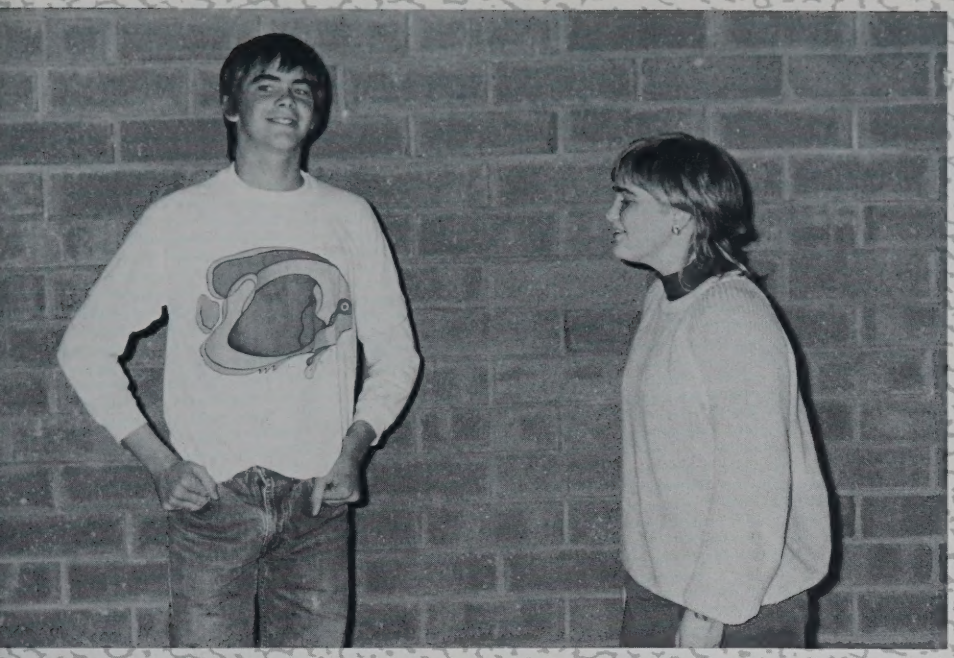
Seniors Are Chosen For Superlatives

Winners of the Senior Superlatives are a hand-picked group chosen by their fellow class members. These seniors represent many aspects of their class but are only a few of the talented seniors. These seniors excel not only in school but also in life. Among their many interests are different sports, clubs, academic achievements, and having a good time.

It will be interesting to see if these titles were accurate. Will the choices for "Most Likely To Succeed" really succeed? Will the students voted "Best Looking" still be good-looking in ten years? Seniors will test these selections at their ten-year reunion.



Most Likely To Succeed: LeAnn Neubert and Benjamin Hearst



Class Clowns: Casey Lewis and Laurie Thompson

Most Unique: Donaldson Miele and Shelly Clark

At left, Most Spirited: Craig Goldberg and Sherri Miles

Above, Most Talented: Jennifer Lipfert and Charlie Cho

Most Gullible: Liz Riner and Chris Decker

Best Looking: Scott Segerblom and Melinda Foley

CLIMBING THE MOUNTAIN OF SUCCESS

A Junior Tradition

"Climbing the mountain of knowledge," the junior class Homecoming theme, seemed only appropriate to represented the class of 1989! The float represented the juniors' constant struggle to "climb the mountain of knowledge."

At the Homecoming game, the junior float was the most spectacular of all other floats during the halftime festivities. The float won first place due to the hard work and dedication of juniors. They pulled together their imaginative and creative minds to construct a winning float.

Many juniors spent countless hours after school pouring all their energy and effort into making the float. "It was hard work, but it paid off in the end to see the juniors awarded first place!" exclaimed Agnes Parker. The juniors worked the entire week of homecoming to accomplish their goal, to make the best float at Homecoming.

The juniors express their pride as they show off their winning float.

SUCCESS IN SPIRIT

Taking it to the Top

As the spirit of homecoming filtered through the air, enthusiastic juniors prepared for the week ahead. Their top priority was to show the other classes that the juniors had the most spirit. They started by gathering any donations they could muster, in order to insure themselves a high ranking in the spirit link competition.

While some juniors were soliciting, others were cutting, drawing, and gluing papers for the decoration of the stairwell. As a result of their dedication and long hours of hard work, the juniors took first place in the competition.

Finally, to complete the week's festivities, the juniors headed to the cafeteria to exhibit their artistic talents. With the help of Kerry Evans, the juniors produced an outstanding banner and placed second in the banner competition.

The week was a great success, proving that the juniors did indeed have an overwhelming amount of spirit.

"U GOT THE LOOK"

Cosmo at Cox

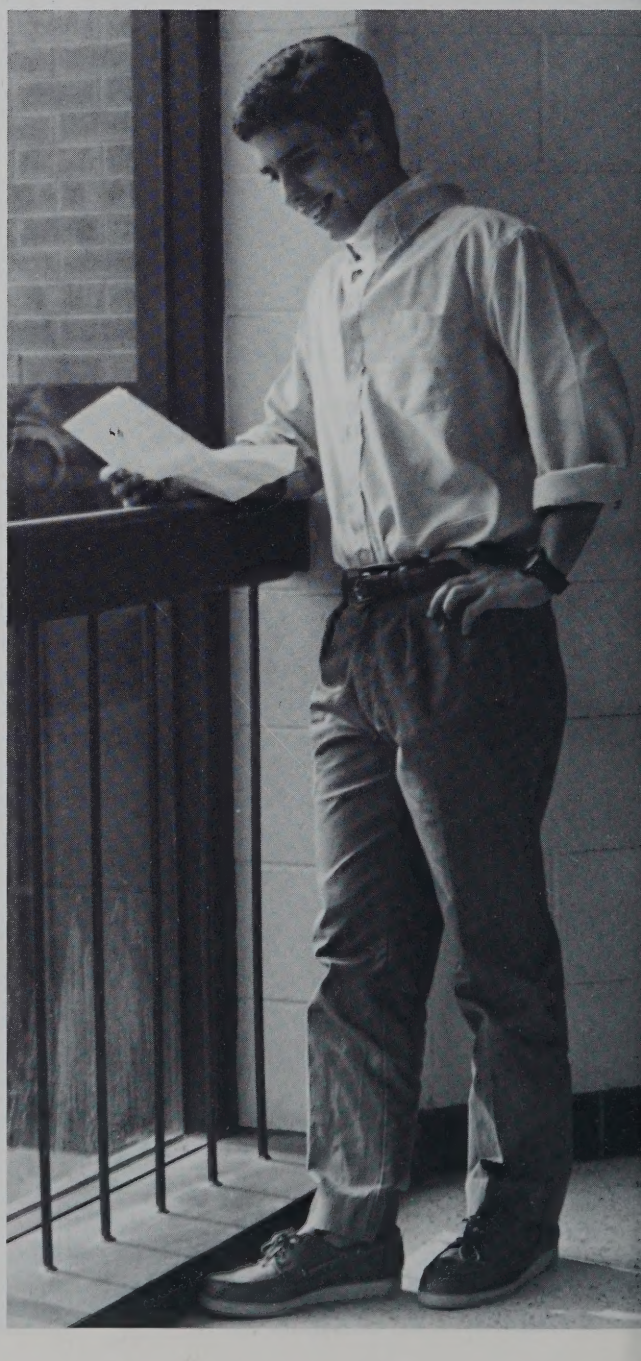
Stylish — adj — conforming to current fashions.

This is a word that definitely applied to the class of 1989. One always found the latest fashion rage worn by the trend setters.

Whether a follower or a leader on the fashion scene, juniors agreed that fashion was a way to express individuality. "There were many different styles and I think that they gave us character and life," commented Natalie Andrews.

Clothing reflected much about personality and attitude. When someone walked around in layered t-shirts with WRV or Quicksilver logos, he or she was identified with surfing. Sometimes people wandered through the halls dressed in dark clothes, draped in unique vintage ornaments. These people felt that this style of dress was their expressive outlet, depicting personality or nonconformity.

Whatever the style, it was important to remember the attitude that was represented. Most of the students agreed that there was ample variety.



To express his style, Chris Kane sports the preppy look.

FRIENDSHIP

The Letters Say It All

To show their frienship, Becky Banks and Agnes Parker share a warm hug.

Forever:
Meaningful friendships created during the high school years endure a lifetime.

Reliable:
Special friends rely on each other through good times and bad.

Indivisible:
Genuine friends can never be parted.

Elicit:
Friends bring out the best in each other.

Necessary:
Everyone has a need for friends, and no one has enough friends.

Demanding:
People need their friends to be there for them.

Special:
Friendships are extraordinary relationships that are the most treasured bonds in life.

Homemade:
Friendships cannot be manufactured.

Influential:
Our friends affect our daily lives.

Predictable:
Friends know each other well enough to anticipate thoughts and actions.

Secure:
Friendships provide a certain shield that everyone needs.

THE LEADING CHARACTERS

Produce a Standing Ovation

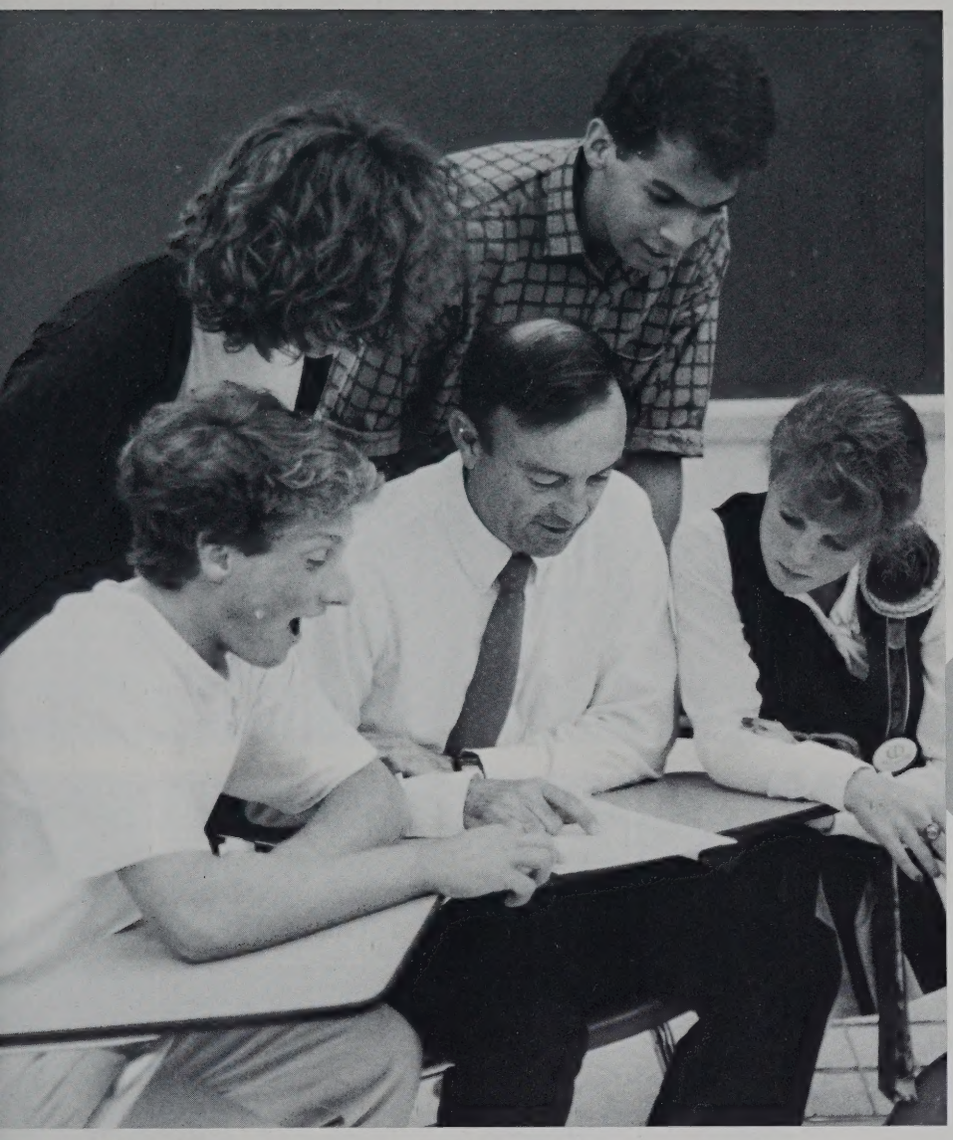
The votes were cast, and the stage was set for a new school year. The winners were Louis Farano, president; Jay Cooper, vice president; Diana Vann, secretary; and Chris Howard, treasurer. Agnes Parker added the finishing touch when she assumed the role of second vice president.

The officers' first act was to raise money to finance a memorable Ring Dance. The two primary fund raisers were the candy sale and the garage sale, both of which brought rave reviews.

Vice president Jay Cooper challenged, "The success of the class relies not on the officers' will to succeed, but on the motivation of the junior class." The juniors were motivated indeed; this was illustrated in their dramatic fund raising efforts.

Every class strives to be the best supporting cast behind the leading class officers, and the junior class succeeded!

Junior class officers are, top: Jay Cooper, vice president; Chris Howard, treasurer; bottom: Diana Vann, secretary; Louis Farano, president; Agnes Parker, second vice president.



Junior class officers discuss future plans with class sponsor Mr. Ingram.

LEADING OUR CLASS

Sophomore Officers Take Control

Glad to be sophomores, the class of 1990 proved it was something special.

Leading the way was President Ryan McGinness who said "I had to work a lot over the summer and I served on the Executive Council."

Serving her second term as Vice-President, Alison Hanwit attended ICC meetings.

April Talbott noted, "Being a secretary necessitated long hours and accuracy, but it was still a lot of fun."

J.D. Miles served as the class' treasurer and made sense when he said, "I counted on my fingers and toes; it was a lot cheaper than a calculator."

Once again Miss Pangle served as the class' sponsor. Why does this World History teacher like the demanding job? "I love it! They're the best group of kids in the world!"

THOSE EMBARRASSING TIMES

Even Sophomores Blush

Ask someone to relate an embarrassing moment and the replies are, "Me, never had one", or "You've got to be kidding!" However, some sophomores had the courage to swallow their pride and share their moments of humiliation.

Kim Shorter commented, "Last year, I accidentally threw away my English composition and had to go digging through the trash for it."

Diana Myers, relates, "I can't tell you how many times I've walked into the men's restroom and found it occupied."

"It's really frustrating," remarked Rebecca Fumia, "to find that someone has stolen your lock."

Embarrassing moments happen. Even sophomores know they can blush and realize that laughing about it makes it easier.

AWAKENING TO VICTORY

Sophomore Spirit Soars

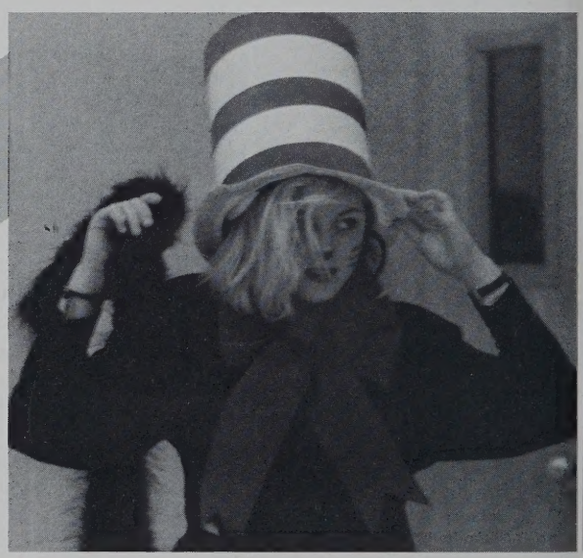
"This year the sophomore class is going to rise to victory!", promised Tara Staehle as spirit week began.

The class of 1990 bounded form the field with second place in the float competition. The lighthouse that stood on their float caused quite a sensation among the crowd. "It seemed as if all our hard work has finally paid off," commented Heidi Lineberger after the game.

Not only did they win second place in the float competition, but they also tied for second place in the stairwell competition, and received first place in the banner competition.

The sophomore Homecoming Representatives were Alison Hanwit and Kim Russell. For Kim, walking out onto the football field was an exciting experience. "When they announced the Homecoming Court over the public address system, I was really surprised and excited to hear my name."

Needless to say, the sophomore class gave an excellent show of spirit this year. Here's to two more fun and successful high school Homecomings!



Portraying her favorite hero, Jamie Fiore dresses up as the Cat in the Hat.

Riding on the second place float are Allison Edwards, Cory McCallum, Margret Saunders, and Lee Barba.

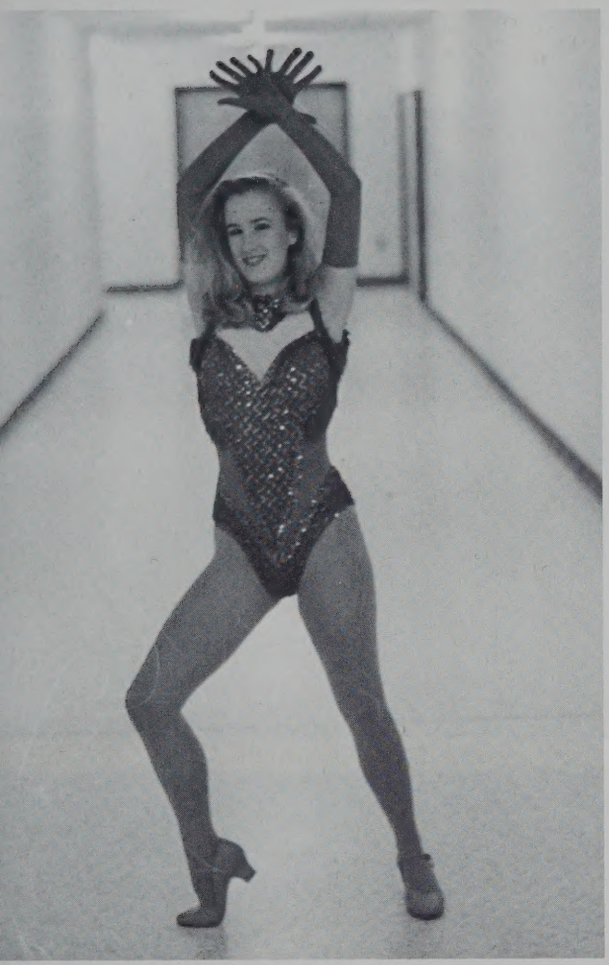
SOPHOMORE SPECIALTIES

Talent With A Twist



Dancer Laura Rieves struts her stuff.

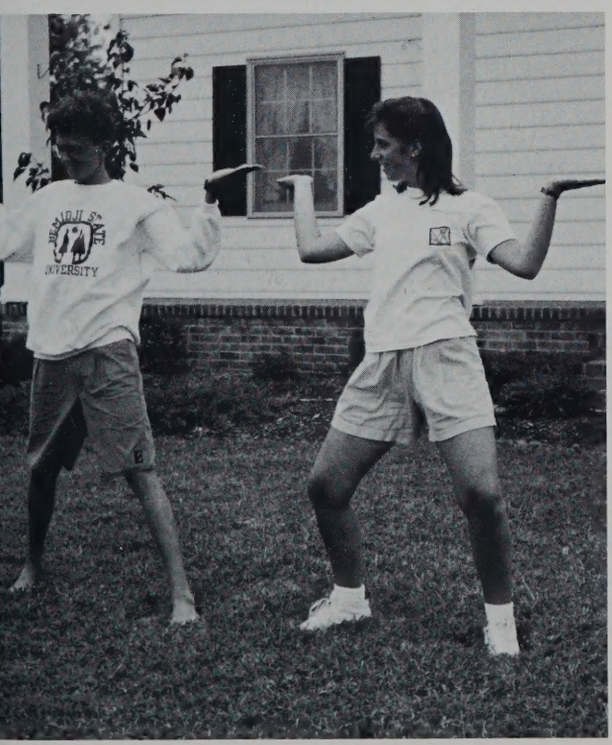
Sophomore talent covered all the bases this year. Green Suade Filth, a band comprised of Tim McCready, Emil Becker, and Ryan McGinness, recorded and distributed many tapes of their unique sound.

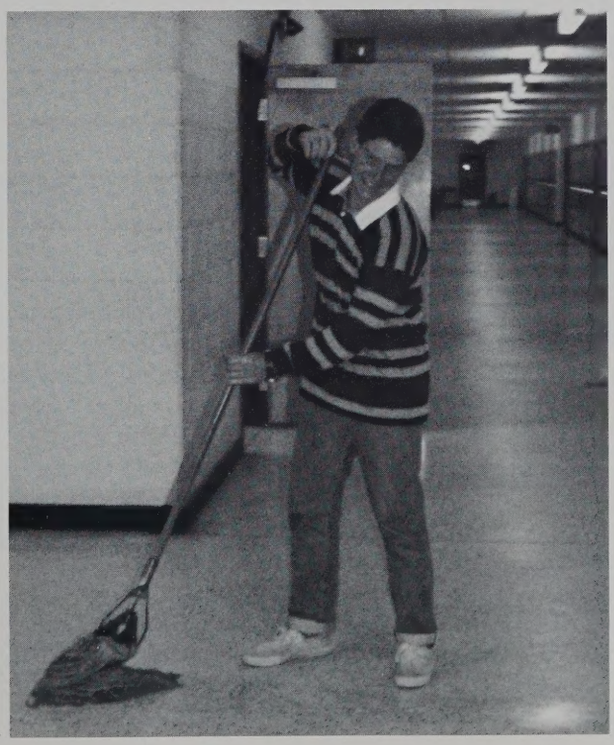
This year's search for talent led to the front door of dancer Laura Rieves, who has been studying dance since she was five years old. Four times a week this aspiring dances makes her way to the studio where she practices tap, jazz, lyrical jazz, pointe, and ballet. When asked why she takes such an interest in and is so dedicated to dance, Laura replied, "For the applause and the cheering; there's nothing like it in the whole world." In the future, Laura hopes to go to Hollywood or Las Vegas. If that does not work then she plans to open her own dance studio. This summer she got a head start on her career by having a part time job at Debbie Copeland's Performing Arts Studio.

Shakespeare wrote "All the world's a stage." Actor Deepak Talreja is the first to agree. This talented young actor has been on the stage since his kindergarten days, taking the lead roles in many plays. He has been in A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court, The Hobbit, and The King and I. His favorite role is still that of Prince Chululong in The King and I. When asked why he liked this particular role he replied, "It was the first role I ever got to sing in. Besides that, it was a personal challenge."

Last summer, Deepak was an actor in the Shakespeare by the Sea Festival, held at the Pavilion. Does he want to pursue a career in acting? "No, what I really want to do is become a scientist. For me acting is only a hobby."

These sophomores represent an entire class filled with talent, dedication, and dreams.





Talented beyond belief, Cory McCallum learns that if your mother doesn't go to school here, you must clean up after yourself.

Coquette Susan Brown tries to teach Ryan McGinness the right moves.

A GIANT STEP FROM FRESHMEN

One Little Step Up The Ladder Of Life

Wherever the word "freshman" was uttered, everyone recognized the mocking and the tell-tale blushing. To be a freshman was one of the hardest things to deal with during the high school years, but eventually, it ended. As the class of '90 moved up from the bottom of the ladder, sophomores were ready for some well-earned respect and privileges.

"I was really glad when I got my permit; it was my first step towards freedom," Kim Wilkie commented.

Susan O'Prandy revealed, "the social life was definitely better."

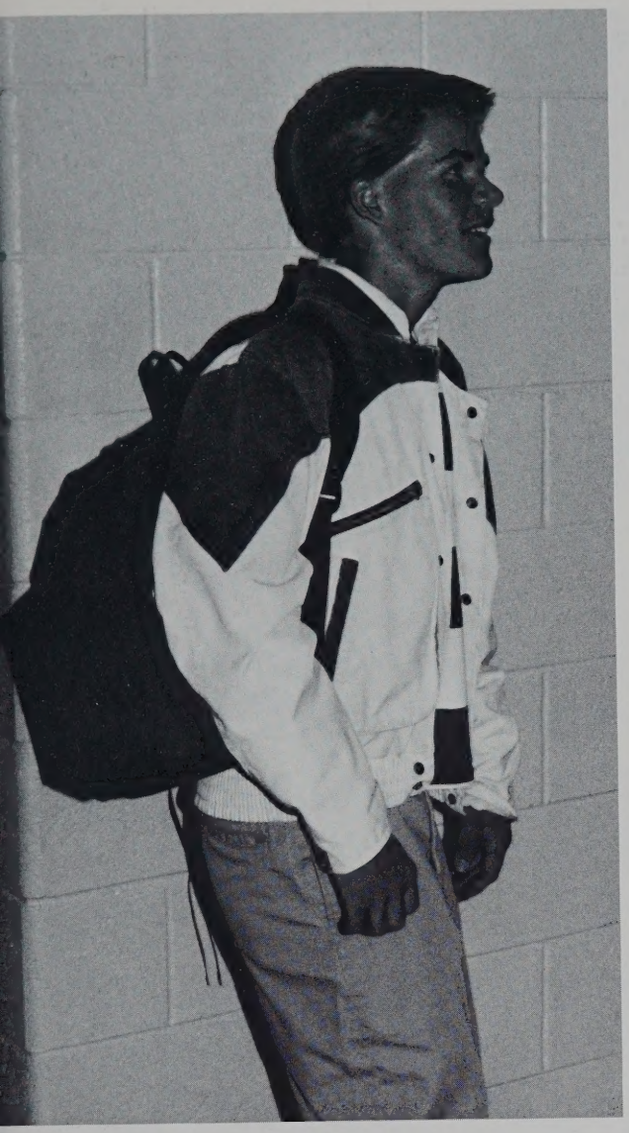
Many sophomores regretted that their grades had changed.

"My grades really dropped this year; not only were the courses a lot harder, but time was of the essence," noted Ryan McGinness.

"What do you mean I have to start thinking about college?!," cried Ross Johnson, realizing things were not simple any more.

Many of the sophomores had not forgotten the condescension and now enjoyed their new superiority. Kevin Kohl expressed the consensus view, "All last year I was ridiculed and mocked, and now it's my turn to pick on the freshmen!"

Glad that they are no longer freshmen, Jennifer Venable and Rebecca Prestridge feel they do not have to hide their true identities.



Realizing that his grades come first, Brent Bohlke prepares to go home and spend his evening studying.

Every now and then we all have to act like freshmen as shown by Kim Wilkie.

A DIFFERENT WORLD

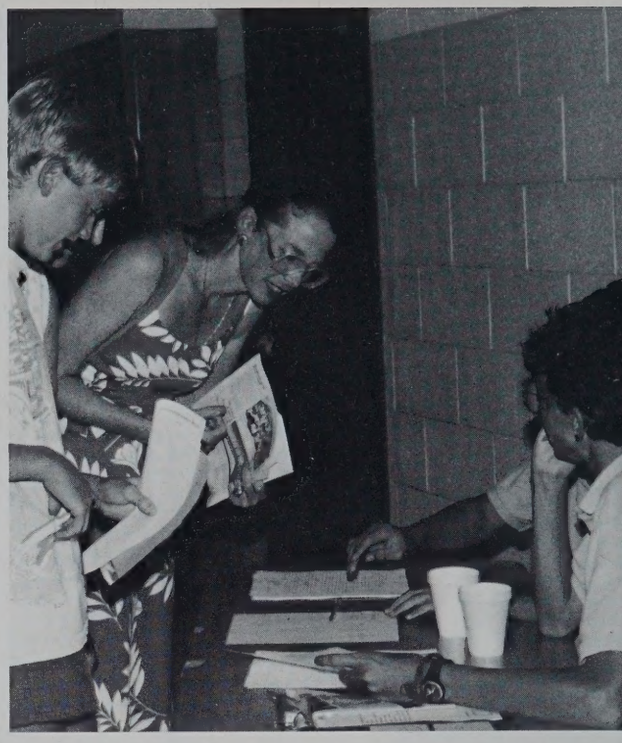
What 3rd Floor? Elevator Passes?

As a freshman, walking into a building as huge as Cox High can be quite intimidating. Orientation was designed to tell just what Cox is all about.

Which clubs are fun? Are freshmen allowed to join? Leaders of some clubs devised ingenious ways to advocate their particular organizations. Chris Kane and Phil Grant exemplified the creative opportunities that are available for students by doing a rap. It had the audience laughing hysterically.

The Coquettes performed a dance routine and the cheerleaders showed their spirit. At the conclusion of the program, everyone was anxious to locate their classes.

It was a relief that Cox wasn't a labyrinth and that it is possible to find a way out. Students' initial fears conquered, freshmen anticipated the first day of school.



By answering any questions posed to them, Mr. and Mrs. Hartranft help the incoming freshman.

OUR CLASS LEADERS

Striving To Make The Difference

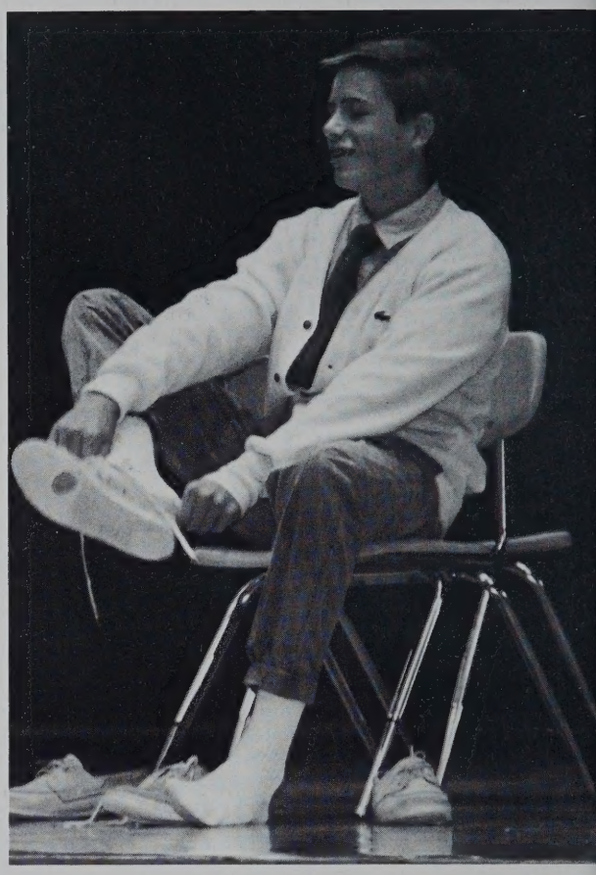
"It's a beautiful day in the neighborhood, a beautiful day for a neighbor. Would you be mine? Won't you be mine? Won't you be my neighbor?"

The 1987 freshman elections were humorous yet serious. Blake Thompson's portrayal of Mister Rogers helped him to win office.

Heidi Hinman was elected Secretary and Spencer Staggs Vice President.

Tim Howard's presentation had people doubled over with laughter. He bombarded Andy Grant, playing the typical senior, with eggs and whipped cream, which is every freshman's dream. Howard was elected President.

With the new officers in place, and with the help of their sponsor, Ms. O'Grady, the freshmen attained their goals.



"It's a beautiful day in the neighborhood," sang Blake Thompson during his campaign speech.

Freshman class officers, B. Thompson, S. Staggs, T. Howard, J. Pascual, and H. Hanman exchange ideas about class projects.

A NEW GENERATION FROM BABIES TO GREEN AND GOLD

Freshman Show Their Spirit

It started with Spirit Week. Individual freshman made a tremendous effort to dress up on each day.

Monday everyone wore his favorite college sweatshirt. Tuesday, freshmen brought cameras, sunscreen, and lounge chairs to celebrate Tourist Day. Wednesday everyone brought his lollipops, dolls, and teddy bears for Little Kid's Day. Superman, Wonder Woman, and Big Bird were heroes represented for Hero Day on Thursday. The green and gold hair, faces, and funky clothes stood out among the crowd on Green and Gold Day.

At the Pep Rally, the class of 1991 came in fourth place in spirit links and the relay races, but that did not stop the freshman spirit. That night during halftime, the Homecoming court was introduced Freshman representatives, Danielle Carson and Heather Kennedy, were presented proudly by their fathers on the football field.

After the game, the Deans played at the Homecoming Dance, a place to meet new friends and have a great time. The upperclassmen's grudges were buried as everyone celebrated together.

SOARING TO A NEW HIGH

Freshmen at the Top

Great Neck's Grace Garvin battles it out with her opponent as her teammate, Kim Lipscomb, waits for her chance to intercept the ball.

Freshmen and sports — where do they fit into the main scheme of things at Cox? Inadvertently, they don't. They do, however, fit on the playing fields of area junior high schools.

Since Cox is the only high school in the district with freshmen, our students are lucky because they have the option to play for either a junior high or senior high school. Ninth graders who play on junior high teams include Ed Nelson and Chris Michelson at Independence, Andy Grant and James Ettes at Lynnhaven, and Rob Busching, Spencer Staggs, Spencer Miller, Jay Davis, Troy Hines, Johnny Soroka, Carl Mackey, Grace Garvin, Wendy Hebert, Kim Lipscomb, and Nikki Ferris at Great Neck.

It is a unique feature of the ninth grade that some students are found on each of so many different schools' teams. Such a variety of uniforms and school colors can only enrich the sense of support and spirit.

Freshman Bryan Martin is looking for quiet study during his lunch period.

DEAR DIARY . . .

You'd never guess

Tuesday, September 8 — First day of school!!

Dear Diary,

What a day! To start with, I was nervous because it was the first day of my new identity — a freshman in high school!!! Mixed with my nervousness was stark fear. New classes, new teachers, and all of those upperclassmen! I'd heard rumors about a mysterious third floor.

When I first walked in, I saw so many people, and they all looked so big! As the day went on, however, I gradually began to gain confidence in myself. I only got lost once, and my teachers weren't so scary after all. Maybe I'll join some clubs or even run for class office!

All it took was one day for me to be a part of the student body of Cox High School.

Good Night, Diary

Stranded on the curb after a club meeting, freshman are often found waiting for a ride home.

MODELS OF LEADERSHIP

Administrators Lead Comprehensive Programs

If educational achievement and leadership were the established criteria by which a school administration was measured, our principals ranked well. Principal Mrs. Lottie Waters was ably assisted by Dr. Burletine Karlen, Mr. Phillip Williams, and Mr. Michael Porter; each provided vital leadership for respective programs of a large, comprehensive high school.

Many benefitted from Mrs. Waters' positive remarks during an honor roll assembly, and others recognized Mr. Williams' role in the improvement of the In-School Suspension program. Dr. Karlen's responsibilities included service as Summer School Principal and coordination with the school system's data processing center. Mr. Porter took care of student behavior and managed the parking lots. The four administrators shared the responsibility for the supervision of classroom instruction. As models for the student body, our principals demonstrated their leadership capabilities daily.

Surveying the pep rally crowd are Principal Mrs. Lottie Waters and SCA President Marc Mayette.

After a long school day, M
Phillip Williams looks dow

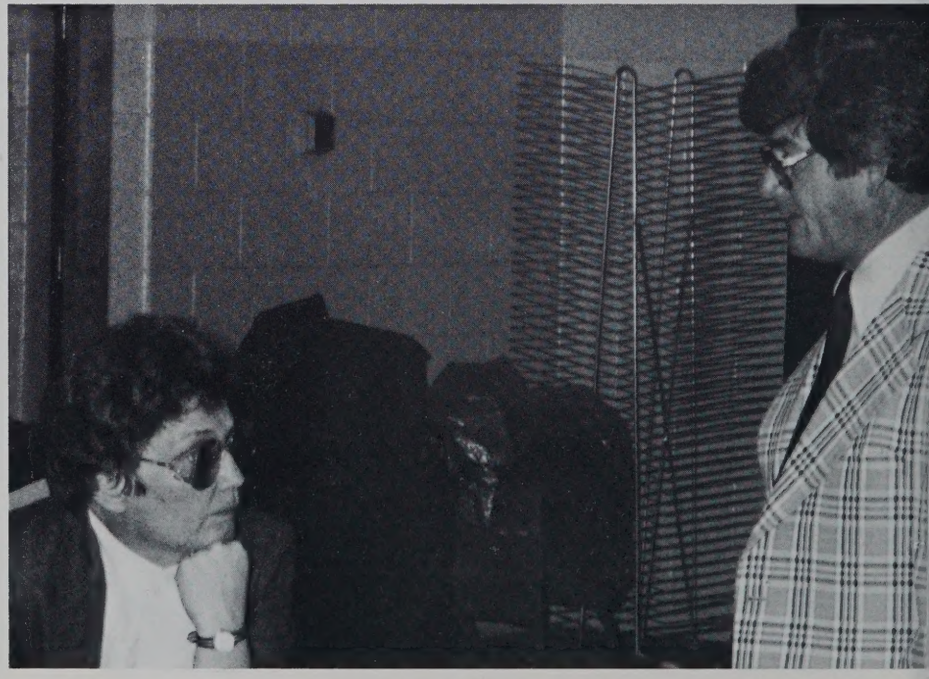
Dr. Burletine Karlen monitors the lunch room, encouraging students to dispose of their trash properly.

Discussing substitutes are Miss Ann Wild and Mr. Mike Porter.



Mrs. Lottie Waters, Principal, directed a staff of over 100 and a student body of 2000. She also led various city-wide and district committees, a testament to her experience and leadership capabilities.

Assistant Principal Dr. Burletine Karlen was especially watchful of the social studies and special education departments. She became a computer expert, too, familiar with op scan and proof sheets for grades.

Mr. Phillip Williams, assistant principal, gives that warning glance as he dispenses keys and assigns accountability.

Assistant Principal Michael Porter contributed his expertise in the publication field, as well as maintaining a disciplined environment.

IT'S NOT JUST A JOB . . .

It's An Adventure!

How many teachers received hugs this year? No one really knew what teachers went through in a single day.

First thing in the morning, they faced the exhausted expressions of the students who slumped in their desks. From there, they fulfilled their monitor "duties" as attendance book watcher, hall scout and lunchroom eagle. After the bell rang, they were hit with another fifty minutes of high energy teaching or planning.

Although students viewed them with occasional antagonism, teachers deserved all their applause and appreciation. What would a world without teachers have been like? Great, right? Think again. Teachers did much more than teach. They served as role models, a source for guidance, and sometimes as friends.

Going that extra mile with what little extra time teachers had, the title of teacher sometimes changed to sponsor. Playing a vital role in the extracurricular programs, sponsors helped in the organization and leadership of clubs. Sponsors revelled in the productivity and success of their clubs. In the end, students realized that the position of "teacher" went much further than the confines of the classroom walls.

The cell division process is explained by Mr. Art Koeppen to one of his biology classes.

AUXILIARY SERVICES

A Support System Behind the Scenes

Were teachers and administration the only people who make the school the best that it was? Or were there individuals behind the scenes who took care of the "little things" that made everything run smoothly?

Armed with a pen or a pencil and a good head on their shoulders, secretaries, the nurse, and guidance personnel oiled the gears of the student body machine.

Mrs. Laura Houtwed, Mrs. Joyce Berlando, Mrs. Ann Bray, and Mrs. Barbara Malla demonstrated clerical expertise. Without them, the management of the school would have been less efficient.

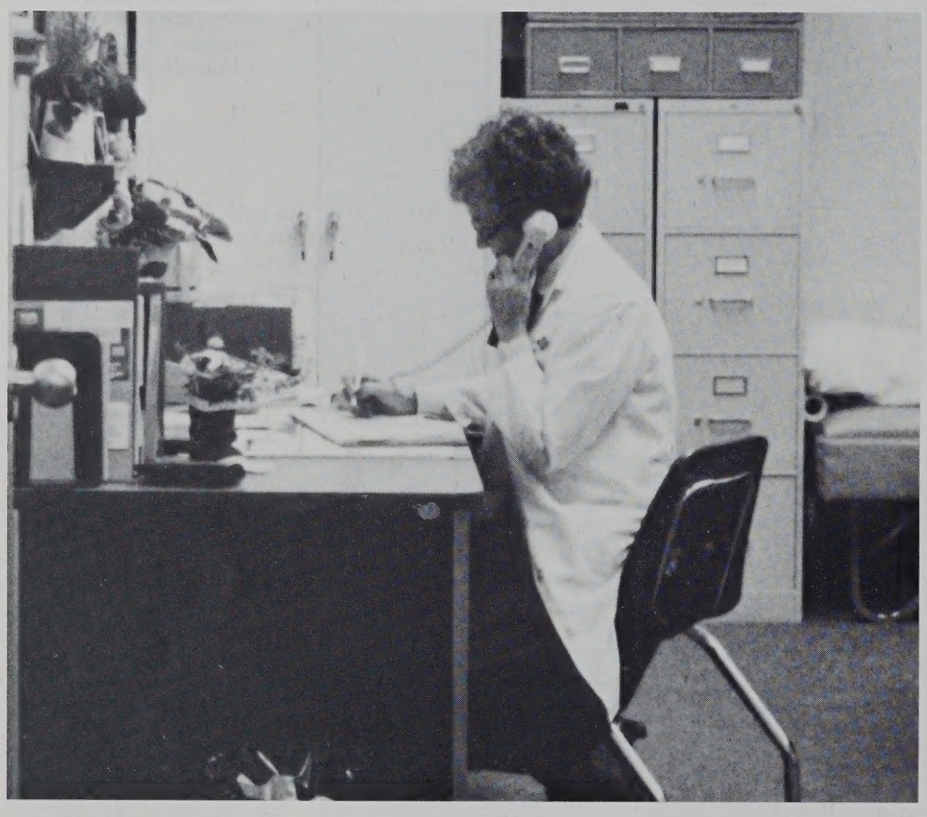
To facilitate and soothe, Mrs. Elizabeth McBride, R.N. balanced the clinic on crutches and band-aids.

The Guidance Office aided students with scheduling and career decisions. Mrs. Diehl, guidance secretary, was invaluable. The guidance counselors included Mr. Thomas Copely, Mrs. Linda Davis, Mrs. Mary Henry, Mrs. Roberta Owens, Mr. Gus Polizos, and Mrs. Kay Scarborough.

Mrs. Mary Stewart Darden, Mrs. Jerry Lond and Mrs. Joan Manual hit the books as Mrs. Pam Hodgkiss kept the records straight. Being in charge of the library was no easy job; however, the library staff ran it smoothly.

Mrs. Lois Philips guards the door and the flow of traffic toward the telephone.

Mrs. Lois Baker grade papers, proving that teache work outside the classroo also.



Preparing to send a student home, Mrs. Elizabeth McBride calls about an upset tummy.

In a battle of wits, the students, Mrs. Mosher, Mr. Becker, Mrs. Beckner, Mr. LaBarbera and Mrs. Waller ponder the question

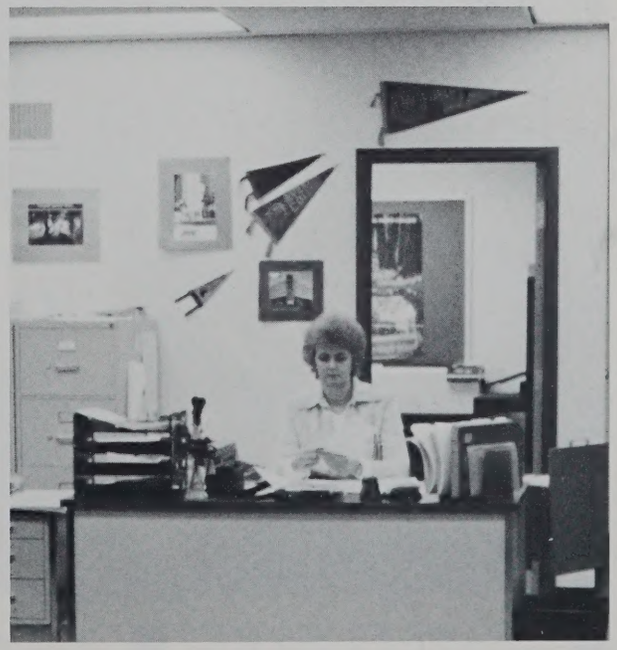
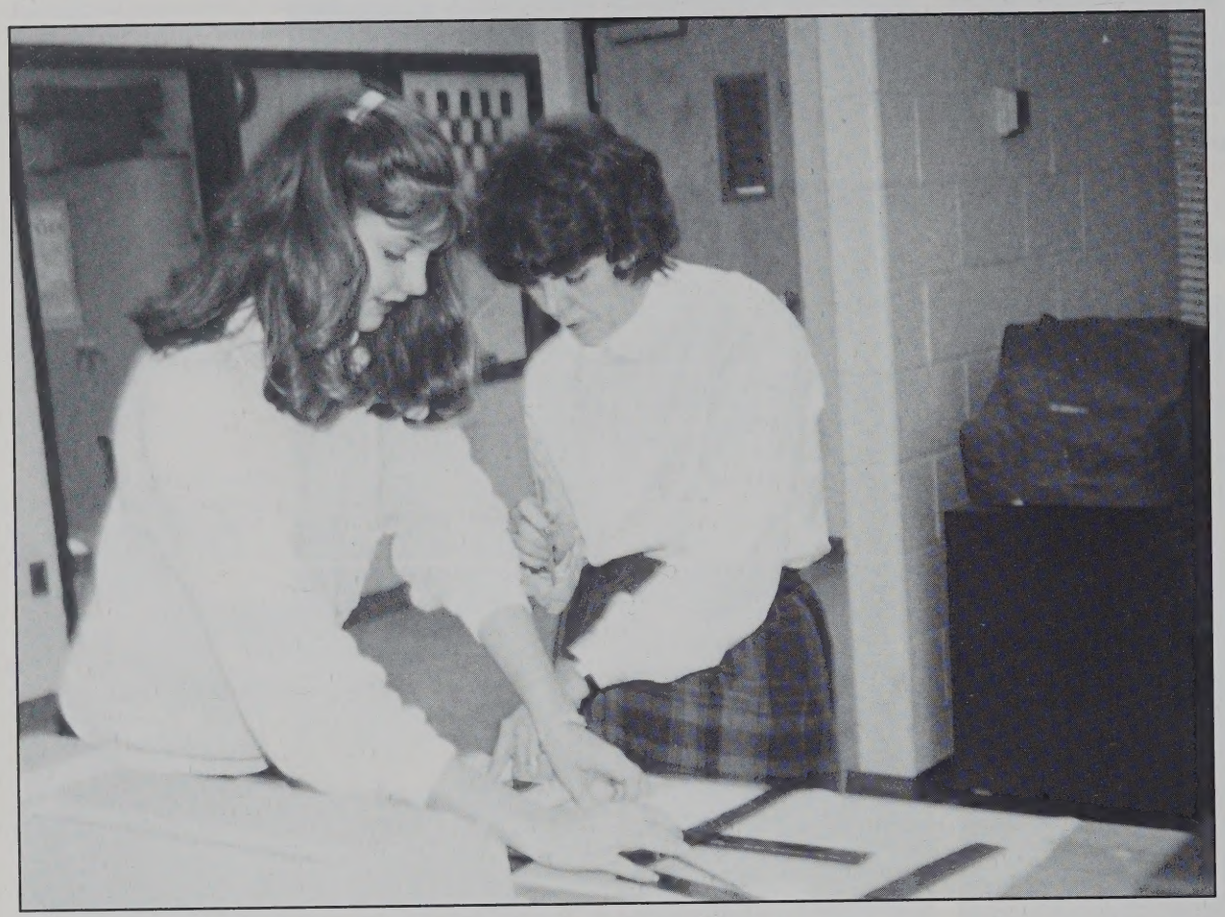
Mrs. Barbera Malla and Mrs. Joyce Berlando type many important forms.

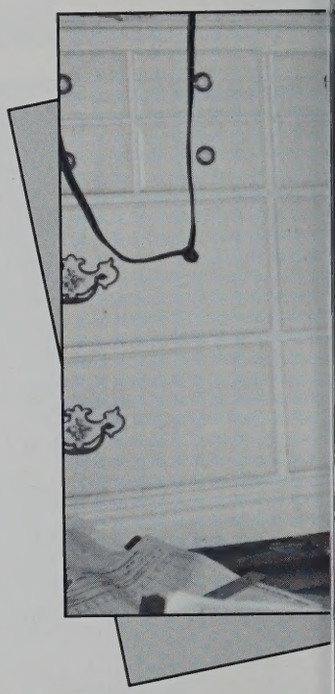


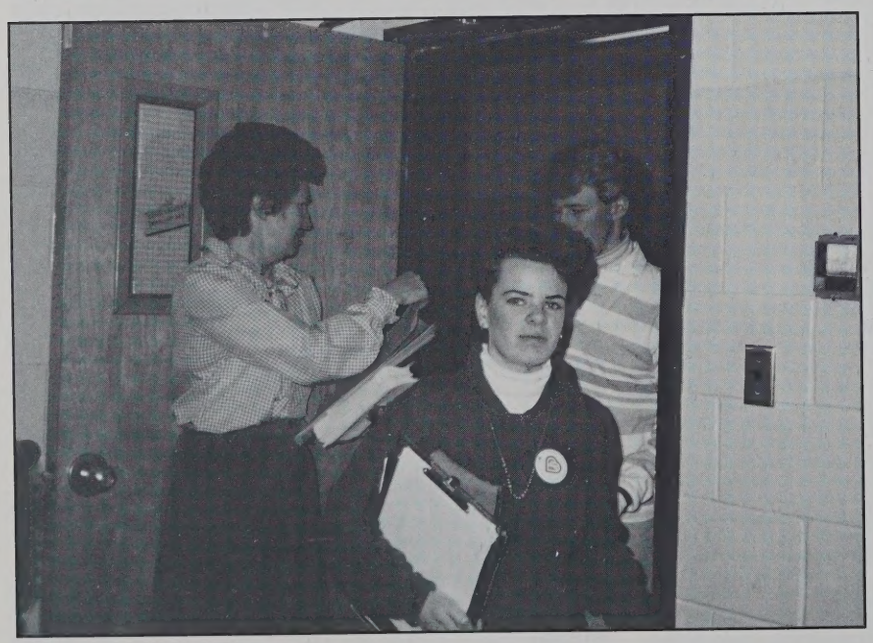
Mrs. Gerri Deihl is an indispensable aid as seniors apply to colleges.



Lisa Crutchfield and Mr Ginny James crop yearboo pictures.

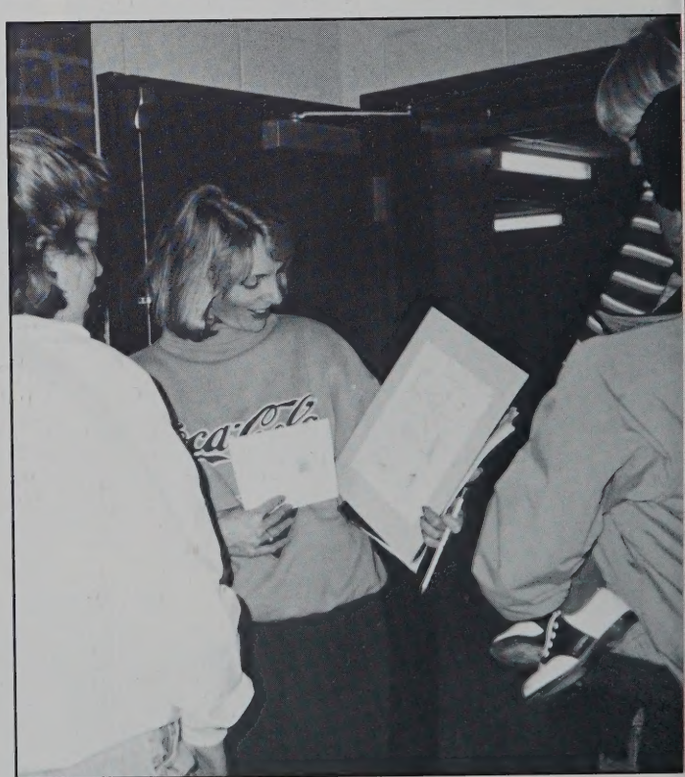
Yearbook editor, Caroly Clark, rushes to meet th deadline.





Counselor, Mrs. Kay Scarborough greets Jennifer Kuhlman and Kevin Curry at the door to Government class with the senior bulletin.

Executive Council members congratulate Mrs. Debbie Holland on the birth of her daughter Stephanie.



SUDDEN Opportunities

Throughout the Strip and along Shore Drive, stores line the road emblazoned by "sale" signs. Known for the hippest fashions, these places of business tell us what's in and what's out, what's hot what's not, what we can afford and what we can only look at. However, clothes are not the only focus. Restaurants galore cover the beach front.

Then, the sudden opportunity dawns on us . . . that one and only Prom dress in the window, or that incredible car in the lot, waiting just for you. Maybe Grandmother could be persuaded to purchase that special item as a graduation gift. Maybe the part-time job will provide enough for this. Make those selections, feed the economy, shop before closing time!

Enjoying Mrs. James' Government class is Geoff Wallace.

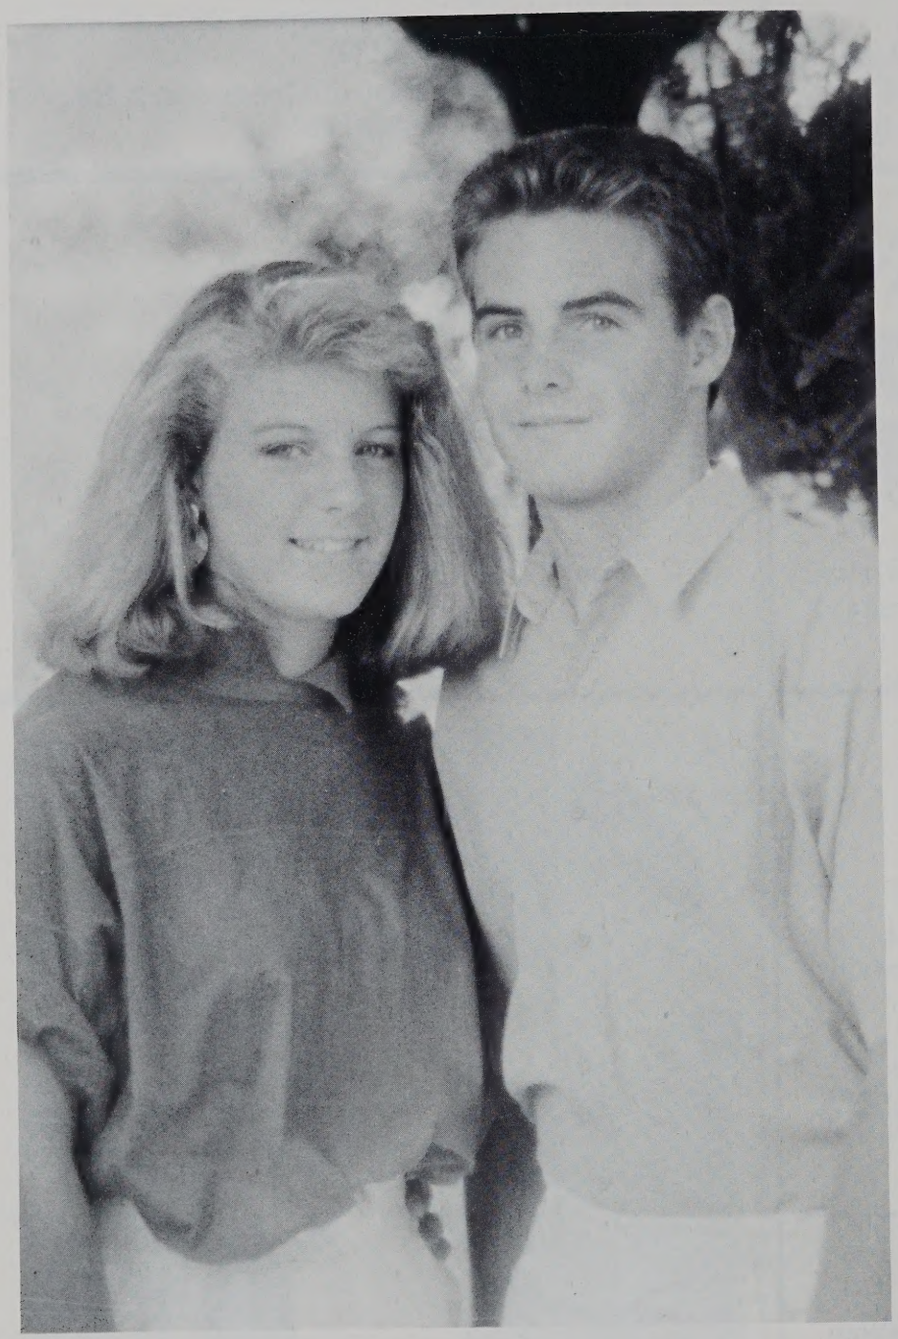
To My Brother Marc



We grew up together
you and I.
Sharing friends
as time went by.
Running around
til after dark.
Playing together
in the park.
Going swimming
at the beach.
Always within each other's reach.
You were always there
to lend me a hand.
To show me you
care and understand.
You helped me with problems at home
or at school.
You showed me the way,
you taught me the rules
And now big brother,
I want you to know
That in my heart
you'll be with me
Wherever I go.

Love Danielle

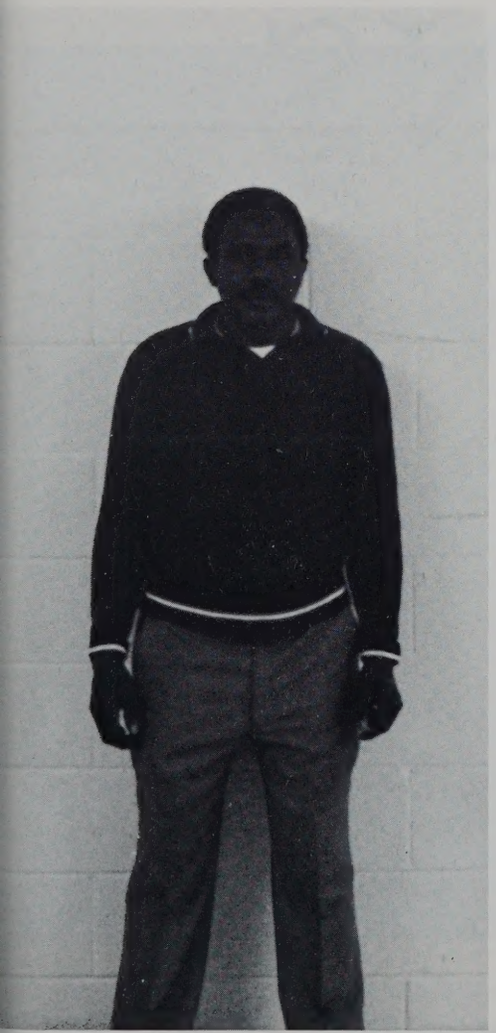
For the nights that the yearbook staff worked late, Mr. Joseph Freemond always had a smile and a greeting.

Cafeteria Staff: 1st row — W. Mabory, K. Turpin, K. Haddock. 2nd row — C. Young, S. Halsey, M.J. Ballard, D. Bea. 3rd row — R. Suber, L. Hoffman, N. Arellano, P. Acord, R. Crisher, C. Butcher, I. Hamkins.

PROVIDING THE BASICS

Food and Shelter

Before our dawn and after sunset, a small staff, unseen and unheard, clean, cook, and polish the appearance of our building. They are given no praise, nor any rewards, yet they diligently work.



The daytime head custodian, Mr. Elwood Hines

We wish to thank them all, custodians and cafeteria staff, for the past, present, and future. You've done a great job. You have all been great friends and lifesaving "door openers" — truly a special and wonderous secret behind the locked doors of this school.

FEATURE

PICTIONARY

Six teachers, Six students, a full auditorium, and an overhead projector: these four elements made the first "pictionary" assembly a tremendous success. Teachers, Larry Becker, Tom LaBarbara, Karen Jenkins, Gary Hartranft, Debroah Mosher, and Lena Phillips were challenged by Jean Pascuel, Kristin Regula, Chris Kane, Andrew White, Allison Edwards and Bryan Raney. The old addage "its not whether you win or lose, its how you play" the game was never more true.

After a long 3rd bell of screaming from the audience and frantic drawing of the competitors, the students finally prevailed.

This assembly was just one of the many successful teacher/student activities that took place throughout the year.

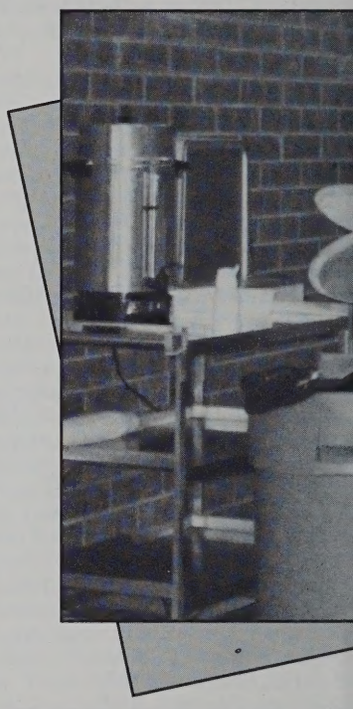
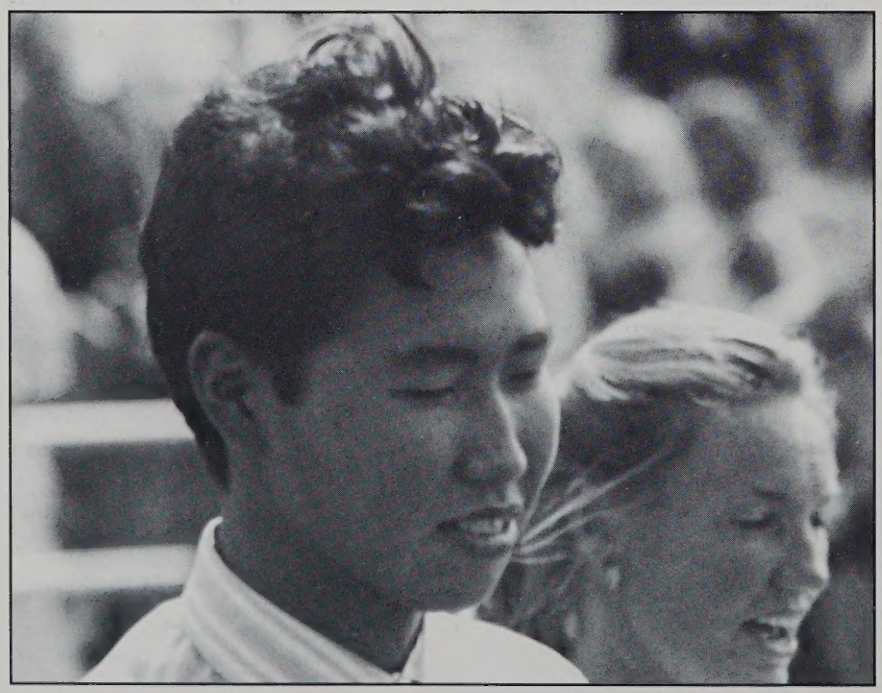
All caught up, Jonathan Harrell hangs in there at Windy Gap's rope course.

After the teacher-breakfast, Anna-Liisa Bentti and Jen Acosta help clean up.





S.C.A. Reporter Charlie Cho and Ms. Nancy Fowlkes await their turns to speak.

Hiding behind his camera is Derrick Breckenridge.

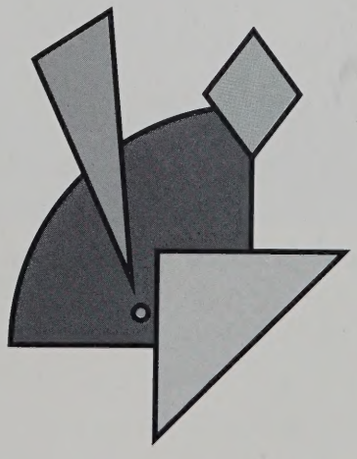
INTO Dusk

Summer dawns dressed in a cacophony of sounds and colors, while the halls of Cox echo with silence. For the seniors, twelve years of hall passes, stuffed lockers, lunch, wrestling, detentions, deadlines, Homecoming, essays, SAT's, tests, and report cards have come to an end. However, the Class of '88 has left behind a legacy of achievement and spirit to be passed on to those who will follow. As the warm southern breeze blows gently and the tides ebb and flow, so does the school year begin and end. Time is ever changing yet motionless.

And in that suspended motion, we are permitted to change the world around us. These four years are not just set aside for learning or having fun, but rather for making a difference.

For juniors, sophomores, and freshmen, the dawning of change has just begun. As dusk 1988 settles, seniors will have made their difference, changed what they wanted changed. Although the sun has set for now, it will rise again in the fall.

Cory McCallum inquires about what time he gets to leave the meeting.



Bobby, It's been really nice knowing you these four years at Cox, starting w/ Spanish & Mr. Waters to Government w/ Mr. Leagan. Best wishes to you and everything you do! Have a great summer and try to relax, your whole life is ahead of you now.

1988

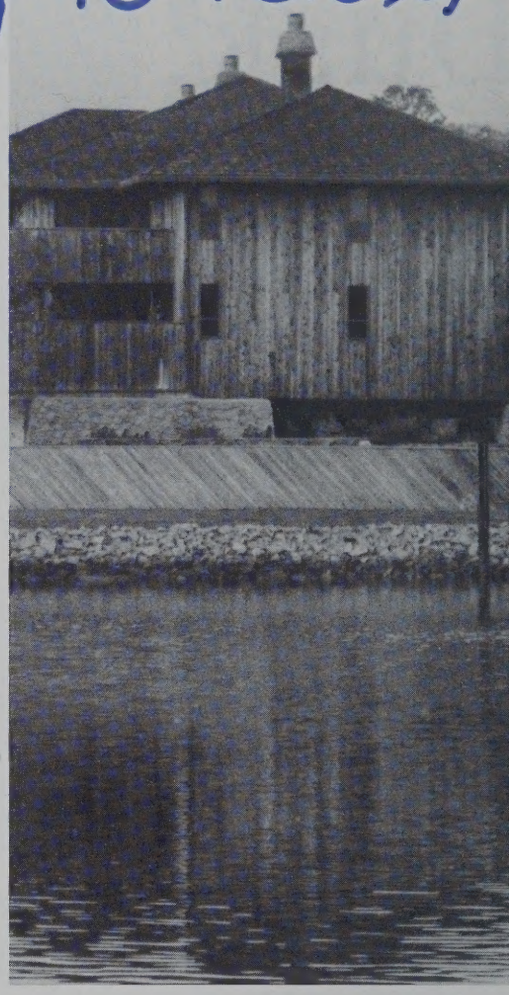
Jennifer

A WISH FOR TOMORROW

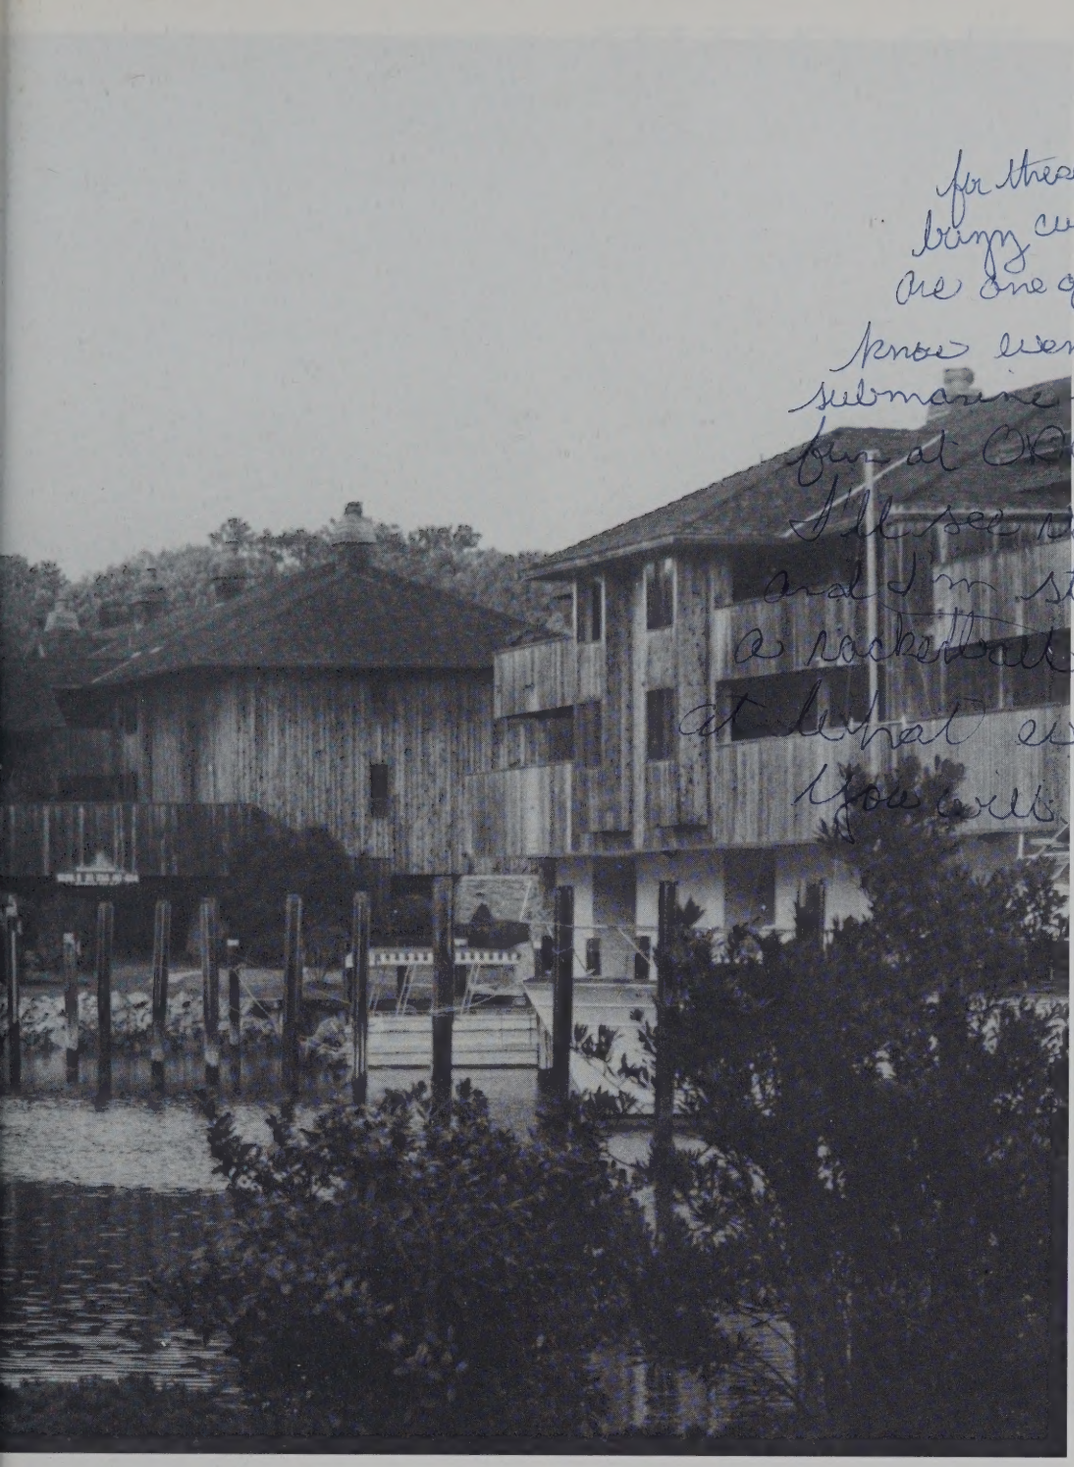
A Spring Before The Dawn

As a hint from Mother Nature that spring was fast approaching came about, seniors were going crazy over graduation announcements, gowns, and applications. Ski trips were over and a prayer for snow days became a wish for large waves and a number ten tanning index.

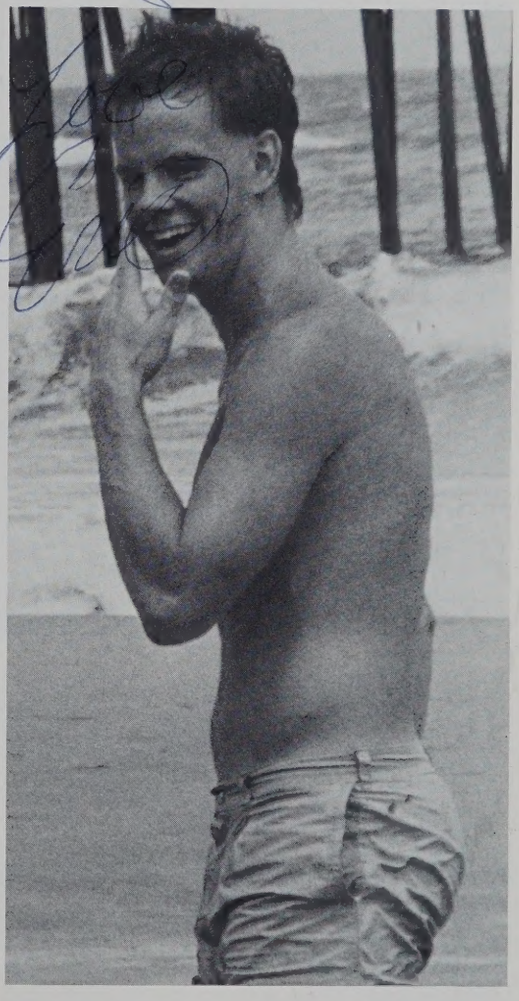
Between March and June, school activity was at full splender, mixing with events like foreign-language week, Miss Cox Pagent, Mr. Cox Pagent, Falcon-Fest, and pep rallies. Then Ringdance and Prom were just around the corner, and in rented tuxes and new formal gowns, we danced our way into an oblivian that lasted until June 16 — the last day of school!



The sight of graduation caps and gowns send chills of excitement to most seniors.



Spring brings pleasant weather and beautiful sights to Virginia Beach.



It's back to the beach for Grant Atkins as soon as the weather allows.

Karen Pellerin and Jennifer Usrey display warm weather fashions.

IT'S TIME TO GIVE CREDIT

Where Credit Is Due!

As the year progressed it was apparent that certain people did more than they had to.

Susan Slaven was always willing to volunteer her time to edit and write copy.

The sophomore editor, Kristin Rohdenburg could always be depended on to do extra typing at deadlines. And she was always patient and never argued when tedious work was piled on her.

Cassy Yellis was so dedicated to yearbook that she even came in on crutches after a serious injury.

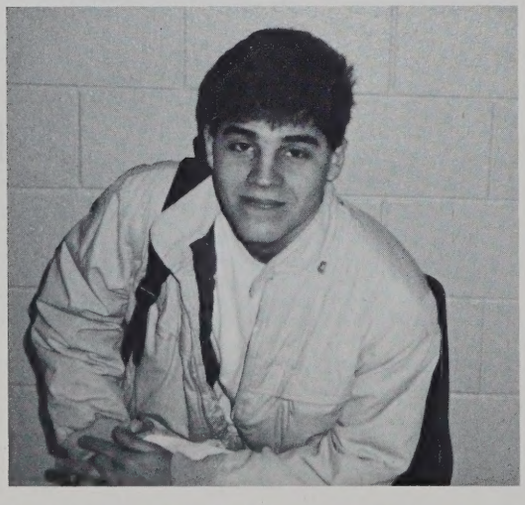
The artwork of Chris Heidt was invaluable to us in the designing of some graphics and in our ads.

Without the help of Phillip Johnston, some copy would never have been as good as it is.

There are others in the school that helped to make this yearbook a success, even if they don't realize it. The secretaries and Mrs. MacNamara are only a few. Thanks to all of you!

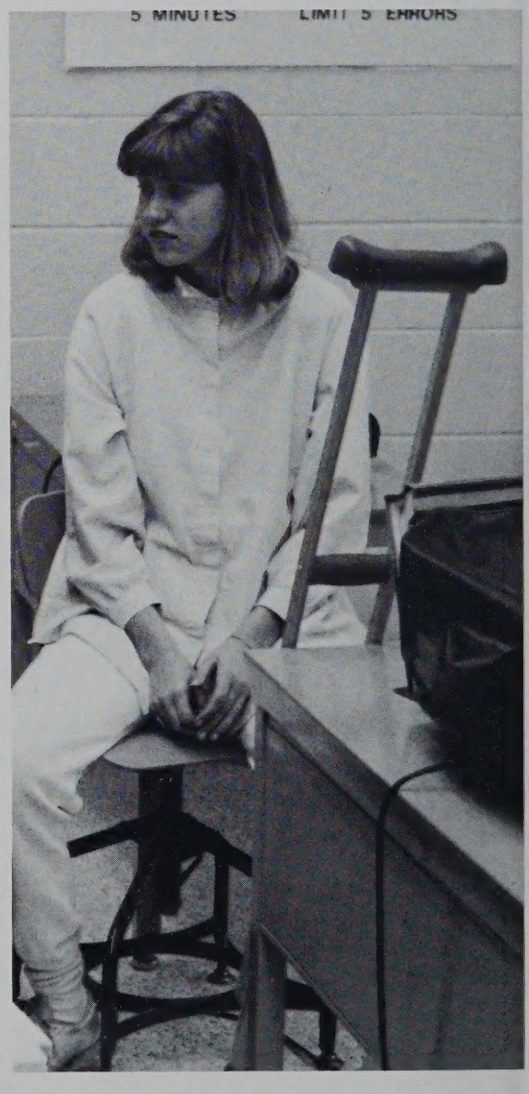
Kristin Rohdenburg admires pictures hung up in a locker.

"What?" — the camera catches Susan Slaven by surprise as she edits copy.



The talent of Chris Heidt was invaluable to the yearbook staff.

Phillip Johnston types away at yearbook copy.



Even when injured — Cassy Yellis comes through for yearbook.

COLOPHON

The 1988 Talon, Volume 27, was published by Hunter Publishing Company, Winston-Salem, North Carolina. Mr. John Perry was the publishing representative. The press run was 1300 copies. The paper for the book is gloss. The cover is four-color limited lithographic design. The majority of the type used in the book is Century. Body copy is in 10-point, captions in 8-point, and kickers in 12-point. Most senior portraits, faculty and underclassmen pictures, group pictures, and assorted candids were taken by Mr. Hal Ward of Max Ward-Delmar Studios, Chesapeake, Virginia.

Letter From the EDITORS

We would like to extend special thanks to Mrs. Gail Riffle for her work on the index; Mr. Ken Janosko for putting up with us; all teachers that allowed class time for yearbook purposes; Mrs. Lottie B. Waters for her support for all we did; and especially Col. Chuck Savage for coming up with the theme "Suddenly It Dawned On Us!"

We would like to give our personal thanks to all of our teachers that made allowances and were understanding on the occasions when we needed it. Also, our thanks and congratulations go out to all the staff members — we couldn't have done it without you. For Kristin Rohdenburg and Diana Myers, we want to say thank you and good luck next year. We will be thinking of you. Last, but not least, we want to thank Mrs. Ginny James. We all started the year out as rather inexperienced beginners, but we weathered the storm and have come out on top.

Thanks,
Carolyn and Nancy

The light of dawn woke students to the splendor of yet another school day. For seniors, these days became measured and impatient durations of time which they endured until that momentous June evening, an evening that was the dusk of their high school careers anad the dawn of their lives in the real world. Juniors envisioned their remaining high school year as dominant upperclassmen, while freshmen and sophomores progressed in their wonder years.

The year seemed to escape us; it seemed as though September was yesterday. Autumn passed into winter, winter into spring. Spring break revitalized that yearning for summer winds and "killer waves"; June was close at hand. Every chalkboard had a reserved countdown square, and every student, a stock of summer shorts.

As spring passes into summer, as students went their ways, parking lots cleared and the stadium lights went dark. Students remember by contrast the stands when they were alive with the cheering and clamoring of the crowd and the football field when it was covered with confetti. The cafeteria was quiet, though the chaos of the silly Falcon Fest relay races reappeared in students memories.

Curtains closed, dusk settled in the night, only to evolve into brilliant sunlight, day. Suddenly it dawned on us — the year was at close, and yet another was beginning.

Bobby,
what? you can't hear me?
Well I'll turn it up.
You should be careful about what you hit. You should try a less violent tension reliever. Well bud we've come a long way since 8th grade physical science with mister Scarbel. Well have a good life and take care of that girl of yours. She's pretty special.
You deserve her.

Love you ← as friends you gay wad.
